FBI Seizes 4th Man on A-Spy Charges

New Yorker Described as Major Link In Red Ring

Julius Rosenberg Accused of Contact With 2 Others Held In Bomb Espionage

By The Associated Press

The FBI yesterday arrested a fourth American in connection with the leak of atom bomb secrets to the Russians.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Julius Rosenberg, 32, operator of an engineering plant in New York City and a former member of the Army Signal Corps, had been taken into custody in New York on a charge of conspiracy to commit espionage.

Hoover described Rosenberg as another link in the Soviet espionage apparatus.

During the last two months the FBI took into custody Harry Gold, Philadelphia biochemist, Alfred Dean Slack, Syracuse, N. Y., scientist, and David Greenglass, former U. S. Army sergeant, on similar charges.

Greenglass also is from New York City.

All Linked With Fuchs

Each is charged with feeding top secrets on American defense to the Russians in wartime—a charge carrying the possible death penalty.

Each of the group is alleged to have collaborated with Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the top British atomic scientist who has been sent to prison in Britain for giving atomic secrets to the Soviet Union.

Rosenberg was identified in the FBI announcement as the owner and operator of Pitt Engine Products, Inc., 370 East Houston st., New York. He is married and has two children. His New York home address was given as 10 Monroe st.

The FBI announcement asserted that Rosenberg recruited Greenglass, once attached to the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atom bomb project, and had him make available classified, technical information on the A-bomb to both Gold and Rosenberg in 1945.

Hoover said "Rosenberg gave Greenglass specific instructions as to the type of information Russia desired."

According to Hoover, Rosenberg in early 1945 gave Greenglass in New York City half of an irregularly cut Jello box top, the other half of which was given to Green-

Kefauver Swims And Takes Care Of Public Enemy

McMinnville, Tenn., July 17 (AP).—Results were immediate and complete in an on-the-spot investigation today by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Kefauver and Harry Mansfield, Chattanooga, were about to take a swim in Barren Fork River. They heard a buzzing in the undergrowth.

Mansfield went in with a hoe and Kefauver, with a shovel, finished off a big rattlesnake.

Cowan Oldham, the Senator's host, said the reptile had 18 rattlers, was five feet, 11 inches long and weighed 32 pounds.

Kefauver and Mansfield went on with their swim before the Senator left for St. Louis to start a committee hearing Tuesday.

Subcommittee Majority Report Calls McCarthy Charges Hoax

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator McCarthy's charges of Communist infiltration in the Government are "fraught with falsehood from beginning to end," and their "reprehensible and contemptible character defies adequate condemnation," according to the three-man Democratic majority of the Senate subcommittee that investigated the accusations.

Their 350,000-word report on the five-month-long inquiry was made available yesterday. It appears to be the most ferocious public and formal denunciation of one Senator by his colleagues in recent history.

The report was signed by Senator Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the special subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Senators Green (D., R. I.) and McMahon (D., Conn.).

A fourth member of the subcommittee, Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), submitted a 32-page report of his own, declaring that the subcomittee's investigation was "superficial and inconclusive."

He discussed only two of the several persons McCarthy had accused publicly—Owen Lattimore and John S. Service—and, like the Democratic majority, found no evidence to support the accusations made against them by the Wisconsin Republican.

The fifth member of the subcommittee, Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), submitted no report at this time. To reporters, he indicated he concurred generally with Lodge's findings, particularly to the effect that the investigation was incomplete. He intimated he would have his own comments, if

President To Explain War Needs

To Put Program Up to Congress on Wednesday, Talk To People at Night

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman will tell Congress Wednesday what the United States must do to meet the crisis brought on by the fighting in Korea.

He is expected to ask Congress to vote billions of dollars for the Department of Defense and to authorize the armed services to go well above their present authorized manpower strength of 2,005,882.

Mr. Truman will give his recommendations to Congress in a "comprehensive" message, which is expected to arrive on Capitol Hill around noon.

The Chief Executive will make a report to the Nation at 10:30 p. m. Wednesday. White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that Mr. Truman would talk about the Korean situation and its implications in plain language that "everybody will understand." His words will be broadcast by the four major radio networks and television.

Recommendations Secret

There was no intimation at the White House about the nature of the recommendations Mr. Truman will make to Congress.

Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) said yesterday that this country's very existence was at stake, and he called for the "immediate mobilization of American manpower and industry."

"We must recognize that we are at this moment in a major war and that Korea is one part of a world war picture," Lodge told the Senate. "This is true, although no one has declared war—and maybe, no one will. We must thus quickly create a situation of military strength."

If American forces were being pushed around in Korea, Lodge said, what would it be like, with our present procedures, when we come up against the "Communists' first team?"

Truman, Big Four in Talk

President Truman's plan to send a message to Congress Wednesday was disclosed yesterday after he had conferred with the Big Four of Congress— Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senate Majority Leader Lucas and House Majority Leader McCormack.

Speaker Rayburn told reporters that he expected the message around noon Wednesday, and added:

"I assume that the President will report on the war situation, and also present any recommendations he wants to make about the different things he feels are needed."

None of the four would discuss Mr. Truman's recommendations, saying that the message would have to speak for itself.

Rayburn did say, however, that it was his best judgment that

Yanks May Form Line on Ridge Closer To Kumchon and Easier to Defend

Tokyo (Tuesday), July 18 (AP).—General MacArthur reported today that American forces still hold positions west and north of Taejon.

Reports reaching Tokyo within the last hour said Taejon has not fallen, a headquarters spokesman said.

The Twenty-fourth Division, in positions on the approaches to Taejon, has "little enemy activity in front" of it and has sent patrols "in an effort to gain information as to North Korean forces' movements," MacArthur's headquarters said.

In a communique, timed at 2:35 p. m., Japan daylight time today, (11:35 p. m., Monday Eastern standard time) MacArthur estimated North Korean Communist battle casualties exceed 11,000, but cautioned that no accurate figures were available.

The communique did not specify the time it covered. Field reports saying Taejon was still in American hands reached Tokyo as late as 1:30 p. m. today (10:30 p. m., Monday, Eastern standard time).

The United States Twenty-fourth Division "continued to occupy and rectify their lines west and northwest of Taejon."

The South Korean First Corps, whose left flank adjoined the Americans' right flank along the Kum, also have reorganized their defensive positions.

Communist reinforcements were reported in motion toward the area occupied by the North Korean Fourth and Fifth Divisions around Chungju, 55 miles northwest of Taejon.

D. C. Defense Bill Rushed In Congress

Unanimously Reported To Senate; House Unit Considers Financing

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Civil defense legislation for the District received rush order treatment from Senate and House Committees yesterday.

The Senate District Committee unanimously approved a House-passed measure that would authorize the Commissioners to create a local civil defense setup.

But before okaying the preparedness bill committee members asked Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young to draft legislation giving the Commissioners even broader powers of seizure and commandeer in event of enemy attack on the Capital.

Urge Model for Nation

Suggesting preparation of more far-reaching legislation, Senators Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) and Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) said Congress should provide Washington with a "model" defense plan as an example for the rest of the Nation.

General Young said he would confer with the National Security Resources Board on the proposal.

While the Commissioner said he personally favored vesting the broadest possible emergency powers with the city heads, he urged the committee to approve the House measure at this time to make certain some form of enabling bill is signed into law promptly.

Young explained the requested $290,000 to finance an office of civil defense here could not be appropriated until the authorizing legislation was on the books.

Whereupon the Senate group unanimously passed the bill and sent it to the floor where early action is expected.

Earlier yesterday a House Appropriations subcommittee called up for first consideration a $290,000 item to finance the local civil defense program. The three Commissioners and their assistants did a two-hour selling job before the subcommittee in closed morning session.

The fund would permit the Commissioners to hire a full-time civil defense director, a staff of 10 to 15, purchase communications equipment and set up an air raid warning net around the city.

6-Day Week Impends for Defense Jobs

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

Longer working hours for thousands of employes in the war agencies is being debated within the Administration, it was learned yesterday.

A full 6-day, 48-hour work week for at least those Federal employes in critical production work has been suggested.

"A longer work week is inevitable," an official said yesterday. "It's merely a question of applying it where it will do the most good."

Military people in civilian and desk jobs here and elsewhere are definitely slated to be placed on a full six-day week. An order is expected in a day or so to make the longer work week effective immediately. In other words, Saturday will be a work day for the duration for most of the uniformed personnel at desk jobs.

Meantime, the Defense Department and the Civil Service Commission, in a joint statement, confirmed the exclusive story here yesterday that Civil Service hiring procedures have been suspended to allow the war agencies to rebuild their civilian staffs with a minimum of delay.

The statement said a minimum of 100,000 new civilians would be

Rosa Ponselle Seeks to Divorce 'Prince Charming'

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—Mrs. Rosa Ponselle Jackson, former Metropolitan Opera star, today filed a suit for divorce from the husband she had called her "Prince Charming."

Mrs. Jackson's suit charges that Carle A. Jackson, son of former Baltimore Mayor Howard W. Jackson, had deserted her a year ago January.

Before her marriage to Jackson in 1936, Miss Ponselle had publicly listed six qualifications for the "right man." They were that he be understanding, tolerant, trustful, romantic, sentimental and a business man with understanding.

At the time of their marriage in New York City, she said Jackson fulfilled her requirements for a "Prince Charming."

Mrs. Jackson, who now lives in nearby Stevenson, Md., joined the Met in 1918.

25 Arlington Apartments Are Looted in Daylight Foray

The entire Arlington County detective force was called out last night to unravel a swift series of concentrated housebreakings.

Within a few daylight hours, at least 25 apartments were methodically ransacked in the Colonial Village, Rosslyn and Lee Gardens areas.

As far as police knew only money and jewels were taken and no one got a glimpse of the thief or thieves. Late last night, police were still trying to get a good set of fingerprints.

Lieut. W. Lynn Smith of the Arlington police said it was "impossible to determine the total amount of loot taken." A rough check of the Lee Gardens complaints indicated about $2000 in cash and jewels was stolen there.

Police aren't certain if they have a complete list of the apartments entered.

Apparently aware of the apartment dwellers' working habits, the thief in each case struck while no one was home.

According to Smith, first reports on the housebreaking orgy came in at about 3:30 p. m. For the next several hours the police switchboard was swamped as people returned home to find their valuables gone.

The method of entry was identical in each case, leading police

Irate Senators Promise Probe Of Spectacular Rise in Prices

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Angry demands that the Government do something to halt the spectacular wave of price increases, particularly in food and clothing, brought quick action in Congress yesterday.

Several Senators, led by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), called for controls to halt the price rises and to stop hoarding.

Two Senators, Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa), and Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.), announced that committees they head will start investigating the recent wild upward spiral at once.

While they were talking, new price increases were announced:

1. Cotton jumped from $5.95 to $8.90 a bale (500 pounds) on the New York market, sending prices from 5 to 6 cents a pound above 10 days ago.

2. The American Woolen Co. announced in New York a price increase ranging from 12½ to 17½ cents a yard on all its worsted goods for men and women's clothing. It is the second boost by the world's largest manufacturer of woolen and worsted fabrics in two months.

3. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. announced an increase in coffee prices of from four to five cents a pound. The prices are 74 cents a pound for Eight O'Clock brand, 76 for Red Circle and 77 for Bokar. Trade circles expected other chain stores to announce similar advances. A and P attributed its hikes to advances in green coffee prices due to adverse crop conditions in South America.

4. Hides that could affect the prices of shoes and leather goods generally reached a new season's high. So did cottonseed oil.

5. Wool moved up five cents a pound, and wool tops 5.7 cents.

6. Wheat was up as much as 2⅝ cents a bushel.

7. Lard went up 60 cents per 100 pounds.

8. Soybeans, sugar and black pepper all scored advances.

Morse set off the debate in the Senate with a call for controls on "six, eight or ten basic items." He called the present wave of increases "profiteering in the blood

Point 4 Cut Restored by Senate Unit

Appropriations Group Votes 12 to 3 After Appeal From Truman

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday restored the full $16,900,000 cut in the Administration's "Point Four" program after a personal appeal from the President.

By a vote of 12 to 3, the committee provided the $26,900,000 requested by the Budget Bureau for technical assistance to underdeveloped countries in lieu of the 10 million dollars previously voted.

A letter from the President, following up an unusual White House conference last week with members of the committee, helped influence the reversal.

"The President earnestly besought us to grant him more leeway," Senate Appropriations Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), told newsmen.

Attributed to War

Other members attributed the reversal to the "psychological impact" of the Korean war.

"This is a time when we should be building up all of the good will we can in countries that need our 'know how'," one of them said.

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), one of the three who opposed restoration of the fund, told reporters, however, that "absolutely no new evidence was presented in justification of the action. Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) were said to have joined Wherry in opposition to the full amount.

In addition to restoring the cut, the committee voted to remove two other restrictions opposed by the President by:

1. Eliminating a provision limiting administrative expenses of the program to 10 percent.

2. Slightly modifying a ban on use of any of the fund for project construction to permit use of nom-

Draft Chief Hints at Second Call

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A second draft call of about 20,000 men was indicated for next month by Selective Service Director Lewis A. Hershey yesterday.

In a prepared statement, Major General Hershey declared:

"I see no reason to believe that there will not be another draft call for delivery of men after the September call is filled.

"And if things continue to grow worse, it may be necessary to tighten the law concerning exemptions of veterans and the regulations concerning dependence."

The current month's draft must be filled by September 30. Were an August call to be decreed it would be slated for fulfillment by October 31, officers indicated.

Hershey later explained that he could not predict the second call officially. "I am a procurer. It is not up to me to set the demand."

However, "I do read the papers, and I must assume the boys who made the call with the September 30 delivery date had reasons for doing so. They undoubtedly had news which this week's Korean action has not eliminated," Hershey said.

"By August 1, someone's got to

Special Session Of Legislature Called by Lane

Annapolis, Md., July 17 (AP).—Governor Lane tonight called a special session of the Maryland General Assembly for July 27.

He ordered the legislature back for a brief meeting to change the date of the primary elections.

A spokesman for the Governor said the administration would propose the date be postponed from September 11 to September 18.

The original date, fixed by standing election laws, coincides with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year. That holiday begins at sundown September 11.

Jewish spokesmen had contended the conflict might prevent members of their faith from serving as election judges.

The celebration, preparations for which commence earlier in the day, also might keep others from the polls.

London Gives Hint of Troop Aid in Korea

Brussels Pact Nations May Consider Joint Reply to Lie's Appeal

London, July 17 (AP).—A qualified informant today hinted that British Tommies will be sent to the side of hard-pressed American GIs in Korea.

"More than just a token force is needed from us and other United Nations members in the long campaign that seems to lie ahead in Korea," said the source. "We are committed to helping. This country does not shirk its commitments."

At the same time the five Brussels Pact powers—Britain, France, The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—unexpectedly called a meeting of their defense ministers for Thursday.

Informed diplomatic sources said the five defense ministers probably will consider jointly the request of U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie for military aid, especially ground forces.

May Respond as Group

Some diplomatic informants thought it possible the five allies might decide to respond to the Lie appeal as a group. In that way they would show that their union is not a mere paper pact. By acting together, also, they might be able to get together more than a token force.

The task of the five ministers, who will meet at Fontainebleau, near Paris, will be to see how much the five nations can send to Korea in view of the need of defense in Europe.

Political observers in Paris said they expected the French government would consider Lie's appeal with sympathy but would beg to be excused on the plea that it already has 125,000 French and colonial soldiers tied down in Indo-China. The fighting there for four years has been a drain on the French military establishment that the United States is trying to relieve.

The hint of possible British land aid in Korea was given after the cabinet met in a special session and discussed the whole Asian situation with Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies, British Field Marshal Sir William Slim, chief of the imperial general staff, and Admiral of the Fleet Lord Fraser.

The informant refused to say whether the cabinet had de-

Nehru Appeal for Settlement Appears Headed for Failure

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Prime Minister Nehru's appeal for a "peaceful" settlement of the Korean war appeared headed for failure yesterday, and for at least two reasons:

1. The United States insists that the only possible settlement is one which first gets the North Korean army back behind the 38th parallel, as the Security Council ordered. Nehru wants Communist China seated on the Security Council without further delay.

2. The British government has backtracked from its previous attitude of supporting Communist China's membership and of rounding up the necessary votes from other nations. Now the British say they will vote for seating Communist China only if the necessary majority of six other votes is in sight; otherwise they will abstain.

This suggests that the majority of seven will be unobtainable while the Korean fighting continues. France is actively opposed to seating the Communists now; Egypt, Cuba and Ecuador, among the other Council members, show no sign of budging from their previous opposition.

As for the United States, it sticks to its announced stand that it will vote against seating the Chinese

Service Secretaries Form Organization

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Formation of a new top level "executive committee" at the Pentagon to deal with the political-military aspects of the Korean fighting and cold war was announced yesterday.

Known as the "Joint Secretaries," the organization consists of Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Secretary of the Navy Frank Matthews, and Secretary of Air Force Thomas Finletter. It serves as a counterpart to the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the top civilian level in the Department of Defense.

Pace, youthful former director of the Bureau of the Budget, acts as chairman of the group, which has been meeting two or three times a day during current crisis.

The three Secretaries announced the new steps to achieve faster and better coordinated action by the Army, Navy and Air Force at yesterday afternoon's press briefing. Pace explained the group handles problems that "have broad scale international political implications" beyond the purely military matters that confront the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It grew out of informal meetings of the three arranged shortly after Pace became Army Secretary and Finletter was named Air Force Secretary this spring. So successful has it proved in filling a gap in joint defense planning, the officials said, that now it appears to be a permanent though not entirely formalized body.

Recommendations made by the "Joint Secretaries" are referred to Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson or—if within their authority—simply carried out individually by orders to their own departments.

As the organization was announced, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson disclosed the creation of the post of "Assistant to the Joint Secretaries" and the appointment of Edward T. Dickinson, jr., to the post. He has been with the ECA here.

Among the subjects considered by the Joint Secretaries so far, are the military aid program, allocation of funds between the armed forces, the opening and closing of various service hospitals and problems of censorship. Stepping-up of psychological warfare is on the agenda, Pace said.

All three secretaries refused to comment on the question of expanding the armed forces by calling out the National Guard and the Reserves and a new draft call. The matter has been under discussion with the White House, but "no specific answers" can be given "right now," Pace said.

Military spokesmen expressed continued confidence yesterday that the Red invasion can be slowed down and stopped in the rugged mountains of southern Korea, so that a counteroffensive can be mounted.

From now on the North Koreans will be attacking up hill, he said, toward a high mountain ridge running northeast to southwest about 35 airline miles from yesterday's front. This ridge—about 100 miles by air from Pusan—is the next good defensive point now that the Kum River has been crossed. Some ground "delaying positions" lie between the front and the ridge.

One difficulty with the new line being prepared is that the Kun River runs through it, but the mountain heights afford good artillery emplacements and observation points. Besides the frontal assault down the main railroad, the defenders have to guard against envelopment moves down the western rail line and through the mountain passes in the center of the peninsula and the east coast.

The Army spokesman would not predict where the front would be stabilized, and said it might not be possible at the ridge. Some military men predict that we will be driven back into a perimeter defense around Pusan before the tide turns.

But the Army spokesman and other officials say flatly that a line will be stabilized and that we will not be driven out of Korea.

Dickinson, the new aide to the Joint Secretaries, is a 39-year-old New Yorker and Yale graduate. Early in the war, he was with the WPB, and entered the Marines in 1943. Assigned to the OSS, he spent three years in Europe. A vice president on leave from Universal Pictures, he has been ECA member of the Foreign Military Assistance Coordinating Committee.

"Greenglass then turned over to Gold classified information he had secured from the atom bomb project at Los Alamos, where he was stationed at the time as a soldier.

"After Fuchs and Gold were arrested in February and May, 1950, respectively, Rosenberg warned Greenglass to leave the country and supplied him with substantial funds in $20 bills to do so.

"He instructed Greenglass to surreptiously obtain a passport to Mexico, travel to Switzerland and thereafter report to the Soviet Embassy in Czechoslovakia."

Shortly thereafter, Greenglass was arrested by the FBI. This arrest was announced on June 16.

Hoover asserted in this connection:

"The gravity of Rosenberg's offense is accentuated by the fact that through his implication in the espionage ring as a native-born American citizen he aggressively sought way and means to secretly conspire with the Soviet government to the detriment of his own country."

The FBI director added that the inquiry to date indicated that Rosenberg made himself available to Soviet agents "so he could do the work he felt he was slated for" and in order to "do something to directly help Russia."

After working for a number of Manhattan electrical engineering firms, he was employed as junior engineer in the War Department's Signal Service in Brooklyn. In 1940, he was transferred to the Signal Corps in Philadelphia as an assistant engineering inspector.

The FBI said he was removed as associate engineering inspector by the Secretary of War in February, 1945, on the recommendation of his commanding officer "on the basis of information indicating Communist Party membership." He made several unsuccessful attempts to be reinstated.

Air Merger Approved in CAB Order

By the United Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday issued an order approving the sale of American Overseas Airlines to Pan American World Airways for $17,450,000 cash after a Federal judge removed the final legal barrier.

The sale involves 17 AOA planes and several routes between the United States and Europe. The CAB's order includes new assignment of air routes to Pan American and to Trans World Airlines, now its only U. S. trans-Atlantic rival.

Both Pan Am and TWA are authorized to serve Paris, Rome and London. Paris and Rome are added to the Pan Am itinerary and London to TWA's.

TWA also is authorized to serve Frankfurt so long "as the interest of the American occupation of Germany" requires the service. Pan Am also gets AOA's former routes to Scandinavia and Germany.

Since all details of the sale had been completed pending official approval, the merger is presumed to go into effect almost immediately.

South Koreans Urged to Turn Guns on Yanks

Tokyo, Tuesday, July 18 (U.P.)—Communist North Korean radio broadcasts today told South Korean army officers that if they surrendered all would be forgiven and they would be welcomed with open arms.

One of the broadcasts urged the South Koreans to turn their guns against the United States, "which is trying to destroy Korea."

The "forgive and forget" message came from Communist Premier Kim Il Sung, who also laid down these points:

1. The three weeks of fighting so far have been conducted to the advantage of North Korean forces.

2. The North Korean army has no intention of unifying the country through military forces, and—had not the United States intervened—unification of the country already would have been completed.

3. The government of President Syngman Rhee, the National Assembly and the South Korean army chief of staff no longer exist because they are controlled by the United States.

In urging the South Korean soldiers to "listen to the wish of their parents and family" and surrender, Kim warned that those who did not give up would be wiped out by the "People's Army."

Communist broadcasts by the Seoul radio today said American planes had destroyed 1000 residences in the former South Korean capital and had wiped out one-third of the town of Pyongtaek, a rail head 27 miles south of Seoul.

The Red radio, monitored here, said that North Korean air units downed two American planes in the attack on Seoul in which "hospitals and cultural facilities" were hit and "many civilians" were killed.

The broadcast said North Korean guerillas had captured several villages near Kyongju, 16 miles south of Pohang on the east coast, "disposed of reactionaries" in the villages and were conducting propaganda to win over the populace.

New 'Truman Committee' To Scan Supplying of Troops

A new 7-man Senate Defense Investigating Subcommittee, modeled after the famed "Truman committee" of World War II yesterday was set up at the Capitol.

The new unit, designed to keep a watchful eye on the conduct of the Korean war, was created by the Senate Armed Services Committee under Congressional Reorganization Act powers.

The committee unanimously adopted a resolution by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.), calling for more detailed surveillance of the operations of the national military establishment.

Armed Services Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) said he will appoint the seven members in a day or two. He declined to say whether he will head the new group.

"We are going to see to it that the boys doing the fighting in Korea, or in any other sector where fighting may break out, receive the best weapons and support this country can provide," said Tydings.

In asking the Armed Services group to set up the seven-member investigating unit, "somewhat" like the committee Harry Truman headed, Senator Johnson said the country faces "a grave national emergency."

"In the minds of all of us there is at least the strong possibility that we may be approaching World War III."

Tydings and Johnson said the defense investigating subcommittee will have a $25,000 reserve to draw upon, under a previously passed resolution authorizing it to carry out its Reorganization Act powers.

Johnson said the effect likely would be to cut off other "indiscriminate" investigations and to "focalize in one place the time-consuming appearances of our military and defense leaders," he said.

The Texan predicted the inquiry "will result in increased efficiency of operation on the part of the national military establishment, with resultant savings in lives, money and national effort."

Saying many "imbalances" may exist between the services and the weapons and men available to them, he added:

"I personally do not believe we have time for criticism at the present moment. It is important that there be cooperation and coordination between the Congress and the military establishment."

Marines Will Rout Reds, Sergeant Promises

"When the Marines get over to Korea, it will be a different story."

The way 280-pound, red-headed former Master Sergt. Elias Ludington of the United States Marines said it yesterday you had to believe it.

The broad-shouldered, bull-necked leatherneck is not just "garrison gassing." He left Washington late yesterday for Camp Pendleton, Calif., where he will rejoin the Marines' famed First Division. Much of the division is now on its way to the Korean front.

Now 36, "Red" terms himself a "professional Marine," having been one for 18 years. "I'm like an old plowhorse. I see the boys go and I want to go, too. You know, once a Marine, always a Marine."

"This looks like the big thing," Ludington declared, between chaws of tobacco. "It's no place for green troops and green officers like we have in Korea now," he explained.

"We're going to miss the old Marine Corps officers who retired after the war. We'll miss 'em. There were lots of good ones," he noted.

"Marine officers are with the men. There's real esprit de corps."

The Washington Post
M/SERGT. ELIAS LUDINGTON
. . . "It'll be a different story"

Ludington has some right to make comparisons. He started his military career back in Chicago in 1930 with a three-year hitch in the Army, right after he got out of high school.

Then for a year he looked for a job, but "there was a depresson." He joined the Marines, put in eight years overseas including service in China during the Panay incident and now once again has signed up for a six-year enlistment. He is married and lives with his wife at 1901 M st. ne. They have no children.

In the last war, he was a tank chief in the "First Divvy," keeping the 33-ton-Sherman tanks running. Yesterday he told the Marine Recruiting Station officials he would join up only if he could return to the same division. They took him up on it.

Brazilian Youths Seek To Enlist for Korea

Porto Alegre, Brazil, July 17 (U.P.). "Dozens" of Brazilian youths have volunteered to fight in Korea and refuse to accept "no" for an answer, U. S. Consul Alexander I. Peaslee announced today.

Peaslee said he hoped to receive instructions from Washington soon but warned the youth the Brazilian government also would have to approve their leaving the country.

Army Cuts IQ Requirement For Volunteers; It's Now 70

The Army yesterday lowered its mental qualifications for volunteers down to the level of that required of draftees.

The service announced that henceforth an intelligence test grade of 70 will be acceptable, instead of the previous 90. Last week about half the number of volunteers here were turned away for inability to make the 90-grade in the General Classification test.

The other services have not changed their minimum grades.

The Navy yesterday gave the go sign to volunteers who had held the grade of seamen even if they had dependents. Previously only those in higher ranks were acceptable.

At the same time, it slowed up action on applications for commissions. The local recruiting office was directed to accept forms only from physicians, dentists and nurses and a limited number of legal men until a backlog of applications for other officer assignments are processed.

Recruiting continued quite heavy yesterday. The Coast Guard had 19 applicants and accepted two; the Marines sent six men to camps—three reenlistments, two volunteers accepted last week and one reservist returning to active duty; the Army-Air Force had 97 applicants and 22 enlistments and the Navy shipped 12—four reenlistments, two volunteers, and six servists entering active duty.

Adm. Hickey Named Navy Information Chief

The Navy yesterday named its third information chief since the outbreak of the Korean war. He is Rear Admiral Robert F. Hickey.

Hickey was named acting chief of information in place of Rear Adm. Hugh H. Goodwin, who returns to an assignment on the Navy General Board.

Anti-Histamine Sales Restricted by Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 17 (AP). Bermuda, where most people ride bicycles and automobiles are limited to 20 miles an hour, has banned the sale of anti-histamine drug except on doctors prescriptions.

The reason: the Board of Health said users of the drug might fall asleep at the wheels of their cars.

Nurses Remain

Miss Higgins Directed to Leave Korea

MARGUERITE HIGGINS
. . . Ordered to leave Korea

Tokyo, Tuesday, July 18 (U.P.).—Marguerite Higgins, a correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, has been ordered out of the Korean battle area as part of a plan to remove all American women from Korea except nurses, an Army spokesman said today.

He said the plan was originated by Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander and head of United States forces in Korea.

"This is just not the type of war where women ought to be running around the front lines," the spokesman said.

Walker's plan provides for the removal of all American women from Krea except nurses, who will be kept in the rear areas to treat battle casualties, he added.

United Press Correspondent Gene Symonds reported from the Korean front that Miss Higgins received orders from Walker last night to proceed immediately to rear area headquarters and thence to Japan.

The orders did not give any reason for her explusion, and Miss Higgins planned to confer with Walker to see whether the orders could be rescinded, Symonds reported.

Herald Tribune Says Order Is Wrong, Unfair

New York, July 17 (U.P.).—The New York Herald Tribune tonight issued the following statement in connection with the U. S. Eighth Army's action in ordering Marguerite Higgins, Herald Tribune correspondent, to leave Korea:

"The Herald Tribune is shocked by news that Marguerite Higgins has been ordered out of Korea. She has been responsible for some of the best coverage of the war since the third day of the invasion. We believe the decision to force her return to Tokyo is wrong and unfair in view of the outstanding job of reporting she has done. Newspaperwomen today are willing to assume the risks and in our opinion should not be discriminated against. We hope she will be allowed to continue work.

"Whitelaw Reid, editor."

With U. S. Army on Taejon Front, July 17 (U.P.).—"We must have killed thousands of them. You just couldn't miss."

Lieut. A. Dianda of Marquette, Mich., wiped away the sweat and dust that rolled down his forehead into his bloodshot eyes.

"One machine gunner must have killed 250 of those Reds in 15 minutes," he said. "They were piled up like cordwood in front of his guns."

Dianda commanded a front-line position along the Kum River during Sunday's savage battle in which thousands of screaming North Koreans threw themselves in suicidal attacks against the Americans.

"We were dug in on a dike when they opened up on us about 4:30 Sunday morning," the young lieutenant said. "Their artillery and flat trajectory fire didn't hurt us much but we had to keep our heads down.

Attack Follows Barrage

"The first attack came right behind the barrage. This first group of North Koreans carried only knives and hand grenades. They swam the river, scrambled up the banks and came right into our foxholes where we'd ducked for cover. As fast as they'd clean out one foxhole they'd move into another in sort of leapfrog fashion."

When the Reds had cleared an area of about 300 yards, the main attack followed, Dianda said.

"They poured out of woods on the other side of the river in groups of about 70 yelling 'Banzai! Banzai! Banzai!' and running straight at us."

The hawk-nosed lieutenant took another swipe at the grime on his forehead as he recalled the battle.

"They were all well uniformed and every fifth man carried an automatic weapon. They tried to come through the hole they had made in our front-line defenses, but we were ready for them. We had the area zeroed in with heavy mortars and artillery and blew them to bits at point-blank range.

"From 6 until 8 a. m. they kept coming out of those woods and we kept blasting away at them."

Reds in Full Retreat

Dinada said that not only did the Americans halt the attack, but by 10 a. m. they had the Reds in full retreat.

"They broke and ran, firing over their shoulders as they went," he said. "None of them offered to surrender and we just poured everything we had into them."

Dianda told ruefully then how the American flanks caved in and the Americans had to pull out the best they could.

"They overran a front-line aid station and killed allour wounded," he said. "Our chaplain stayed with the wounded until the end and they killed him. We tried to get all the walking cases out but the litter cases couldn't be moved. They were all murdered by the Reds."

Dianda looked thoughtfully northward, where the sound of battle still echoed.

"Lots of us didn't know why we were over here fighting," he said grimly. "But we know now. We are going to even this score and give those —— the lesson they deserve. Lots of good Americans have to be avenged, and we are going to do it no matter how long it takes."

Communist Jet Fighters Seen Near Chongju; U.S. B-29s Strike Again From Seoul to Kum

UP IN SMOKE—"Several spans probably were destroyed," says the Department of Defense in releasing this photo yesterday of American B-26s scoring direct hits on bridges near Samchok, on the east coast of South Korea where Reds established a bridgehead in the early days of the war. Air action took place July 7-8, Defense officials said

Tokyo, Tuesday, July 18 (AP).—Communist jet fighter planes were reported seen Monday near Chongju on the American front. General MacArthur's communique gave no hint as to whether they were in action.

It was the second time within a week that North Korean jets have been reported. A week ago, MacArthur's communique said three Russian-made Yak-15 jets made their debut in the aerial warfare on July 10. The enemy jets so far have played no decisive part in the aerial fighting.

MacArthur's communique today said "a number" of the Communist jets were sighted near Chongju but did not indicate whether they were on the ground on in the air.

The planes were described as smaller than the American F-80s which have been raising such havoc with North Korean troops, their equipment and supplies.

The enemy jets had swept-back wings, stubby fuselages and broad noses.

American planes, including jets and B-29s, meanwhile, hit the Reds from Seoul to the Kum River area. Good to excellent results were reported.

Strafed Red Transport

The fighter planes strafed North Korean transport in carrying out their around-the-clock missions. They struck all the way from Seoul to the Red breakthrough south of the Kum. Trucks crawling southward, enemy tanks hugging road banks for protection, railroad locomotives and buildings were blasted.

Tom Lambert, Associated Press correspondent reporting the fighter foray from an American air base in Japan, said some strikes were at almost tree-top level. The pilots, he reported, roaded in so low they almost scraped trees and hillsides.

The fighter pilots reported destroying three Red tanks, 17 trucks and two locomotives and damaging 30 trucks. They shot up several buildings believed to have been sheltering Communists.

Making their second big strike of the war, the B-29s smacked targets at Seoul with 400 tons of bombs Sunday. A Far East Air Force communique said more than 50 of the big planes participated. Jet F-80 fighters gave them cover.

Railroad marshaling yards, shops and other buildings were in the target area. The shops were left burning and main rail lines were severed. Heavy flack was encountered but the planes returned to their base. Several Russian-made Yak fighters were reported over the area but they avoided a fight.

One flight of the B-29s hit closer to the battlefront, dumping 70 tons of bombs on the Chungju area. Bridges, roads and Red troop concentrations were the targets. Excellent results were reported.

The B-29s made their first strike of the Korean war on July 13 when they bombed Wonsan, a rail center and port on the east coast.

Yugoslavia Wants Peace With Russia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 17 (AP).—Milovan Djilas, a top Yugoslav spokesman, proclaimed the hope today that all questions in dispute with Russia and the Cominform "could be settled by agreement without damage to the sovereignty or prestige of any one of them."

But at the same time he denounced the Cominform's "heightened campaign of lies and threats and organization of various sallies against our land."

The scholarly and influential member of the Yugoslav Politburo spoke before more than 1000 delegates to a Yugoslav "National Congress of Peace" in the semi-circular hall where Parliament meets.

"There is today no power which can break our peoples in their struggle for independence and friendship with other peoples . . . for equal rights of small and big peoples, for backward and developed lands," declared Djilas.

Yugoslavia stands on this position, he added, "as a rock of granite . . . in a flood of diverse lies, fabrications and threats."

Yugoslav "forces—political, economic and military—do not threaten another country," he continued, and have no plans or "secret or public obligations or agreements with any foreign government or any political group" which threaten any other country in any way.

Djilas denied Cominform charges that Yugoslavia favored dividing up Albania with Greece, declaring his country always desired that Albania be "free and independent."

Push 'Truth Campaign' Now, Ethridge Committee Urges

By The Associated Press

President Truman's Advisory Commission on Information says the Korean war has made it imperative that a "campaign of truth" to other nations be stepped up.

It wants action before Congress adjourns because, it said, Russia is putting out propaganda that borders on "open psychological warfare."

The five-man commission submitted its recommendations to the President on July 14, just a day after Mr. Truman asked Congress for an 89 million dollar program for counter-propaganda against Communist nations.

"A psychological offensive by the United States based on truth," the commission said, "is essential if the United States is to succeed in its foreign policy objective."

Created 2 Years Ago

Headed by Mark Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, the commission was created nearly two years ago. It was to develop and recommend to the Secretary of State information policies and programs intended to give other countries a better understanding of the United States.

Congress passed a law providing for the commission.

Last week's letter to the President, released by the White House yesterday, said the commission wanted to tell Mr. Truman of "its feeling of the emergency of the immediate step-up in our whole information program directed to people of other countries."

Among the factors that warrant action by Congress before adjournment are these, the commission said:

"The time element is such that the United States must move as rapidly as possible. We do too little now and next year may be too late in many areas.

"The propaganda effort of the U. S. S. R., now bordering on open psychological warfare, is a major threat to this Government's foreign policy objectives."

Funds Too Little, It Says

Present funds of the United States Information Service are insufficient, it said.

"The Korean aggression," the commission said, "has made it all the more imperative that we intensify our efforts to give the true picture of America, her intentions and her actions, than it has ever been before.

"The commission feels that the field for that sort of information is even more fruitful than it has ever been because the Kremlin has revealed itself and its intentions more clearly than at any time since the end of the war.

"Now is the time to marshall the determination of the peoples of the free world not to succumb to this vicious ideology which promises Utopia but gives chains."

In addition to Ethridge, the commission members are Mark A. May, director of Yale University's Institute of Human Relations; Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters; Philip D. Reed, chairman of the General Electric Co., and Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor.

Parley Opens At Saigon on Speeding Aid

Saigon, Indo-China, July 17 (AP).—American and French military and diplomatic leaders met here today to step up the fight against communism in strategic Indo-China.

They began their talks amid new acts of terrorism by Communist-led Viet Minh guerillas in and near Saigon. The war in Korea added to the urgency of the meeting.

The opening 4-hour session reportedly covered a general review of the political and military situation in Indo-China. It was the first full plenary meeting of American and French military and diplomatic experts since President Truman's announcement of increased United States aid to France for Indo-China.

Since December, 1946, French forces have been waging a see-saw campaign to rid the country of Communist-led guerillas.

John Melby, chief of U. S. mission to Indo-China; Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, head of an American military advisory team, and Donald Heath, U. S. Minister in Saigon, were among some 40 officials attending the meeting.

Would-be assassins seriously wounded French Police Commissioner Charles Rivera in a daylight grenade and pistol attack yesterday in the heart of Sagon. About 12 others were injured by the explosion of three terrorist grenades. The attackers escaped.

Russia Speeds Defense On Far East Borders

London, July 17 (U.P.).—Russia is intensifying strategic preparations in the Soviet Far East and is tightening defenses all along her eastern coastline from Kamchatka, opposite the Aleutians, to Vladivostok, British experts on Russian affairs said today.

They estimated the Soviets have some 35 divisions in the Far East, supported by armor, airborne units and strong air forces. More than 20 Russian air bases and at least six naval bases are said to have been developed in the area.

These bases, the reports said, stretch from Siberia to Sakhalin and the former Japanese Kuriles Islands in the east to Manchuria and China in the south.

Reports reaching London also said Soviet efforts to step up production in the Far Eastern regions and to develop their network of communications there were being speeded up.

Moscow radio said last week the Mongolian Peoples Republic, bordering on Siberia, has built "first-class highways and roads" with the help of the Soviet Union. It emphasized the "exceedingly great importance" of the first railway linking the Mongolian center of Ulan Rator—less than 400 miles from the Manchurian border—with the Soviet Union.

The Trans-Siberian Railway, now double-tracked, is undergoing further extension, according to reports reaching British experts.

Soviet Far Eastern defense, according to sources here, is based on two chief centers—Chita, in the southern corner of Siberia, near where Russia, Mongolia and Manchuria meet; and Khabarovsk on the important Amur, close to the Manchurian border.

According to British sources, the whole area is closely covered with air bases, extending from Chita to the north and east and southeast into Manchuria, Mukden and to Port Arthur in Dairen.

The Russians were believed to have more than 4000 planes in the entire area. Airbases cover the entire coastline from Vladivostok, just above North Korea, to Magadan, dominating the Sea of Okhotsk in the north.

Kamchatka Peninsula has an air base on the east coast of its southern tip at Petropavlovsk, according to British sources. Two other air bases guard the newly acquired Kuriles—one at the northearn island of the group, on Paramushiro Jima, and the other at the southern tip at Etorofy Jima.

The island of Sakhalin, one of Russia's most important oil supply centers in the Far East, also is guarded by two air bases. The latter was established since the island's occupation by Russian forces after the Japanese surrender.

Funds Slash May Miss ECA

Marshall Plan funds may be entirely exempted from the Senate economy bloc's drive to slash nondefense spending an additional 10 percent, some of the proponents of the cut said yesterday.

An amendment adding ECA to the list of exempt agencies is expected to be offered by Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.).

Busy counting noses for the 10 percent pruning, sponsors of the cut were reported ready to accept the Smith amendment rather than risk defeat of the entire slash.

The 10 percent amendment, clipping more than 600 million dollars off the already sharply reduced 34.6 billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill, was originally signed by 30 Republicans and five Democratic Senators.

Smith and several other Senators who signed it said they could not cast their vote for it unless the ECA modification is made.

Already cut 10 percent in committee, ECA, and some other agencies, like the State and Commerce Departments, would be cut about 20 percent if the added slash were imposed.

Smith said he favored "drastic cuts" in all spending except for military "and related activities—such as the ECA—which strengthen our national security."

In joining the bipartisan economy bloc, Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) said he also reserved the right to support an ECA exemption.

Senator James E. Kem (R., Mo.), nonetheless introduced an amendment to cut Marshall Plan funds, $1,950,000,000, or more than 718 million dollars below the amount approved by the Appropriations Committee.

Kem said he opposed giving Marshall Plan countries vital materials that may be needed in the Korean war.

Gen. MacArthur Tells Press To Take Up Censor Job Itself

Tokyo (Tuesday), July 18 (U.P.). Gen. Douglas MacArthur today told the press to take upon itself the task of censoring war news and leave the Army free to fight.

MacArthur commented on the censorship question in a reply to a telegram from Milburn P. Akers, managing editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, announcing that newspaper's decision not to mention American troop movements.

MacArthur called such self-censorship "welcome support to this command."

"It reflects the most commendable determination to fulfill the responsibility which the press alone should assume in an emergency such as this—a responsibility which it may not effectively share with any other segment of society, least of all the military, not trained in journalism, and which should deovte its entire energies to the conduct of military operations.

"There is probably no more misused nor less understood term than press censorship. Contrary to what many believe, no precise rule can make it effective, nor were any two military censors ever in agreement on detail.

"If its purpose is to be served, censorship must be of the spirit and applied only by those themselves who print the news. Its objective is not to mislead or misrepresent the truth, as that is repugnant to the basic concepts of a free society, but rather to avoid printing information of direct military value to the enemy or such as may contribute through underemphasis or emotional stress psychologically to his cause by raising the morale of his forces while depressing that of ours.

"The formula is a simple one and one which all men of normal understanding may easily comprehend and apply.

"The contention of some that the military must take the responsibility of laying down fixed rules governing the limitation upon news and pass upon each item before it is printed is as unrealistic as it is ineffective.

"It may be a little rough at first, but I am confident that in the end the men who have built the great and free press of the modern world will not fail the responsibility which falls upon their segment of society in the task to which all segments are jointly committed—the victorious advance of American and Allied arms."

Troop Aid in Korea Hinted by London

cided positively to offer British soldiers for use in Korea.

Prime Minister Attlee is expected to make a full public statement after consultations with other British Commonwealth members and the partners in the Brussels Pact.

These consultations already have begun. British Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell flew to Paris yesterday and discussed European defense and the Korean problem with French Premier Rene Pleven and Defense Minister Jules Moch.

The British already have sent naval forces to Korea. So has Canada, another Commonwealth member; and Australia has sent air forces.

The British have not shown themselves eager to send troops, however. Atlee told Commons recently that Britain already is holding a big part of the western line in Asia by maintaining a garrison in the island colony of Hongkong and waging a military campaign against Red guerillas in Malaya.

The British strength in Malaya is something like 20,000 men, including Malayan troops and Gurkhas. The garrison at Hongkong is believed to be between 30,000 and 40,000.

The British also must maintain forces in Germany, Austria, Trieste and at home, and now have a strong force at Suez.

Argentina Plans to Aid, Awaits MacArthur Word

Buenos Aires, July 17 (AP).—Argentina today said she is waiting to hear from General MacArthur on what aid he wants from this country in Korea.

A communique said Argentina intends to "fulfill the obligations she contracted as a member of the United Nations."

The announcement, made after a long conference of President Juan Peron and his Ministers of Defense, Army, Navy and Foreign Affairs, did not necessarily mean that Argentina would send troops. Observers considered it more likely she would be asked to contribute foodstuffs and shipping.

Argentina's army of 100,000 consists largely of conscripts. The only career men are officers and noncommissioned officers.

Army's New Artificial Hand Deemed 40-60% Efficient

A crew of Army men, working quietly for four years, yesterday unveiled its first major product—the universal hand.

The prosthetic device is almost indistinguishable from the real thing and has a comparable efficiency of 40 to 60 percent, according to the developers, the Prosthetic Research Laboratory of the Army Medical Center here. It is the seventh in a line of steadily improving models.

Virgil Pittman, 24-year-old former Air Force buck sergeant of Indianhead, Md., demonstrated the deft facility of the mechanical hand for newsmen yesterday. He lost all but a short stump of an arm in an auto accident last November.

Facilities Joined

Lieut. Col. Maurice J. Fletcher, laboratory director, told how the project to help amputees was developed. Back in October, 1945, an artificial hand laboratory was opened and about six months later this was blended, with other phases of research, into the Prosthetics Laboratory.

After hundreds of studies of existing material on artificial limb design gave little hope for a really successful hand, the laboratory set about on "completely fundamental research in the development of prosthetic devices."

The first major work is the mechanical hand. Its development involved studies of exact positioning and curvature of fingers, anthropomorphic characteristics, size and coloring and also mechanical phases such as pressure required for security of grasp, ease of maintenance and movement, tolerable weight, practical methods of manufacture and cost.

Mechanical Thumb

The developed device has a mechanical thumb, index and second finger, and operates on a voluntary motion basis with a built-in automatic lock for greater security of grasp.

While this research was going forward, plastic workers were concentrating on a cosmetic glove to cover the mechanism—one which would be tinted to match a person's skin tones, was easily cleanable and readily replaceable.

The Washington Post

To provide individuality, the workers added small skin blemishes, freckles and nail bruises and threaded in nylon matched to the patient's hair.

This accomplished, amputees tested the hand in all ways of daily life, in each case making some reference to the hand, and in most situations, the public was unaware the hand was not real, Colonel Fletcher said.

One amputee, a ticket-taker in a theater, accidentally singed a portion of the hand. A patron, spotting the mark, declared:

"That looks like the same ailment I have. If you like, I'll give you the name of a good ointment to cure it."

Ship Line Stock Claim Upheld

By The Associated Press

The United States Court of Appeals ruled in effect yesterday that the Government must restore ownership of the Dollar Steamship Lines, Inc., Ltd., (Delaware), now known as the American President Lines, Ltd., to former stockholders.

The Federal Maritime Commission claimed the company had surrendered 92 percent of its stock to the Government to satisfy seven million dollars in debt to the United States. The Dollar company, however, contended the stock surrender was merely a pledge to secure the debt.

A Federal District Court here had held the stock now belongs to the Government, ruling that the 1938 stock transaction was an outright transfer.

The Appeals Court yesterday overruled the District Court and held the stock transaction to be only a pledge to secure the debt. During the war the Dollar company repaid all outstanding debt and stockholders asked for the stock back.

Justice Department attorneys said yesterday's decision undoubtedly will be taken to the Supreme Court for review.

As part of the deal in 1938, in which the Dollar firm transferred the stock to the Maritime Commission, the commission and Reconstruction Finance Corporation made loans to the firm to put it back on its feet.

inal sums for "demonstration or institutional purposes."

The $26,900,000 cash provided for direct "Point Four" technical assistance was in addition to the five million dollars previously voted for the Institute of Inter-American Affairs and the $2,600,000 for technical and cultural activities under the Smith-Mundt bill.

Thus, $34,500,000 all told would be available for "Point Four" and related activities, only $500,000 short of the amount recently authorized by Congress.

In his letter to Chairman McKellar, President Truman requested the $26,900,000 added cash, but added: "If you find that the figure cannot be increased beyond $25,000,000, I would regard that as being sufficient to meet the most vital needs of this important program."

The committee voted the higher figure.

In asking the Senate to lift other proposed restrictions on the program, Mr. Truman sent the committee a memorandum explaining why a limitation on administrative expenses wouldn't work.

"The Economic Development program is a program of providing technical training and technicians," the memo said in part. "Appropriated funds will be expended almost entirely . . . for salaries, travel and allowances of technical personnel and trainees. Under such a program it is difficult to define and isolate 'administrative' costs as distinct from 'program' costs."

The memorandum also explained why the President opposed the ironclad ban on construction projects under the program, saying at least nominal amounts should be spent for demonstration projects.

Said the White House memo:

"The experience of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs has demonstrated that in connection with projects in such fields as health, sanitation, basic education and food supply, it is extremely helpful to provide demonstrations or pilot plants.

"These are generally financed by the local government with some help from the United States. This stimulates further activity by the local government and provides a basis for expansion at its own expense."

Discharges Frozen By Guard in Georgia

Atlanta, July 17 (U.P.).—Adjt. Gen. Ernest Vandiver, jr., froze discharges from the Georgia National Guard today.

He said the action was taken to halt a "tremendous" increase in requests for discharges and resignations. Vandiver said he issued the order with full approval of Gov. Herman Talmadge and National Guard officials in Washington.

Hobbs Bill on Aliens Passes

By a roll-call vote of 326 to 15 the House yesterday adopted the long-stalled Hobbs bill to permit the Justice Department to jail subversive and criminal aliens awaiting deportation.

The measure was taken up out of order—a procedure that requires a two-thirds vote for approval.

Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.), said the measure would apply only to aliens who are prostitutes, procurers, narcotics dealers or subversives, or who have served more than a year and a day in jail.

Deportation orders, he said, are now outstanding against more 3000 persons in these categories but the hands of this government are tied because the countries of their national origin refuse to receive them, and meanwhile the Justice Department has no authority to jail those believed to be dangerous to national security.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (D., Pa.) of the House Judiciary Committee termed the bill unconstitutional"

"Representative John McCormack (D., N. Y.), House majority leader, asked what consideration opponents were giving to the rights of Americans threatened by these criminal aliens, arbitrarily ordered out of Communist countries.

Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.) said the Commissioner of Immigration reported 102 alien subversives ordered deported were still at large, 20 lost track of. Sponsors said the bill would have prevented Gerhart Eisler, a former top Communist in this country, from escaping last year.

Conferees Agree Upon Old-Age Bill

Specific language to place five million non-farm self-employed persons—the baker, the grocer, etc.—and one million domestic servants under old age insurance was agreed on yesterday by a House-Senate conference committee.

The committee acted speedily as it held its first meeting to iron out differences in separate bills passed by the two legislative bodies aimed at a vast expansion of the Federal social security program.

It passed over, for a later decision, the problem of bringing regularly employed farm workers into the program. It also will consider later other categories of workers for inclusion.

Chairman George (D., Ga.), of the Senate Finance Committee said the group will write a compromise bill this week. It may be passed finally by Congress and sent to the White House by August 1.

The final bill appears likely to:

1. Bring about 10,000,000 more working people under the old age and survivors insurance program for a total of 35,000,000 to 45,000,000.

2. About double benefits to many aged persons and dependent children. Top family benefits might be jumped from $85 a month to $150. The benefits are drawn by insured persons upon reaching 65, or by their dependents, based upon payroll taxes paid by the insured during working years.

3. Boost payroll taxes.

Hastie Judgeship Nomination Gets Committee O. K.

President Truman's nomination of William H. Hastie as Federal Circuit Judge for the Philadelphia region was approved yesterday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Committee Chairman Pat Mcbeen bottled up in committee for Carran (D., Nev.) refused to reveal the vote. The nomination has several months. It now goes before the Senate, which generally follows committee recommendations.

Hastie, former Governor of the Virgin Islands, is serving under a recess appointment. It is the highest legal post ever attained by an American Negro.

Opposition to his appointment for the Third Circuit, covering Philadelphia and surrounding states, was based on charges he had been a member of the left-wing National Lawyers Guild and other alleged communist front organizations.

Abolition of Electoral College Defeated in House, 210 to 134

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The House yesterday defeated, 210 to 134, a Senate-approved resolution for the submission of a constitutional amendment abolishing the electoral college system of electing the President and Vice President.

If adopted by three-fourths of the several States, the proposal would have substituted for the 150-year-old electoral college system a plan to designate the President and Vice President on the basis of a proportionate division of the popular vote among the competing party candidates. Under the old system all a State's electoral votes go to the candidate winning the majority vote.

Republicans and Northern Democrats teamed up against the proposal, which needed a two-thirds majority to send it to the States for ratification.

Lined up against the proposal were 115 Democrats, 93 Republicans, one Democratic-Liberal and one American-Labor Party member. For it were 87 Democrats, mostly from the solid South, and 47 Republicans.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.), Republican leader, led the fight against the resolution, denouncing it as a "political Pandora's box." He said it would result only in "encouraging the development of splinter parties."

"It could lead to the loss of the two-party system," Martin declared.

Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.), who backed the proposal, said it was aimed at correcting the present "hocus-pocus method known as the Electoral College which makes a mockery of our democracy."

Gossett explained the proposal, backed by the House Judiciary Committee, had to be called up under suspension of the rules because it was refused the green light by the House Rules Committee.

Fairfax County Hit-Run Death Appeal Granted

An appeal to a Fairfax County Circuit Court decision in a fatal hit-and-run case was granted yesterday in Richmond by Justice Willis D. Miller of the Virginia Supreme Court.

The Associated Press reported the appeal petition was filed for James R. Bryant, who asked reversal of the trial court verdict awarding $7500 damages to Carl P. Bare, administrator of the estate of James Coleman Bare.

James Bare, 65, of Route 1, Fairfax, was killed on February 27, 1948, in Fairfax when he was hit by a truck while walking along Route 211 between Camp Washington and Centerville.

Bryant was owner of the truck allegedly driven at the time of the accident by Cecil I. Davey, 34, a farm worker of Route 1, Clifton.

The petition denied that Bryant was liable for damages resulting from Bare's death, and contended that Davey was using the truck for personal business and not in connection with his employment.

Engineers' Brotherhood Head Retires

Cleveland, July 17 (AP).—Alvanley Johnston stepped down today after 25 years as grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and the union elected James P. Shields to succeed him.

Shields, first assistant grand chief engineer since February, 9146, won the job as head of the 81,000-member BLE over Roy E. Davidson of Calumet City, Ill., an assistant grand chief engineer for the past three years.

The Brotherhood's triennial convention, in session since June 5, is expected to end in a few days.

Shields, who succeeds the 75-year-old Johnston, is a native of Neoga, Ill., and now lives in Cleveland. He started railroading in 1906 as a fireman on the Michigan Central Railroad at Michigan City, Ind. He became a locomotive engineer in 1916. Before his appointment to temporary assistant grand chief in 1939, he had been a vice chairman and later general chairman for the BLE on the eastern district of the Union Pacific Railroad.

Subcommittee Democrats Call McCarthy Charges 'Hoax'

not a report, to make in a few days.

The majority report called McCarthy a liar—never using that word, but almost every other synonym in the book—with respect to every major charge he made. On almost every page of the report, there were comments of "falsehood," "hoax," "fraud," "completely dishonest," "penchant for misrepresentation," "distortion," "misquotation" and "character assassination."

The three Senators cleared, specifically and in detail, 7 of the 10 persons against whom McCarthy hurled his most violent and serious charges of pro-communism. The subcommittee majority dismissed the cases of the other three on grounds that they were never, or not for some years, Government employes.

In addition, the majority delved into McCarthy's "numbers game," and concluded he lied when he said he knew the names of 205, and later, of 57 card-carrying Communists in the State Department.

As for his famous "81 cases," the report said they were grounded in antiquity, and taken from a 2¾-year-old list that had long since been investigated to the satisfaction of four Congressional committees, the FBI, the State Department loyalty board and the President's Loyalty Review Board.

However, the report said, McCarthy pretended he got the information recently, from "loyal" employes who smuggled it out to him, and thus he "misled and deceived the Senate" into sanctioning an investigation.

Find No Amerasia "Fix"

The majority went on to make a 52-page study of the Amerasia case, involving Government documents stolen in 1945. Contrary to McCarthy's allegations, they insisted categorically there was no evidence of a "fix" in the prosecution of the case, and clear evidence that the Justice Department and other Federal agencies concerned had acted with all diligence, honesty and effectiveness within the limits of what was possible.

Finally, the three Senators issued a furious answer to McCarthy's charges, begun almost at the outset of the inquiry and repeated incessantly ever since, that they were "whitewashing" the accusations.

A principal purpose of his continual cry of "whitewash," the Senators said, "was the necessity of creating the impression that our inquiry was not thorough and sincere in order to camouflage the fact that the charges made by Senator McCarthy were groundless and that the Senate and the American people were deceived."

McCarthyism Exposed

McCarthy could not substantiate any of his charges about any one of the 205, 57 or 81 Communists he said were in the State Department, the report declared.

"Certain elements rallied to his support, particularly those who ostensibly fight communism by adopting the vile methods of the Communists themselves. . .

"Senator McCarthy and McCarthyism have been exposed for what they are—and the sight is not a pretty one," the majority report said.

It concluded with a series of recommendations including one for the creation of a bipartisan public-private commission to study the Government's loyalty program, and another for the creation of a Congressional committee to study the immunity from libel action enjoyed by members of Congress in respect of statements they make on the floor of the Congress or before Congressional committees.

"Our experience in this investigation," the majority said, "indicates that this privilege (of immunity) extended us should not become a license for the character assassination of American citizens."

To all this, Senator McCarthy yesterday had a brief and pungent reply. In four paragraphs of purple epithets of his own, McCarthy cried that the report "is a green light to the Red fifth column in the United States."

"It is a signal to the traitors, Communists and fellow travelers in our Government that they need have no fear of exposure from this Administration . . .

"In its dying gasp the Tydings-McMahon half of the committee is attempting to give birth to the most evil fraud that has ever besmirched and dishonored the good name of the United States Senate . . .

"The Tydings-McMahon half of the committee has degenerated to new lows of planned deception. The result of their work is a clever, evil thing to behold," McCarthy said.

Lodge Hits Omissions

Senator Lodge's complaint in his report was that the investigation proceedings "often lacked impartiality; the atmosphere was too often not that of seeking to ascertain the truth."

"The subcommittee's record is a tangle of loose threads, of witnesses who were not subpenaed, of leads which were not followed up," the Massachusetts Republican said.

His report made no explicit criticism of McCarthy's tactics or methods. Nor, with the exception of the Service and Lattimore cases, did it make any judgement on the validity of McCarthy's many charges.

Lodge said he read only a few of the 81 loyalty files made available to the subcommittee, because they were "in such an unfinished state as to indicate that an examination of each file would be a waste of time."

On Amerasia Case

Lodge devoted most of his report to a study of the Amerasia case. He posed a series of questions which, he complained, had been left unanswered but which were vital for a real judgment on the situation.

His principal query boiled down to why the Government, which began an investigation of the Amerasia matter with great fervor, ended with only a "timid and apologetic" manner of pushing the prosecution of those involved, particularly the magazine's editor, Philip Jaffe, and his supplier of classified Government documents, former Navy and State Department employe Emmanuel S. Larsen.

Like the majority, Lodge also proposed creation of a bipartisan commission. His, however, would be given the explicit duty of investigating the question of disloyalty among State Department employes.

He argued that a Congressional committee of Republicans and Democrats could not possibly do a conclusive investigation of the subject.

Position on Lattimore

Lodge's argument by which he found no evidence to prove the McCarthy accusation against Lattimore was difficult to follow.

Discussing the testimony of former Communist editor Louis F. Budenz, Lodge said on the one hand that "it may . . . be hard to understand" why Lattimore was so low on the list of names Budenz gave to the FBI—not until a few weeks after McCarthy made his charges—when Lattimore had allegedly been described to him as such an important Communist.

But on the other hand Lodge said he entertained no suspicion whatsoever that Budenz was insincere or untruthful to the subcommittee.

The fact, however, that Lodge in effect cleared the John Hopkins professor and Far Eastern authority of McCarthy's charges, as did the Democratic majority, was particularly significant. For McCarthy had declared that he would "stand or fall" on the Lattimore case, and let it serve as a pilot demonstration for the remainder of his accusations.

He said he was willing to be viewed as a "discredited witness" with respect to his whole campaign if the Lattimore charges did not stand up.

"Puzzled" by Budenz

In their 25-page study of the Lattimore case, the subcommittee majority was less charitable to Budenz, the principal witness who professed personal knowledge that Lattimore was a Communist.

"Only since this investigation, and the publicity concerning Lattimore in connection therewith," they said, "has Budenz given information to the FBI concerning Lattimore, even though Budenz has been reporting for several years to the FBI on various Communist activities and personalities.

"We feel that there is significance in the fact that Budenz, at the time of preparing (an article he wrote for Collier's magazine concerning Communist influence on American China policy) did not present Lattimore in the same light that he did at the time he testified before us.

"Similarly in the case of Haldore Hanson, Budenz admitted that Hanson was named by him (to the FBI) as a Communist for the first time during the course of our proceedings.

"Both Lattimore and Hanson would seem to have been such logical subjects for a report by Budenz to some Government agency that his failure to make such a report is necessarily puzzling; particuuarly in view of the fact that he reported them after the extensive publicity given the matter in the course of the McCarthy charges."

The majority noted that "every possible unfavorable twist has been applied to the information concerning Lattimore by those presenting it against him. These misrepresentations are clear and demonstrable."

Kohlberg Cited as Source

In discussing the Lattimore case and that of the career diplomat John S. Service, the majority pointed out how the trail of most of the accusations against them originated with one Alfred Kohlberg, wealthy importer of Chinese textiles, and a leading and vocal supporter of the Nationalist Chinese Government of Chiang Kai-shek.

The first attack McCarthy made against Lattimore, it was noted, consisted almost entirely of an article written by the Rev. James F. Kearney, S.J. But, according to the report, Father Kearney told the FBI the principal source of his information on Latimore was Kohlberg.

Similarly, Lattimore's other principal accusers, Budenz and Freda Utley, had been in considerable association with Kohlberg. Also, the charges relating to Lattimore's connection with the research organization, the Institute of Pacific Affairs, seemed to the subcommittee to be "a continuation of (a) private battle" between Kohlberg and the institute.

Service Case Examined

In the case of Service, the majority noted that McCarthy's charges were based almost exclusively on an article written by Immanuel S. Larsen about the Amerasia case in the magazine Plain Talk, of which Kohlberg is founder, owner and publisher.

The investigation showed that the Plain Talk article which appeared under Larsen's name was only in part written by him. The rest, and those parts quoted by McCarthy and containing the allegations, appear to have been written by Isaac Don Levine and possibly Ralph de Toledano.

"The fact that these persons have been reported to us as professional 'anti-Communists' whose incomes and reputation depend on the developing and maintaining of new Communist fears, while not deemed necessarily significant, has not been overlooked by the subcommittee," the report said.

"We are also cognizant of Alfred Kohlberg's reported close connection with the regime of Chiang Kai-shek and his financial stake in the eventual victory of the Nationalist government."

Levine's alleged rewrite of Larsen's article, which was the first and principal alleged expose of the Amerasia case to the public, is, if true, "one of the most despicable instances of a deliberate effort to deceive and hoodwink the American people in our history. Such conduct is beneath contempt," the report said.

"Fallacy" Demonstrated

The report referred to the criticisms of Service made by former Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley. He contended that Service plugged the cause of the Chinese Communists when Service was on duty during the war in China.

The majority of them compared the reports of Service with the statements of Hurley himself about the proposition that the Chinese guerillas were in fact not dominated by Russia and that the Kremlin was taking a cooperative line toward United States policy in China.

In the light of those comparisons, the majority concluded, "it would appear that the shoe of 'procommunism' would appear to fit the foot of Patrick Hurley more snugly than it does John Service.

"Yet we reject with all our being any suggestion that Patrick Hurley is anything other than a loyal American. . . .

"It is this illustration that to us best proves the fallacy of the method as well as the danger to the United States of hurling unfounded charges against a man's honest reporting."

Famed Church Calls Son of Ex-D.C. Canon

The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, jr., son of the former canon of Washington Cathedral, has accepted a call to St. Bartholomew's Church, Park ave. and 15th st. in New York City.

In an announcement made from St. Bartholomew's pulpit on Sunday, Edward Ridley Finch, senior warden of the vestry, said Mr. Stokes had been chosen from 35 candidates.

Mr. Stokes' father, the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, is a well-known clergyman, writer and educator, who resigned from his Washington Cathedral post in 1939 after 15 years, to devote his time to writing. His three-volume history of "Church and State in the United States" was published in May of this year by Harper and Brothers.

The younger Mr. Stokes has been rector of St. Andrew's Parish in Honolulu since 1945. Before that he was rector of Trinity Church, Columbus, Ohio, for eight years.

Alas, Weather To Be Just As Hot Today

A hot, humid sunny morning, a thunderstorm in the afternoon, and general discomfort all day is in prospect for today.

In other words, the weather will be about the same as yesterday.

The storm cooled the air down to 74 degrees at 4 p. m. Yesterday's low was 71 at 3:25 p. m. The weatherman called it fairly typical summer weather with maximums about three degrees above average.

A weak cold front now out west should make the weather a bit cooler but just as damp Wednesday, the weatherman said.

Highlights of Probe Report

Some of the highlights of the report of the three Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommitttee which investigated Senator McCarthy's charges of Communist infiltration in the State Department:

"At a time when American blood is again being shed to preserve our dream of freedom, we are constrained fearlessly and frankly to call the charges, and the methods employed to give them ostensible validity, what they truly are: A fraud and a hoax perpetrated on the Senate of the United States and the American people.

"They represent perhaps the most nefarious campaign of half-truths and untruth in the history of this Republic.

"For the first time in our history, we have seen the totalitarian technique of the 'big lie' employed on a sustained basis . . ."

"It is, of course, clearly apparent that the charges of Communist infiltration of and influence upon the State Department are false. This knowledge is reassuring to all Americans whose faith has been temporarily shaken in the security of their Government . . ."

"We have seen the character of private citizens and of Government employes virtually destroyed by public condemnation on the basis of gossip, distortion, hearsay, and deliberate untruths . . . This has been done without the slightest vestige of respect for even the most elementary rules of evidence or fair play, or, indeed, common decency.

"Indeed, we have seen an effort not merely to establish guilt by association but guilt by accusation alone. The spectacle is one we would expect in a totalitarian nation . . . It has no place in America . . ."

"The false charges made in this case have succeeded in accomplishing to a great degree what the Communists themselves have been unable to do. These charges have created distrust and suspicion at home and raised serious doubts abroad."

"From the very outset of our inquiry, Senator McCarthy has sought to leave the impression that the subcommittee has been investigating him and not 'disloyalty in the State Department'. The reason for the Senator's concern is now apparent. He had no facts to support his wild and baseless charges, and lived in mortal fear that this situation would be exposed . . .

"Starting with nothing, Senator McCarthy plunged headlong forward, desperately seeking to develop some information, which colored with distortion and fanned by a blaze of bias, would forestall a day of reckoning."

Tydings Committee Majority Findings

Below is a summary of the findings of the Democratic majority—Senators Tydings (Md.), Green (R. I.) and McMahon (Conn.)—of the special investigating subcommittee on the persons Senator McCarthy charged with having Communist leanings or a Communist record. In addition, there is a summary of Senator Lodge's (R., Mass.) findings on the two individual cases he chose to discuss.

Mrs. Esther Caukin Brunauer: "The evidence against Mrs. Brunauer, under impartial examination, reduces itself to the fact that she was a member of one organization five years before it was cited as a Communist front, and that in 1934 and 1936, over 14 years ago, she participated in two meetings sponsored by a pro-Soviet organization of which she was not a member . . .

"The conculsion is inescapable, on the basis of our inquiry, that there is no evidence that Mrs. Brunauer is disloyal, a Communist sympathizer or a security risk."

Gustavo Duran: "In view of the fact that his employment in the (State) Department ceased (in October, 1946) before the loyalty program was instituted, we do not feel that a discussion of him is merited. . ."

Haldore Hanson: "We are constrained to point out that the information used by Senator McCarthy to uphold his allegations that Hanson is a man of 'pro-Communist proclivities' and has 'a mission to communize the world' fails in credibility, relevancy and competency. . .

"The quotations from Hanson's book, unfairly presented and grossly misinterpreted in the first instance, when subjected to examination, fail miserably as proof of any pro-Communist leaning on his part.

"The only testimony before us indicating that Hanson may have had any Communist connections is that of Louis Budenz, which leaves us, to a degree, in wonderment.

"He testified that it is his strong 'impression' that Jack Stachel told him orally that Hanson was a Communist. He recalls no details. He first reported to the FBI his alleged conversation with Stachel relative to Hanson about a week before testifying before us and, therefore, several weeks after Hanson was publicized as a pro-Communist by Senator McCarthy's allegations.

"In the face of the results of the FBI investigation and the Loyalty Board's review of the . . . case, and in consideration of the evidence before us, we cannot accept Mr. Burenz' hearsay testimony as controlling . . .

"We do not find Hanson to be disloyal, or a man with pro-Communist proclivities or a mission to communize the world."

Philip C. Jessup: "The facts before us fail completely to establish that (he) has 'an unusual affinity for Communist causes' or is a 'dupe' of anyone . . .

"The record contains striking evidence of concrete facts which conclusively demonstrate that Dr. Jessup is actively opposing the aims of communism by deeds as well as words. He has the faith and trust of great Americans, such as Generals Marshall and Eisenhower, who know him by his actions during recent years when men's loyalty and integrity have been put to the test.

"This subcommittee feels that the accusations made against (him) are completely unfounded and unjustified and have done irreparable harm to the prestige of the United States."

Dorothy Kenyon: "While the number of admitted affiliations by Miss Dorothy Kenyon are sufficient to suggest at least a high degree of naivete and perhaps gullibility, American standards of justice and fair play have not deteriorated to the point that our citizens become disloyal on the basis alone of their affiliations with organizations found to be subversive several years after the affiliations, particularly in the case of Communist fronts which are deliberately designed to deceive and hoodwink the unsuspecting.

"In the case of Miss Kenyon, we have been especially impressed by the fact that, during the period of the Hitler-Stalin pact, she opposed the program which the Communist Party insisted be acquiesced in by its followers. We do not find that her employment in the past by the State Department is evidence of the fact that the department has employed disloyal persons."

Owen Lattimore: The Majority: "We find that Owen Lattimore is not now and never has been in any proper sense an employe of our State Department . . .

"Far from being the 'architect of our Far Eastern policy,' we find that Mr. Lattimore has had no controlling or effective influence whatever on that policy . . .

"We find no evidence to support the charge that (he) is the 'top Russian spy' or, for that matter, any other sort of spy . . . We do not find that (his) writings follow the Communist or any other line, save as his very consistent position on the Far East may be called the Lattimore line . . .

"We should be remiss in not commenting on the manner in which the charges against (him) have been presented. As in the case of other phases of our inquiry, we have seen a distortion of the facts on such a magnitude as to be truly alarming."

Senator Lodge: "Whatever conclusions are to be announced in this case . . . must be based both on hearsay evidence and on incomplete investigation, and are inescapably tentative . . .

"In these circumstances, the only possible conclusion is that the investigation which the subcommittee conducted—and which was . . . definitely limited in its character—not only failed to prove the allegation that Mr. Lattimore was a Communist; it also clearly failed to prove the charges that he was either 'the architect of our Far Eastern policy' or 'one of the top Communist agents in this country'."

Frederick L. Schuman: "Our inquiry establishes that Dr. Schuman has never been an employe of the State Department. In fact, his one and only connection with the department in any way was to deliver a one-hour lecture without remuneration at the Foreign Service Institute on June 19, 1946."

John S. Service: The Majority—"We have carefully considered the evidence and conclude that (he) is neither a disloyal person, a pro-Communist, nor a security risk . . .

"We must conclude that Service was extremely indiscreet in his dealings . . . a fact which he himself readily admits."

Senator Lodge: "I believe that Service in the Amerasia case was most indiscreet in his associations, which were entered into in an apparently rapid, thoughtless, and undiscriminating manner . . .

"There is no proof of disloyalty and no rumor against his character."

Harlow Shapley: "Our inquiry establishes that Dr. Shapley is not an employe of the Department of State in any real and proper sense."

John Carter Vincent: "We have carefully reviewed the loyalty file concerning Mr. Vincent, and the McCarthy charges [that he was a 'big Communist' and 'part of an espionage ring'] are absurd. The file does not show him to be disloyal or a security risk."

Nehru Peace Appeal Seen Facing Failure

Communists, but will not use its veto to prevent a majority from doing so. Ambassador Philip C. Jessup said only a week ago that the United States did not regard the veto as applicable on membership questions.

In any event, the whole question appears academic now, since a majority of the Council clearly does not want the Communists seated at this time.

Nehru made no direct mention of Communist China in his appeal to Secretary Acheson last Thursday, but his sister, Mrs. Vijaya Pandit, the Indian Ambassador, was able to make his position clearer during a 10-minute talk with Acheson yesterday.

The Indian position is that no "deal" or bargain has been proposed, but that the prompt seating of Communist China in the U. N. would help to win Asian opinion, would help to keep Communist China out of the Korean war, and might help to get the North Korean forces back where they belong.

Acheson Drafting His Reply

After seeing Mrs. Pandit, the Secretary put the finishing touches on his reply to Nehru's appeal, and at lunch time had an opportunity to discuss the draft at the White House with President Truman.

The reply is sure to reflect the respect felt here for Nehru as leader of the greatest non-Communist power of Asia and as a moral force in his own right. It is also sure to express the Secretary's deep concern to keep the Korean war from spreading.

But the reply will be firm, and will remind Nehru that the fighting in Korea is in response to an order by the Security Council, approved by India and supported by most of the non-Soviet world.

The main subject of Ancheson's talk at the White House was believed to have been the President's coming messages rather than the reply to Nehru. Acheson spent most of Sunday at the State Department with his chief assistants, going over drafts of material for the President's statements.

Meanwhile, Premier Stalin's note to Nehru, communicated by Mrs. Pandit, confirmed the general belief here that nothing would come of the present "peace" efforts as long as Communist troops were making headway in Korea.

Not Anxious to Expand

Some officials thought the tone of Stalin's note showed that he was not anxious to expand the Korean war into a world war now. At the same time they felt Stalin was out to extract every possible diplomatic and propaganda advantage from the American retreat down the Korean peninsula.

In American eyes, the Stalin note was an obvious bid to get the Security Council to reconsider its order of June 27, and to do so with the maximum obstruction and trouble-making from the Communist powers.

Moreover a published version of the Stalin message spoke of "the necessity to hear representatives of the Korean people," thus suggesting that the real Koreans had not been heard. Actually the U. N. position is that Ambassador John M. Chang of South Korea, who was heard on June 25 and 27, represented what the U. N. Assembly had called the only "lawful" government in Korea.

The U. N. has refused to regard the North Korean regime as lawful because it refused to hold free elections under U. N. supervision.

Truman to Stress Points

These points and others are bound to be made in direct or indirect reply to Stalin at the proper time, possibly in the President's forthcoming messages. The intent will be less to convince Stalin than to keep the record straight in the eyes of world opinion—and it is a good record, American officials are sure.

If anything will influence Stalin's future course, officials here believe, it will not be diplomatic statements from Washington, but rather the long-awaited and hoped-for stand of the MacArthur forces around the port of Pusan.

Cool Reception in U. N. For Nehru's Proposal

Lake Success, N. Y., July 17 (U.P.). India's plan for a negotiated peace in Korea on the basis of Russian Premier Joseph Stalin's reply to New Delhi's offer of mediation drew a cool response in the United Nations tonight.

A spokesman said that Secretary-General Trygve Lie had not been informed on the exchange of notes between Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Pandi Nehru and Stalin and the texts of the interchange were not available here.

Concensus among delegations here was that if the Chinese Communist claim to a seat were submitted to the Security Council now, it would receive not more than three votes—India's, Yugoslavia's and, if they would end their boycott, the ballot of the Russians. Seven votes are required.

Lie was understood to be ready to use the U. N.'s conciliation and mediation machinery but only under two conditions:

1. That North Korea comply with the Security Council's resolution of June 25, ordering it to cease fire and withdraw its forces to the 38th parallel.

2. That the Chinese representation issue be unencumbered by any outside considerations, as Lie said at a press conference last week, such as "events in Korea, or boycotts, or ideologies or questions of recognition or non-recognition."

Truman to Tell War Needs To Congress on Wednesday

there would "be no rationing of foods, especially basic foods."

There have been predictions that Mr. Truman will ask Congress for controls over such basic materials as steel, curbs on consumer credit, and an increase in taxes. No confirmation has come from the White House.

Some Authority Already

The President already has power to authorize Secretary of Defense Johnson to call up the National Guard and to order reservists to duty. If any action of that kind is planned, the announcement probably will be contained in Wednesday's message.

Senator Lodge, in his speech on the Senate floor yesterday, said that Soviet Russia had developed a foolproof procedure whereby, unless we intervene effectively, "they cannot lose and we cannot win." He continued:

"The procedure is simply that, with no cost in manpower to themselves, they impel a mercenary native army to aggression and thus confront the United States with two alternatives, one of which is ruinous and the other of which, though necessary, is bad.

"The ruinous alternative of ignoring the aggression—of turning our back on an international rape—we properly rejected. The other alternative was to send our armed forces to stop the aggress and liberate the invaded country. This we are rightly now trying to do."

"At best, this is a bad (though unavoidable)) alternative because it commits thousands of our young men for at least many months until local victory is secured, after which our forces must remain to prevent repetition of aggression. At worst, it could mean thousands of casualties without victory. In any case the cost to the Soviets has been nil.

Ruhr Called Objective

"If the procedure now used by the Soviets in Korea is repeated in Indo-China or Iran or other places on the rim of the Soviet empire, we would have even larger numbers of young men bogged down in equally unprofitable adventures. The Soviets would then be in a perfect position to make their main effort at the No. 1 objective, which is probably the Ruhr, or at their No. 2 objective, which is probably Japan. And we would be unable even to send significant reinforcements because of being bogged down in these peripheral theaters.

"With the Ruhr and Japan in their grasp, the Soviets would have an industrial potential under their control which might well convince them that they could go to war with the United States with good chance of success. It is generally accepted that the Soviets will have enough atomic bombs to strike a rugged blow at the United States in 1952-53. The Korean aggression, therefore, followed by a similar procedure in other places, and leading up to the seizure of the Rhur and Japan later on, would conclude with the atomic climax of 1952-53. it all fits neatly into the time schedule and coincides with what we are told about the Soviet plane-gun-tank building program."

Senator Lodge said that the United States would then be isolated enough and weakened enough to be ripe for plucking, and the Soviets would have won World War III without even fighting one major engagement with the United States with their own troops."

The Massachusetts lawmaker said there was a way to prevent the tragedy and that was by the immediate mobilization of American manpower and industry.

In this case FEELING IS BELIEVING

No, the eye does not tell everything—not in this instance.

True, it tells you ROADMASTER is smart. It tells you it's big. It shows, if you watch closely, that this brawny beauty rides level and unperturbed even when road-roughness has its wheels fairly dancing.

A glance may even indicate how much lolling comfort there is here—what wide-open freedom passengers and driver know in this gay traveler.

But how can the eye tell you how you feel touching off the great power that's under this broad bonnet?

How can it reveal the silken, swift-mounting surge of oil-cushioned take-off—smooth, silky, unbroken, as Dynaflow Drive works its magic?

Even when you watch a ROADMASTER settle down to a long steep pull and crest the top going away, how can it tell you what thrill your spirits get from such ability?

And what can it say of the lift that's yours traveling in a beauty that catches all eyes, swivels passing heads, marks you by its very lines as traveling in as fine a car as any man can ask for?

No, these things you have to feel for yourself, and we're delighted to help you do so.

Your Buick dealer wants you to know about ROADMASTER firsthand—wants you to drive it, try it, feel it out.

It doesn't cost a cent to arrange such a trial. It can do a lot toward opening your eyes to the day's highest standard of fine-car feel and fine-car action—not to mention "why pay more?" prices.

How about seeing your dealer right away?

Yanks Still Holding Taejon

way yards at Chechon, Wonju and Ansong. Others dumped explosives on Seoul's Kimpo airfield in a return visit.

The announcement came at a time when Taejon's hours seemed numbered and signs mounted that the American defenders of South Korea were beginning a wide withdrawal toward a foothill line 35 miles southeast.

North Korean Communists in ten-to-one superiority pressed on from their Kum River bridgeheads close upon Taejon. But latest field reports said the Americans still held the nearly deserted city.

An Air Force communique issued at 12:25 p. m. (10:25 p. m. E.S.T. Monday) said 230 combat sorties were flown between midnight Sunday and midnight Monday (Japan Daylight Time). In addition, transports carried more than 95,000 pounds of supplies and 81 men from Japan to Korea.

Of the 230 combat sorties, 180 were flown by speedy Lockheed jets in support of desperately fighting ground troops. Douglas B-26 light bombers joined this effort, hitting targets close to the front.

The communique noted that pilot reports on damage to Red vehicles had not been evaluated and might include some duplication. In addition to the 21 tanks and 143 trucks, the pilots reported 12 other vehicles, two locomotives, 13 railway cars and three bridges damaged.

Results of the Superfort strikes were reported as ranging from fair to good. The big bombers also hit Imwonjin on the east coast between Samchok and Utchin.

Good weather favored Monday's operations by the fighters and light bombers in hammering frontline Red targets. No United States or Australian planes were reported lost or damaged.

General MacArthur's communique issued at 12:35 a. m. Tuesday, (10:35 a. m. Monday, EDT) said American troops in the "Kongju-Taejon-Nonsan triangle" had withdrawn to new positions "north and west of Taejon.

This triangle is more than 20 miles wide on each side, embracing an area of more than 200 square miles.

The Americans seemed headed toward more defensible terrain and away from the flat paddy land—where Red armor and superior numbers have been so effective.

In Washington, an Army spokesman said the next American stand might be on a high ridge some 35 miles southeast on the road to Kumchon. He intimated delaying actions would be fought all the way back.

Kumchon is 35 miles northwest of Taegu, road-rail hub north of the supply port of Pusan, and is about 40 miles southeast of Taejon.

Taejon airfield, three miles north of town, was abandoned Monday.

North Korean Army headquarters—without mentioning specific areas—said today its forces are engaged in "mopping-up" operations along the east coast, the Pyongyang radio reported.

General MacArthur's communique yesterday said South Korean forces supported by American artillery and air power had stopped two North Korean advances in the east coast sector.

Almost since the June 25 start of the war Taejon has been the South Korean provisional capital and the military command-supply hub for American frontline fighting.

But it was abandoned several days ago in both capacities.

The picture was less grim elsewhere.

General MacArthur's communique Monday afternoon (Tokyo date) said an air-ground attack on a Red invading force north of Yongdok on the east coast was a "catastrophe" for the Communists.

The size of the Red force—which fled—was not given. The same communique said South Koreans in the Yechon area, supported by a United States artillery unit, attacked numerically superior Red forces, stopped them cold and forced them on the defensive.

The main Red blows, however, fell around Taejon, where the Communists cracked the Kum River line. Stunned by the ferocity of the American rearguard fight and apparently able to get little armor across the Kum's blasted bridges, the Reds nevertheless inched relentlessly forward.

MacArthur pointed out that the Reds have averaged only about six miles a day advance since the war started even "including the virtually unopposed march to Seoul," which they took before United States forces entered the fight.

The Reds were heavily supported by artillery but had few, if any, tanks and were paying a high price for the gains. As of Monday, MacArthur said only two tanks got across the Kum, and they were destroyed.

Red tanks and troop concentrations were reported a score of miles north.

The Red Second division apparently was trying to turn the north flank of the United States forces around Taejon.

MacArthur said a "potential 1500 guerillas" were in the South between Yongyang and Yongchon. This would put them near the main suppy lines from Pusan.

Infantry Officer, 24, Killed by Korean Shell, Is First District Man to Die in War

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

A few days ago he was an APO number, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco.

Yesterday the word came that Second Lieut. Howell G. Thomas, jr., 24—home address: 3449 17th st. nw.—succumbed in a Tokyo hospital, the first District man to die in the Korean fighting. An enemy artillery shell cost his life.

The man behind the APO number, the man who died in a far, foreign land once known chiefly as a place where missionaries went, was a sandy-haired, good natured, six-footer.

He was born in New York. When he was a year old, his grandmother went from North Carolina to take care of him while his mother was ill.

Remembering him then, as she saw him for the first time, his grandmother. Mrs. Albert L. Shumaker, said yesterday he had been "a kind of thin and tall baby."

He was a good baby, too, who never cried for his mother, she said, in her dry-eyed grief. "Not until she came home. He cried then, because he knew what he had missed."

The mother, Mrs. Marguerite Walker Thomas, died in 1945. Maybe it was just as well, said Mrs. Shumaker, he was an only child and she would know what she would be missing. She never wanted him to be a soldier. It was with the greatest reluctance that she gave her permission for the boy to join the Air Cadets in 1941, Mrs. Shumaker said.

LT. HOWELL G. THOMAS, JR.
. . . War wounds prove fatal

Upstairs was Thomas' father, grief stricken. Father and son and grandmother had been making their home together.

It was at dinner time Friday in the comfortably furnished home that a telegram came saying that Lieut. Thomas, jr.—known by his friends as "Jerry," by his family as "Sonny"—had been slightly wounded. It was about 9 p. m. Saturday that another telegram arrived saying he was on the critical list.

About 2 a. m. Sunday the father managed to talk by telephone with the nurse at the Tokyo hospital where his son lay.

The Airborne Infantry officer called "Sonny," who had been caught in the blast of an artillery shell on Friday and suffered a fractured skull, a shoulder wound and injuries to his side, had not recovered consciousness. The nurse gave the father no encouragement.

Yesterday, late afternoon, the elder Thomas, a telegrapher for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, received a telephone call from the Adjutant General's office in the Pentagon.

The boy who liked spaghetti, and could cook it; the boy who shared his father's interest in jazz records; the boy who would get down on the floor with his father and their stamp albums, had passed away.

He had gone to Powell Junior High and Central High schools here, graduated from Fishburne Military Academy in Waynesboro, Va., in 1943; attended Virginia Military Institute for a year before joining the Air Force, and once had been grounded for stunting.

After World War II, he had gone to George Washington University for a year, been a cheer leader in 1948 and loved it. Then he had gone back to the Army, and in September, 1949 to Japan.

The last letter had been undated. It was short and obviously written in a hurry. The APO postmark was July 3, and began: "Dear Folks—Don't worry. Everything fine. . ."

The newest Korean war casualty list yesterday listed three Americans killed in acton, one dead of wounds, five wounded, three injured and six missing. Lieutenant Thomas was the only man from the Washington area listed. They brought the total of identified casualties to 25 dead, 102 wounded, 42 injured, and 27 missing.

Hershey Hints Second Draft Call Soon

make up his mind, if they want another 20,000 men in October. It takes 60 days to get the draft machinery rolling on each call," he warned.

Asked whether the exemptions may be altered, General Hershey said this, too, is in the laps of the defense chieftains.

Veterans Exempted

The present draft law, which generally exempts veterans and those with dependents, can continue the flow of 20,000 men a month, Hershey declared. If this number is to be stepped up substantially, however, such exemptions must be acted on by Congress, the general pointed out.

"We can produce 20,000 men a month indefinitely. There are new persons reaching the draft age in numbers sufficient to keep the calls. The present rate is about 100,000 a month going into the 19-year-old bracket," he explained.

Another reason why the draft probably will be repeated, Hershey pointed out, is the President's authorization for the armed services to build up to authorized strength. "They can't get up to it without more calls," he declared.

Guard May Be Called Up

Also in the back of his mind are reports that the National Guard may be ordered out. Many units are at half strength and General Hershey feels the draft may be called on to fill in the ranks.

Other sources, outside the Selective Service System, indicated work has been started on a second call of about 20,000 men to be filled by the end of October.

A draft of 20,000 men for the Army is underway with a completion date of September 30 as the deadline. Locally, "greetings" have gone to 50 men to report for pre-induction physicals next Monday, the first step in the filling of a 101-man quota for Washington.

The men are directed to report to the Army Recruiting Station, 403 10th st. nw., at 7:30 a. m. for physical and mental tests.

Additional letters will be sent out in groups of 50 by the local draft boards for subsequent call-ups on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. In all, about 450 will be called to allow for an expected high rejection rate.

In Maryland, the State's first draft candidates took their physicals yesterday to meet the quota of 294. Thirty-seven from three Baltimore boards were in the group. These will be augmented later by another 400 from Baltimore and 550 from other local draft boards.

Air Generals to Korea

Tokyo, July 17 (AP).—Two Air Force generals have arrived here to assist in planning strikes against North Korea. They are Maj. Gen. Francis L. Ankenbrandt, Chicago, and Brig. Gen. Raymond C. Maude, Framingham, Mass.

25 Apartments Are Looted

to the belief that it was all the work of one burglar.

Smith said the apartment front doors were opened by inserting a thin blade between the door frame and the door, and pushing back the bolt of the spring lock.

Most of the apartment projects in the area, Smith added, were built by the same builder and used similar locks.

Generally, only one or two apartments in each project were worked over. At 2301 N. 10th st., however, five apartments, running from the basement to the fourth floor, got the treatment.

The area of operation, Smith said, forms a rough triangle with the legs about one-half mile long. Thieving was particularly brisk in the 2100 block of Key blvd., the 1500 block of N. 17th st., a project on the corner of 10th st. and Lee blvd., in the 2300 block of N. 10th and 11th sts., and in the 2100 block of Lee blvd.

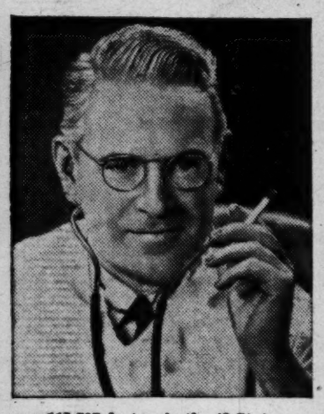
HOW MILD CAN A CIGARETTE BE?

As disclosed in a Nationwide Survey:

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS than any other cigarette!

An actual fact, not a guess...a thorough national poll, not just a spot check! 113,597 doctors were asked: "What cigarette do you smoke, Doctor?" The brand named most—CAMEL!



113,597 doctors in the 48 States polled by 3 leading independent research groups!

BROADWAY SONGSTRESS DECIDES FOR HERSELF! PATRICIA MORISON, star of musical comedy, reports: "I made the Camel 30-Day Mildness Test. It was the one sensible test I've read about. Smoking Camels for 30 days proved to me how mild a cigarette can be!"

Yes, family physicians—surgeons—throat specialists—doctors in all branches of medicine had the same direct question put to them. Just like yourself, doctors smoke for pleasure, too! They were asked to name their personal choice in cigarettes. And, among all these doctors, the brand named most was Camel!

If you're already a Camel smoker, it's easy to understand this preference among doctors. If you're not—we ask you to test Camels for your own smoking enjoyment. But make it a sensible test! Not a "quick-trick" test where you're asked to take one puff of this brand—then one puff of that. Not just an exhale of "A" cigarette and an inhale of "B".

We ask you to test Camels as your steady smoke—for 30 days. Judge Camel's choice tobaccos on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. Use your own "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) as your proving ground. Compare Camels for mildness—for flavor. Then decide! When you make the 30-Day Test, you'll know why . . .

MORE PEOPLE SMOKE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE!

Cross Section, U.S.A.

"THE 30-DAY TEST certainly made sense to me! Pack after pack, day after day, Camels proved they agree with my throat!" Aqua skier, Margie Fletcher.

RADIO ANNOUNCER, George Ansbro: "Throat irritation doesn't go in my job. I smoke Camels. Cool, mild Camels are right for my throat!"

COLE PORTER, famed song writer: "Camels scored a hit with me years ago. A great-tasting smoke! And Camels are mild—good and mild!"

COWGIRL, Mitzi Lucas Riley: "I made my own 30-Day Test and Camels have been my steady smoke ever since. Nothing tastes quite so good as a Camel!"

NOTED THROAT SPECIALISTS REPORT ON 30-DAY TEST OF CAMEL SMOKERS...

Not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking Camels

Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

Make your own 30-Day Camel MILDNESS Test in your "T-Zone"
That's T for Throat, T for Taste. See how mild a cigarette can be.

TV COMEDY STAR, PETER LIND HAYES, GIVES HIS VIEWS

"I've watched lots of folks on television try different cigarette tests. The only one that makes sense to me is the Camel 30-Day Mildness Test. I tried it! Camels proved they suit me—puff for puff, pack for pack!"

Fairfax Study Set For Second Stage

Survey Reveals

Immaturity Causes Many Car Crashes

It's the emotional nut behind the wheel that causes many of today's traffic accidents.

So reports Marion Gleason of Rochester, N. Y., following his scientific search for the human factor in automobile accidents.

Seven types of drivers who never matured emotionally are listed by Gleason in his report in the current issue of Today's Health, published by the American Medical Association.

You may not see yourself listed in the seven, but a lot of your friends are there.

Gleason lists the seven infantile driver types and their behavior patterns as:

1. The Me First Driver: Here is the character who hasn't outgrown the childhood conviction that his (or her) wants come first. He parks double, takes his half of the road out of the middle, and presses the horn button when he should be pressing on the brakes.

2. The Automaton: He was taught as a child to obey without thinking, so he becomes the driver who obeys signals from other drivers automatically. The car in front of him leads him through intersections or past other automobiles where only the leader has space to go.

3. The Pampered Pet Driver: She is usually a well-groomed and charming woman. As a child she could get what she wanted by fluttering her lashes, and she uses the same technique with policemen to get away with illegal parking and driving through stop signs. She rarely has an accident, but causes many traffic jams and occasionally some serious crashes.

4. The Meeky Mouse: He turns into a snarling rat behind the wheel of his car. This type was bullied by older brothers and sisters and is the really dangerous driver. He works out his old resentments by speeding and by sideswiping other autos.

5. The Boxed-In Brat: Drivers who were overprotected or severely dominated as children account for a large number of serious traffic accidents. Usually in their late teens or early twenties they become showoffs, daredevils and lawbreakers.

6. The Never Wrong Boys: The type was allowed in childhood to get by without punishment. Their childhood feeling of guilt may lead them from bad to worse conduct in an unconscious search for guidance they never got. To them, the traffic ticket becomes the spanking they wanted.

7. The Proud Poor: As kiddies, they had to make second-hand schoolbooks and used bicycles do. Now they must prove that their standard-make models will get there just as fast as the most expensive custom-made automobile. With all their love for speed, they are alert and rarely have an accident. The accidents they cause are those of trembling witnesses they passed a half mile down the road.

Where the Proud Poor meets the Automaton—traffic safety engineers get their best pictures.

A 21-member commission delegated to inquire into the advisability of changing Fairfax County's form of government is completing plans for the second "stage" of its study.

The commission, which recently conducted six public hearings for residents of each of the county's magisterial districts, will sponsor a s of nces between its executive committee and representatives of county-wide organizations starting July 25 at the Fairfax courthouse. Other meetings are slated for July 28, August 1 and August 4.

Purpose of the conferences, Commission irman Walter C. Crain said yesterday, is to obtain further information from responsible county citizens on the existing form of government as well as three other systems available.

Groundwork Laid

To lay the groundwork for the conferences, the commission has prepared an extensive questionnaire concerning the present form of government and the three alternate plans. Copies have been sent to all county-wide organizations, and their prepared answers will form the basis for discussions with the executive committee, according to Cain.

With its 55 queries, the questionnaire seeks criticisms of the existing form of government or individual departments of the government, as well as extensive information about the other forms. It asks for a financial breakdown on the estimated cost of each of the four forms.

Besides the present form, known as the supervisor form of government, the commission is studying the county manager plan, the executive secretary plan and the county board plan.

Effects of Annexation

The questionnaire is concerned not only with the four forms of government, but with the possible effects of Falls Church and Alexandria annexation suits against the county. It also asks public views on the functions of the commission itself, and inquires into the advisability of forming a permanent, seven-man commission to observe the progress of the county government with a view to recommending eventual changes.

The commission, appointed by the board of supervisors two months ago, has no official status. But it has been asked to make an advisory report preparatory to an impending referendum on a proposed changeover to the county manager plan.

Although no date has been set for the vote, it is the prevailing belief that it will be held with the general election November 7. In obvious anticipation of a November vote, the commission has announced it hopes to complete its report by mid-September.

David Lawrence, Washington columnist, is chairman of the commission's seven-member executive committee. Although only the committee will participate in the coming conferences, all members of the commission have been asked to attend as observers.

Young 'Mrs. America' Entry

Baby Talk Is Actually Helpful To Tots, Speech Expert Writes

"Ma-Ma, goo-goo, chuk-chuk" may sound nauseating to everyone except mother and baby—but it's recommended conversation.

Father, too, can get into the act with something like "Da-Da, too-too, huk-huk."

The right, in fact duty, to talk "silly" to your baby is advanced by Dr. Stanley Ainsworth, associate professor of speech at Florida State University.

It should be comforting news to a generation of parents taught that "baby talk" might cause the gurgling infant to grow up with a cribside vocabulary.

You must use real words with junior or he may never learn to speak quite correctly, today's parents were told by experts, who said the child's speech development will be retarded.

To which Dr. Ainsworth says, at least in effect, "Bosh-Bosh."

The speech professor advocates "silly" talk to babies during what he terms their second stage of speech development. It's at this stage, which generally comes at the third month of life, that sounds begin to mean something to the baby. "Silly" talk really only sounds, helps the baby to differentiate sounds, according to Dr. Ainsworth.

Dr. Ainsworth, one of a panel of experts, tackles the problems of "Speech in the Home," in the new and undeniably authoritative book "Speech Problems of Children."

Published recently by Grune and Stratton, N. Y., at $3.75 for its 265 pages of advice, the speech guide was the project of the American Speech and Hearing Association for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

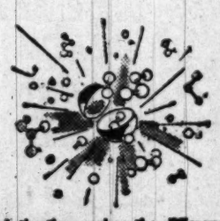
Actually, Shell splits molecules to get more power for today's more powerful engines. So you get a gasoline that's "activated"!

Get a tankful of "activated" Shell Premium today. Your Shell Dealer is the man to see.

*From a continuing impartial study of monthly gasoline purchases over a period of 27 months.



Activation makes the difference

Shell scientists, using the finest available crude, activate the molecules by splitting and rearranging them according to Shell's formula for a perfectly balanced gasoline. The result—Shell Premium, the most powerful gasoline your car can use.

One on the Aisle—

A Vienna Critic Talks About Movies

By Richard L. Coe

AMERICAN MOVIES do a great job, says a Vienna film critic visiting Washington.

Arnulf Neuwirth of the Vienna Weltpresse sees about four American, one British, one Russian and an occassional French or Austrian picture each week and though he feels that some of our pictures naturally give peculiar ideas about our country, he also thinks they're one of our strongest ambassadors.

Like other Viennese, Neuwirth is enormously conscious of the Russians, but he claims their movies do them more harm than good. About the only people who go to the Soviet-sponsored movies in Vienna, he says, are the Soviet officials, the party-liners and the working press.

"American pictures," he points out, "show an enviable way of life, with your gadgets and machines, your beautiful clothes and handsome homes. And while everyone in America may not have those things, the kind of life the Russian film shows doesn't look pretty to the Viennese.

"For instance, the most honored Russians seem to live in a stuffy style popular in Vienna three generations ago. When the Soviet soldiers pilfered homes in my country, they chose those of the petty bourgeoisie, heavy, overdecorated, old-fashioned. That style seems to be their notion of high life, but it's considered more pathetic than inspiring by us.

"I'm not saying there aren't some splendid Soviet pictures. 'The Fall of Stalingrad' is one of the finest I've ever seen and so was 'Potemkin.' Their use of crowds and weight is wonderful, but most of the time they propagandize so heavily that they're both boring and self-defeating.

"You Americans have made some splendid pictures, we think. 'The Lost Weekend' was a corker, so real, so honest. And 'Going My Way,' with Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman, was our biggest hit last year, to everyone's surprise. We also liked 'The Snake Pit' and 'Crossfire' and we can accept your tinsled musicals for the escape they are.

"Your drawbacks are obvious: from your pictures, it seems that women rule America. Perhaps they do. And though I've been here only a few days I can see that not everyone has all the machines, not that I ever thought they did.

"Another poor aspect of your pictures is that there always seems to be some kind of violence in the streets. I'm not saying that everyone thinks this is true, for no educated person is going to take everything of the movies as the truth, but the abundance of violence is surely misleading to some.

"The Third Man"

"The French, I think, make the most imaginative pictures. And while the British have a tendency to seem as though they're photographing stage plays, there's no law against using the camera in that way. However, they do when they try, make the most intelligent films.

"'The Third Man'? Yes, it's a good film and not a bad picture of Vienna's black market, though in that the British also exaggerated for effect, just as you so often do. It wasn't a truly accurate film, of course, but it did give the true atmosphere.

"Your plays please us, too. The big hit this year was 'Death of a Salesman' and we also liked 'I Remember Mama.' Adrienne Gassner, Ernst Lothar's wife, who has acted in your country, I understand, was in both of these.

"Yes, after the Marshal Plan, which sold us all on America, the movies are probably your leading inspiration for us. They reach so many people."

SPECIAL BUS SERVICE to the McLean Summer Theater is now being provided by the Arnold Company, leaving 11th and E sts. nightly at 7:45 and returning from McLean at 11:30 . . . Tonight the company starts its week's run of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

LILLIAN GISH and her company arrived last night with Cape Cod gently limned on some of their limbs . . . The "Miss Mabel" company, which tonight starts its week's stay at Mr. Skinner's shrewdly-managed Olney Theater, played its opening week at the Falmouth Playhouse at Coonamessett . . . Yesterday another summer playhouse added "Miss Mabel" to its agenda, Connecticut's Westport.

EVER SINCE "Rain" opened up at Cross Roads, we've had the real thing daily . . . Tonight's resumption of the Sadie Thompson story begins the final week, one which will decide whether all this rain is just coincidence or all miserably pre-arranged by Ethel Casey and company.

"HEAVEN CAN WAIT" brings back Mr. Jordan of here comes fame tonight at Collingwood under Steffen Zacharias' direction . . . This marks the eighth week of the open-to-the skies spot five miles this side of Mount Vernon . . . In the cast will be Fran Benton, Eugene Marlo, Lee Bergere, Natalie Priest, Edmund Jordan, James Van Wart, Henry Williamson, Byron Rath, Edmund Montgomery, Robert Eckel, Patience Winthrop and Helen Amendola.

Negroes Denied Cafe Service; 11 Persons Held

Police yesterday arrested a group of 10 white persons and three Negroes in Sholl's Cafeteria, 511 14th st. nw., after they refused to leave when service was denied the Negroes.

Two patrol wagons took the group to the First Precinct Station, where they were charged with disorderly conduct and released on $5 collateral each. Most of them gave the Interracial Workshop, 1867 Kalorama rd. nw., as their address.

Alfred A. McGarraghy, owner of the cafeteria, said earlier this week small groups of Negroes and whites had visited him to ask that Negroes be admitted. Yesterday the large group came at 11:30 a. m. and stood in line.

McGarraghy, vice president of the Washington Restaurant Association, said he told them he would not serve them. He explained that members of the Association have agreed not to change their present admission policies until the courts have acted finally on a test case.

When the group first entered Sholl's, James A. Cobb, attorney, was called by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King to intervene, but the group persisted in seeking service. Cobb and others had agreed to a stipulation in the test case, halting any other actions pending outcome of the action.

Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers last week ruled that another 14th st. cafeteria did not violate 1872-73 laws in refusing service to Negroes.

Eight Mayors Of Washington To Visit D. C.

Mayors from eight cities and towns called "Washington" will converge on the voteless District Wednesday morning as guests of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission.

The visiting dignitaries will view the Sesqui's "American Processional" of historic U. S. paintings and the "Plan of Washington" at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

After luncheon in the Senate Dining Room, they will lay a wreath on the Tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon. In the evening they will attend the National Symphony concert at the Watergate.

The group also hopes to visit the President and accept special commemorative medals.

Mayors planning to attend include: W. A. Slaton, Georgia; G. E. Mace, Iowa; A. Roy Pearson, Missouri; Frederick L. Suttle, New Jersey; John Henry Kaiser, Wisconsin; W. F. Moffett, Virginia; Quienton Nisson, Utah, and Dr. Marius Hansen, Tex.

Shoeshine Price Hiked

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 17 (U.P.). Shoeshines cost 25 cents here today. Local shine boys decided that the high cost of living and operating made it necessary to hike the price 10 cents.

Adventists Retire Several From District

San Francisco, July 17 (AP).—Names of 13 Seventh Day Adventist leaders with a total of 633 years of service who are retiring and eligible for pension benefits were announced tonight at the 46th annual convention.

They were: Frederick Griggs, Los Angeles, 60 years service; Dr. E. A. Sutherland, Nashville, Tenn., 60 years; G. A. Roberts, Los Angeles, 46; Meade MacGuire, Sonora, Calif., 56; and the following, all of Washington, D. C.: Charles S. Longacre, 54; Milan L. Andreasen, 51; Milton E. Kern, 50; Claude Conrad, 50; Jay J. Nethery, 49; Harold Cobban, 47; Walter K. Ising, 46; J. Adams Stevens, 44; and Richard Ruhling, 40.

Earlier in the day, W. B. Ochs, of Washington, D. C., told the convention that "the future is dark and discouraging, but for the Christian the outlook was never brighter . . . The prophecies plainly indicate the nearing redemption of the people of God."

Ochs is vice president of the Adventists' North American Division, comprising the United States, its Territories and Canada.

He appealed to the North American Adventists to "keep a world vision." He said North America is the greatest source of workers for overseas lands.

Ochs reported that North America Adventists in 1946-49 gave nearly 73 million dollars in tithes, plus almost 50 million dollars more, for home and foreign missions.

Since 1946, he said, 812 missionaries were sent out from North America. During 1946-49, membership of the North American division increased 58,208 to 243,193. The world membership is 716,538.

William H. Branson, former vice president of the China Division and new world president of the Adventists, reported that all foreign workers—74 families and 10 single workers—have been withdrawn from China. He said Chinese Adventists are continuing the church program.

Bridge Block Is Removed In Rockville

Citizens of Rockcrest, a subdivision of Rockville, Md., soon will be able to save two miles of road distance to reach Rockville Pike which is only a few blocks from their homes.

J. Hodge Smith, assistant Montgomery County attorney, yesterday reached a settlement with Philip Greenwell, owner of the property needed for a right of way to a bridge without approaches over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks.

The property has been in dispute for nearly a year. Condemnation proceedings were instituted recently for the 7851.83 square feet needed for an approach to the bridge.

The bridge was built by the B. & O. to replace a dangerous wooden bridge, which has been torn down. Residents of the area must drive more than two miles by way of Viers Mill rd. to reach the Rockville Pike a few blocks away.

County Manager Irving G. McNayr said work on construction of the approaches will be expedited.

Huks Seize Town

Manila, July 17 (AP).—About 200 Communist-led Hukbalahap guerillas last night without opposition seized the town of Pinappagan.

Blair House Car Stop Dropped for Security

The streetcar loading platform near the Blair House was removed yesterday for "resaons of national security."

The move was requested yesterday by the White House Secret Service, and the request transmitted to the Public Utilities Commission by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police.

South Bend, Ind., July 18 (U.P.).—A Grand Trunk Railroad diesel locomotive and a freight car loaded with bananas fell from a 45-foot elevated track here today, injuring three trainmen and littering two back yards with fruit.

Pullman Employe Burned by Freak Electrical Flash

A 220-volt flash from electrical charging equipment seriously burned Glenn Dilley, 21, a Pullman Co. employe, at Union Station last night.

Dilley, of 1624 Fort Dupont st. se., was taken to Emergency Hospital with painful but not critical burns of the face, arms, shoulders and the stomach.

Sgt. George Deaner, of Rescue Squad No. 1, said the cause of the flash was unknown. Dilley's clothes were not burned.

Burma's Yellow Band Volunteers to Disband

Rangoon, Burma, July 17 (AP).—The Yellow Band faction of the semi-miltary People's Volunteer Organization, loyal to the government, is to be disbanded July 19, its executive committee announced today.

The announcement said the country no longer needs the help of such organizations.

Yellow Band President Bo Hmu Aung is to resign from the anti-Fascist People's Freedom League (AFPFL) with which his organization has been affiliated.

"A Fraud And A Hoax"

The long-awaited report of the Tydings Subcommittee says of Senator McCarthy's charges concerning the State Department that they are "a fraud and a hoax perpetrated on the Senate of the United States and the American people. They represent perhaps the most nefarious campaign of half-truths and untruth in the history of this Republic." The report is an angry and indignant one. It seems to us, nevertheless, to be essentially judicious and just; its condemnation of Senator McCarthy is supported by a thorough analysis of his charges and is warranted by the gravity of the injuries those charges inflicted on innocent individuals and on the security of the United States. Far from being a "whitewash" as some critics have charged, the report is admirably complete and fair.

The subcommittee came to the conclusion not only that Senator McCarthy's charges of last February that there were 205 or 57 or 81 "card-carrying Communists" in the State Department were false but also that the charges were made "with no facts or with discredited allegations of fact to support them." Neither the "information" furnished by Senator McCarthy, nor the FBI files on which he placed reliance to prove his accusations, nor the witnesses called by the subcommittee at his behest revealed the presence in the State Department of a single employe who could reasonably be called a Communist or an agent of the Soviet Union, or even a security risk.

It is a misfortune that Senator Lodge did not see fit to join the majority of the subcommittee in a condemnation of methods which he gave every indication of having deplored. His individual report is inconclusive in the extreme. It presents no justification of Senator McCarthy. Indeed, it concludes that the McCarthy allegations were wholly unproved in respect of Owen Lattimore and John S. Service specifically and that the evidence was inconclusive in the 81 State Department cases generally. It finds fault with the 1945 handling of the Amerasia case; but this was only tangential to the field of the subcommittee's investigation. Senator McCarthy must look for comfort to Senator Hickenlooper's silence; he can find little of it in Senator Lodge's random observations.

On one important point the subcommittee majority and Senator Lodge were in substantial agreement. Both reports recommend appointment of an independent commission of distinguished citizens to make a thorough study of the whole internal security problem. The idea is one which this newspaper has earnestly championed. It seems to us that the establishment of such a commission is now an indispensable means of restoring public confidence in the loyalty of Federal employes so dangerously shaken by the recklessness of Senator McCarthy's attack. The counsel of a commission composed, as the subcommittee report put it, of "high-minded and public-spirited individuals" would be of invaluable aid to the Congress, the President and the public.

Peron's Promises

Only a few hours after Argentine Dictator Peron assured a group of visiting Americans that there would be no censorship and no newspaperman would be put in jail, his promise evaporated. Luis Mackay, the proprietor of El Pregon, a provincial newspaper in Gualeguaychu, was arrested under the law forbidding desacato, or disrespect for government officials. To be sure, Senor Mackay, a recently resigned opposition deputy, may have been technically guilty under the law, and he was released within a few days. The fact remains, however, that the law was passed at Peron's insistence to facilitate iron control over the press and suppression of free criticism. If President Peron is sincere in his assurance, it is completely within his power either to refrain from invoking the law or to demand its repeal.

This is by no means the only evidence that Peron's practice varies from his preaching. There are other subtler forms of censorship. Scarcely a week goes by without stories to the effect that the great Buenos Aires dailies, La Prensa and La Nacion, are threatened with extinction for want of newsprint which the government controls—though Peron unctuously cites them as proof of "freedom of the press." So far they have resisted intimidation magnificently, but their existence is a hand-to-mouth affair and the heckling they must contend with is both transparent and deliberate. Already these and similar totalitarian manifestations are causing second thoughts in this country about the wisdom of the loan to Argentina. If Peron wants to regain the confidence of the United States, it will take a lot more than bland promises. It is the performance that counts.

The Meaning Of Korea

As bad news continues to flow out of Korea, the American people are taking a new look at their relationship to the world. Many have been shocked by the forced retreat of the American forces before the heavily armed, well trained and numerically superior North Korean forces. There can be no doubt that the Administration has been jolted; Congress has been jolted; and the people have been jolted. Looking back over the last two years, we seem to have been living in a fool's paradise. We knew that the cold war might flare into an exchange of fire at any time. Yet even with the memory of totalitarian aggression fresh in our minds, we did not as a nation prepare adequately to meet the inevitable new demonstration of it.

Korea has now driven this lesson home. The lesson itself, however, is far bigger than the Korean war. In point of principle the action taken in Korea is of vast importance—the free world is testing its ability to put down aggression. But in point of our own security or of the world struggle that is moving toward a climax, Korea is only a side show. Its great significance is that it has alerted the Nation to the perils that had been pushed into the back of many minds more intent upon domestic prosperity, personal pleasures, political advantages, larger profits, higher wages, and so forth. The peril to the free world was clearly apparent, but we indulged in the dangerous hope that we would not have to cope with it on the battlefield and in the equally dangerous hope that if bombs and bullets should be substituted for words we could win with a superior air force and the atomic bomb. The North Korean army has done us the great service of shattering these illusions.

If we give heed to this lesson, it will mean a sharp alteration in our policy. It is not, of course, merely a question of mobilizing enough strength to avoid being pushed into the sea off Korea. In spite of the serious reverses that the American forces have been suffering, our military leaders are still confident that catastrophe can be avoided and the aggressors defeated. Beyond this localized action, however, is the grim demonstration we have had that international communism is intent upon military aggression to accomplish its aims. The easy assumption that the Kremlin would be content with ideological warfare in the next few years has been in the discard for three weeks. Now we must consign to the same limbo the assumption that the satellite countries could not mount a formidable offensive. Hysteria over these discoveries would only redound to the benefit of the Communist aggressors. But we must appraise them realistically and act on the knowledge that only adequate military power will save the free world from the fate that South Korea is now suffering.

What the Kremlin is aiming at is the industrial power of Japan and Germany. The move in Korea is the first thrust at Japan. With those two countries added to the Communist war-making potential, the Kremlin might swing the balance of power in its favor. What we must have, therefore, is sufficient strength not only to prevent aggressive outbreaks on the periphery, but also military power enough to meet the larger and more direct thrusts when and if they come. What this means in terms of additional spending and mobilization are technical questions that must be answered by military and civilian experts and ultimately by the President and Congress. But we think the American people are now fully awake to the menace confronting them in many different parts of the world. Public opinion will support bold and forward-looking moves. There is danger, to be sure, of going overboard, but there is greater danger in doing too little. The basic question is whether we value our comfort, our luxuries, and our usual routine of pleasures more than we value our freedom. To that question there can be only one answer, and we have no doubt that the American people will return it with an almost unanimous voice. It remains only for the President to point the way, and apparently he intends to do so in his message to Congress on Wednesday.

Velvet Censorship

It may be that Ted Lambert of the Associated Press and Peter Kalischer of the United Press—who were banned and then permitted by General MacArthur's headquarters to reenter Korea—have not always used the utmost in discretion in their stories from the front. Coverage of the Korean conflict has been extremely good in view of the physical difficulties (at one time it was said that there were more correspondents than soldiers at the front). But perspective is hard to attain in the midst of battle. It is not exactly news, for example, that as Mr. Lambert reported, one GI complained, "This is a damned useless war." GIs often complain, and many of their complaints are unprintable. In fact, in the old Army beefing was viewed as a sign of good morale, and it was when soldiers were too lethargic to gripe that something was seriously wrong.

But while the two correspondents may not have shown 100 per cent judgment, General MacArthur's press officer, Col. Marion P. Echols, showed practically no judgment at all in banning them for "giving aid and comfort to the enemy." There was not the slightest complaint that the stories Messrs. Lambert and Kalischer were filing were not true. It was merely that the difficulties they recounted among troops outmanned and outgunned would, in Colonel Echols' opinion, "be of value to the enemy and would have a bad morale and psychological effect on our own troops."

American soldiers at the front are not tender plants. They know, without any correspondent telling them, that the going is tough. Certainly they will want the American people to know the facts without gloss as to the conditions under which they are fighting. Fortunately, General MacArthur has overruled his errant press officer. But a disturbing implication remains: "Report something we don't like and you can be banned again." The unexplained banning yesterday of Marguerite Higgins, a capable reporter of the New York Herald Tribune, adds to the fear of whimsicality.

General MacArthur's treatment of the press on the whole has been praiseworthy. No one should suppose that correspondents in battle can have total freedom. They need guidance in what sort of military information to report, and the psychological factor cannot be overlooked. But censorship which does not have a direct relation to military security is both capricious and dangerous, and wise commanders avoid it. There is no warrant for suppressing ugly facts because they do not fit someone's preconceived notion of what looks proper; indeed, it is the bitter truth that galvanizes a nation into action. Sometimes that truth may give aid and comfort to the enemy. But Americans had better insist on knowing it if they want to win the battle.

No Deal In Sight

Stalin has replied to the note from Prime Minister Nehru of India that "a peaceful settlement of the Korean crisis is a supreme necessity." If there were any logic in words, as used by the Kremlin, this would mean that Stalin would use his influence to halt the invasion of South Korea by the puppet forces that have been trained, equipped and inspired by the Russians. But everyone knows that his words carry no such meaning. Stalin would like to see peace restored as soon as the Kremlin's objective has been accomplished, and of course that fact robs his words of any hope that a feasible settlement may be made until the aggressors have been thrown back by military action.

We think that Prime Minister Nehru is right in saying that the Korean controversy should be settled within the Security Council. It is a United Nations war that is being fought in Korea, and it must be followed by a United Nations peace. But this does not mean that the Security Council ought to meet the Russian demands for the seating of Communist China in the Council in order to get Russian support for stopping the Korean war.

The claim of Communist China to a seat in the Council and the aggression of the North Koreans are two entirely separate issues. Each must stand on its own merits. The most important object at present is the enforcement of the Council's order that the North Koreans cease their aggression and withdraw to the Thirty-eighth parallel. That order is not and must not be conditioned upon any concessions by U. N. members. When it has been put into effect, we hope that the question of seating the Peking government will also be disposed of on its merits. While declining to vote for representation of Communist China, the United States has pledged itself not to use the veto to prevent such action. That attitude has not been altered by events in Korea. Russia might well succeed in getting her Chinese ally admitted if she would return to the Council and support its present policy. But she must not be led to suppose that she can attain her objectives by starting a satellite on the war path and then seeking a compromise as the price of peace. The world has not forgotten Munich.

In replying to Nehru's note to the United States the President may well set at rest what are said to be Chinese fears that the United States intends to annex Formosa. These fears are fomented by Moscow for purposes of its own. The President's statement on this subject could not be misinterpreted if read with an unprejudiced mind. "The determination of the future status of Formosa," he said, "must await the restoration of security in the Pacific, a peace settlement with Japan, or consideration by the United Nations." No intention of aggrandizement can be found in these words. That point may well be reemphasized as a means of counteracting Communist propaganda. But it is not a bargaining point in respect of Korea. In both instances the United States acted to prevent settlements from being made by aggression and violence, and this principle cannot be sacrificed to bring the Russians back to the Security Council.

Elsewhere on this page a correspondent calls attention to the fact that Puerto Rico has been omitted from public assistance provisions of the Senate version of the social security bill now in conference. The same omission applies to the Virgin Islands. This exclusion is strange in a bill designed to broaden the economic security of American citizens; it is especially incomprehensible in light of the need in those areas. Although Puerto Rico must devote a large part of its budget to relief, beneficiaries receive only $7.50 a month and by no means all the case load is met.

The reasoning advanced by Senators Taft and George is that residents of Puerto Rico do not pay Federal income taxes. This argument has no real relation to the programs for old-age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children. There are self-help propositions which require matching funds from the State or Territory involved. Even though the formula for such aid in the House bill is less generous for Puerto Rico than for some of the more needy States, it would be a tremendous vehicle for relieving want of American citizens in that dependency. It would cost relatively little for conferees to remove this discrimination.

Puerto Rican Security

It is time for friends of Puerto Rico to rally to support their great need for social security benefits for the dependent children, the blind and the aged.

The House Subcommittee on Ways and Means, after investigating conditions and needs unanimously indorsed full support of this assistance. The Senate Committee of Finance eliminated this provision and the amendment introduced by Senator Lehman to include such a provision was defeated. The Conference Committee of the House and Senate holds the decision now.

The rest of the United States has the benefit of this direct aid. Puerto Ricans are American citizens. They live within our economic and political system. There is no reason to discriminate against them.

Federal aid is based on the theory that States would be unable to bear alone the economic burden of an adequate social welfare program. The government of Puerto Rico uses one third of its budget for social security and welfare, yet only one third of those who can qualify by the lowest possible standards are served.

Opponents of direct aid to Puerto Rico point out that the island is exempt from Federal income taxes. Puerto Rico is not a State and cannot vote on appropriations nor tax laws. Would we indorse or even propose "taxation without representation?" The insular government must be supported with local revenues only.

The island buys 300 million dollars worth of goods yearly from the mainland. It, on the other hand, is limited to only four products within the United States market, sugar, rum, tobacco and needlework. The insular government's income could be increased by millions of dollars if Congress would allow the island to produce all it could grow. The most lucrative income from most of the refining is denied them by an act of Congress.

Puerto Ricans will be drafted in this national emergency and fight beside the soldiers from the mainland to support and maintain democracy. We should not deny the Puerto Ricans the benefits to which they are entitled.

Destroying Communism

The only way that we will ever have peace and freedom is to destroy the power of communism. It is so foreign to our system of life and thought that while it controls even one country of the earth, it will continue to be a menace to the freedom of all individuals.

After the cessation of hostilities in World War II I served as military governor of the Province of Novaro in northern Italy. This is a great industrial province and while there, I came into contact with many different races of men of all shades of political beliefs and with many Communists. Communism is not a political belief, but is an evil way of life and a fanatical materialistic religion. It is possible that some of the individuals could be converted from communism by talking to them and showing them pictures but I doubt it. They will have to be shown and converted in the language they understand.

I was amazed when I heard a commentator say recently that the president of the University of Chicago was in favor of mediating the difficulties in Korea with the Communists such as insisting that the North Koreans withdraw across the thirty-eighth parallel and we in return recognize Communist China. He and anyone else who knows anything about Communists should realize that no nation nor person can mediate with them.

Personally, I deplore the fact that the atomic bomb was ever manufactured, but nevertheless, it is a fact that we have them, and Communist Russia has them, but probably not as many nor as powerful ones as we have. It is a foregone conclusion that Russia will not hesitate to drop them on us without warning when she believes she can get away with it. At the present time, she is furnishing North Koreans and Communist China tanks, planes, guns and ammunition and training their soldiers. She is using her satellites to drain the resources and strength of free nations. I am one who believes that the proper place to drop atomic bombs is not on North Korea and not in China, but on all strategic places in Russia, which is the source of these supplies, and to do it at once.

All Aid Now

This day one of our servicemen may die in Korea. We must now pay in lives, as we did at Pearl Harbor, for this Nation's defenses have been grossly neglected. Our men are fighting and dying in Korea. It isn't a question of when the war comes! It is here now! Do not ask our men to sacrifice their lives needlessly. Back them up with our utmost and rush to their aid. Let us fight, all of us, now!

Freedom In Brazil

Though a fellow Protestant, I am compelled to take issue with the statement the July 13 letter from the Rev. William Kepler, that "religious freedom"—in certain countries named—"means only freedom to be a Roman Catholic." I refer to Brazil where, in spite of a Roman Catholic component amounting perhaps to more than 95 percent in a population of 50 million, things are on record such as the donation by a state government of an entire midcity block in its capital for the use of a Methodist mission and facing the location of a Catholic cathedral. As for difficulties encountered by Protestant missionaries, humiliating as they may sometimes be, it is just as unfair to hold them against an entire country as it would be to condemn 150 million Americans when the KKK raises the fiery cross on a West Virginia hill to intimidate "hunky" Catholic miners.

As for the Rev. Kepler's claim that it is "almost impossible for a non-Catholic to hold a place of public office," I offer my own case in refutation. I have never hidden nor disguised my views concerning the Church of Rome, yet I lived in Brazil for 30 years and the last 16 I have held office in the foreign service of that country.

Chiang As A Victim

The July 10 cartoon by Herblock could not be more misleading and unfair, to say nothing of in bad taste, than to represent Chiang Kai-shek endeavoring in a sneaking fashion to profit by the crusade of the United Nations in the cause of Korea. More than 20 years ago Chiang Kai-shek recognized the threat of communism in China and tried to resist it until the Japanese took advantage of the situation to advance their own ambitions in Asia, and since the war he has become communism's greatest Asiatic victim.

"Korean War Criminals"

Anent your July 13 editorial "Korean War Criminals," we all join with you in hoping "that appropriate means of bringing the criminals to justice can be promptly found." The designation "criminals" can only, of course, apply to those who have committed "crime." Crimes have been committed, assuming the reports are true that American soldiers, after capture, were tied up and shot. This would be a crime because it is a violation of that part of international criminal law known as the rules of land warfare. These rules have for some time been a part of international criminal law. These criminals can be tried before a military commission of the occupying country, as Homma and Yamashita were at Manila.

Many fall into the error of designating as war criminals those who do something which is "unlawful," "illegal," or reprehensible. This is no more so than it is in the case in our own country of persons who violate some law which is not a criminal law. All crimes consist of acts or failures to act which are unlawful and illegal, but not all unlawful or illegal acts are criminal.

I make reference to that sentence in your editorial: "Unquestionably those who planned it and are now directing its operation are guilty of an international crime." And to the sentence following: "The unfortunate fact is, however, that the world still has no specific law on this subject . . ."

Planning, or waging, aggressive war, or alleged crimes against humanity, crimes against peace, and murder in warfare, have never been crimes under international law and are not at this time. They should be and, they could have been made so, had the nations (including the United States) been willing, when they had opportunity at the conventions held in Europe, to do so. It was proposed, discussed, debated but never reached the stage of a convention signed by the participating nations, let alone ratifications of such a convention by the respective nations.

Nor did the tribunals at Nuernberg and Tokyo establish any such crimes. Those tribunals were not law-making bodies. Nor did General MacArthur have the power to establish any such crimes by means of the Charter of the International Tribunal (so-called) which he set up in Tokyo (which, by the way, was not his idea, but was done on orders from Washington).

Four of the 11 judges of the Tokyo tribunal were of this view and voted "not guilty." These were the members from France, Holland, India and, in part one other. Many writers and legal authorities have deprecated the formula used at Nuernberg and Tokyo. Recently Lord Hankey wrote a book Politics, Trials and Errors, and Hanson W. Baldwin in the Atlantic Monthly, spoke along this line; that among the mistakes we made in respect to World War II were unconditional surrender and the war crimes trials.

Conspiracy Of Optimism

By Marquis Childs

Need For Information

THIS momentous week will see the decisions taken here in Washington essential to winning back South Korea from the Communists. But they will go further than that.

They will at least be a start toward providing the minimum of strength necessary to match the commitments the United States has made in so many corners of the globe. That has been, of course, the source of the deadly peril of recent months.

A kind of inverse ratio has seemed to prevail. The more commitments that were made, the less strength we had. It was an invitation to Communist adventure everywhere.

The steps to be taken will be decried both by those who demand all-out mobilization and by the politics-as-usual wing of the Congress. They include the following:

A request to Congress for billions of dollars (present discussions put it at between four and five) for prosecution of the Korean conflict, building up American armed forces generally and speeding up the arming of North Atlantic Pact nations.

Limited middle-ground authority to allocate steel and a few other scarce metals and get production of radar equipment and military vehicles, thereby supplanting some television and automobile manufacture.

The calling up of some National Guard units and reservists. Detailed plans for this may not, however, be sufficiently advanced to include it in the statement to be sent to Congress.

ALONG with the requests will go something that in a sense is almost as important. According to present intentions, the President will give what one of his close associates describes as "a sort of state of the Union message."

This is an urgent necessity, as is shown by every indicator of opinion. The first reaction to the President's bold move in ordering force against the North Korean invasion and in invoking the sanction of the United Nations was unquestionably good. It cut across most political and partisan considerations.

But the almost unbroken chain of reverses since then has dissipated the original confident response. People are more and more troubled and apprehensive. They are asking certain questions, and above all:

Why are the North Koreans fighting so hard and so skillfully and why has the South Korean resistance been so ineffectual? Is the difference due entirely to the superior weapons of the North as compared to the South? What has happened, in view of the seeming deficiencies all down the line, to the $50 billions to $60 billions spent in the past four years on national defense? Answers to the last one should not be difficult to provide. It gets down to the extraordinary cost of today's complicated weapons and the far-flung extent of American commitments.

CERTAINLY the American people are entitled to a frank and complete statement of where we are and how we got there and where we mean to go from here. In any survey of the tragic deficiencies of the past year or more, almost none ranks higher than the deficiency of information.

Consider the record since last September. A terse announcement from the President disclosed that the Soviet Union had set off an atomic explosion. This meant a profound change in America's position, but the American people were told nothing as to its significance and the steps that would have to be taken.

Four months later, after a long public clamor, another terse White House statement announced the decision to proceed with the hydrogen bomb. Again the people were told nothing further as to why and when.

This is the papa-knows-best school of public relations. It follows the happy prescription in Candide, that "all is for the best in the best possible of worlds."

In one week this spring, the American people were told by President Truman that the United States was in the best shape ever following any war in its history, and he took the credit; Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson said that the Nation's state of preparedness was better than in any previous peacetime period; and Secretary of State Dean Acheson said the State Department was more efficient than it had ever been before.

Now all of this may have been quite true. Yet, measured against the realities and against promises and commitments made to peoples everywhere, that conspiracy of optimism was wholly unjustified.

Calling Up Reserves

In view of the seriousness of the military situation in Korea, I find it difficult to understand the reluctance of the military to call out the various reserve components. For the past five years we have read a great deal of propaganda issued by the Department of Defense on the efficiency of these reserve units. They are supposedly America's "Minute Men." It would appear that if we ever needed minute men, we need them now. The situation in Korea calls for well-trained, organized fighting units now, not a new crop of draftees in training camps. In justice to everyone concerned, every reservist on the rolls should be called up before a single man is drafted.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Probably The Showdown

IT IS very difficult to believe that the Korean war is not part of a global plan of the highest consequence. It will be prudent for us to assume, it seems to me, that the purpose of the plan is to bring about a showdown with the United States, that the Kremlin has taken the risk of a general war but is intending without a general war to have the showdown on terms which are favorable to the Soviet-Chinese orbit.

Lippmann

THE WESTERN governments have not been acting on a timetable which indicated a showdown this year. Their military planning has looked to 1953 as the date when the Soviet Union would be "prepared" for war, when the West, therefore, must also be prepared for war. Mr. Churchill, almost alone among the leading men of the West, has been saying that we had no time to lose and that the West should take the initiative in bringing about a diplomatic showdown designed to achieve a negotiated settlement. His advice has not been followed by his own government or by ours. The official theory has been that time was on the side of the West, and that several years hence we would be able to negotiate with a stronger hand: before talking we must first have the hydrogen bomb, 35 elite divisions in western Europe, tactical aviation to defend the cities of western Europe, Japan as our ally, and so forth.

It looks very much as if the Soviet Union had decided to have the showdown before their armament program and before ours had been completed.

THIS is what usually happens when there is a race of armaments. The race is not run out to the theoretical finish when either, much less both, the contestants are as well prepared as they would like to be.

The point is illustrated by captured German document, known as the Hossbach Notes, which are quoted in the Compton Report on Universal Military Training. These notes summarize the directives given by Hitler to his military and naval staff commanders at a conference on high policy which took place November 10, 1937, nearly two years before the general war began in September 1939. These notes show that Hitler had set 1943-45 as the outside limit for initiating aggressive warfare. "Beyond that date" says the Compton Report, "he did not expect to maintain the preponderance of preparation achieved by the Reich. Germany's relative power would then begin to decrease, he argued, as the other European countries improved their military potential."

BUT as a matter of fact Hitler did not wait for the theoretical limit. He "advanced his schedule and anticipated his timetable of operations by some four years." He seized Austria in March following the Hossbach Conference of November. Why did he not wait until 1943 when the German army would undoubtedly have been better prepared for war than it was in 1939? Because, as he told his officers, "now there is a relationship of forces which can never be more propitious but can only deteriorate for us." It may be that Hitler was mistaken in thinking he had chosen the most propitious moment. The important fact, however, is that he felt bound to act long before the theoretical date set by the military planners and the armament program.

It seems probable to me that the Kremlin has come to a similar decision—to have the showdown now rather than later. There are, I realize, some who think that the Kremlin did not intend to have a general showdown but just hoped to pick a ripe apple in South Korea while no one was looking. I think this is a much bigger affair than that implies, and that the Russians have chosen as their way to bring about a showdown the same basic idea which Hitler had when he incited the Japanese to attack us in the Pacific. That idea is to neutralize us in Europe.

THE RUSSIANS know, as all the world knows, that the United States is not powerful enough to fight two full scale land wars simultaneously in Europe and in Asia. The paramount decision of American strategy has been and will long continue to be whether to give priority to the Pacific or to the Atlantic. The making of this decision arouses strong popular feeling in the United States and tends to become a party issue.

In the past six months it has become a bitter party issue with the Atlantic party losing and the Pacific party gaining. The Korean war came just as a stronger Pacific policy was in the making. It has had the effect of engaging the United States very heavily in the Pacific.

THE MANNER in which we have become engaged in a land war probably surprised the Kremlin. But let us hope that the Kremlin does not find it a pleasant surprise—to have our main forces in being fighting against a satellite of the second degree, who can be reinforced by a bigger satellite. For if we were to become deeply and thoroughly entangled in a first-class land war in Asia, we could not fight a first-class war in Europe.

Even at the peak of our military power in the World War, we avoided a battle with the main Japanese army until after the war in Europe was over. No American strategist who is in his right mind would ever commit the United States fighting virtually singlehanded to the chance of full scale war both in Asia and in Europe. It is the paramount duty of American diplomats, supported by a level-headed people, to see to it that we do not present our military forces with an impossible task.

IF THE Soviet Union can entangle us in a first-class satellite war in the Far East, our military power in Europe would be limited, especially on land. That would not be for us a favorable position to enter the negotiations for a diplomatic showdown: we would be fighting virtually alone in the Far East while western Europe in case of a general war could count only on part of our military effort.

My guess is that this is what the Russians are after—that the general objective of their policy is to exploit the conflict between our Atlantic and our Asiatic interests and commitments. If this diagnosis is correct, then it is an overriding American interest to keep the war in Korea localized and to have it ended without committing to the Far East not only most of our forces in being but the better part of the forces we shall mobilize in the next critical year or two.

workers will not be recruited until some time next year.

Following testimony on the defense fund the House Appropriations Subcommittee heard witnesses appeal for a total of $1,898,941 in supplemental requests for nearly a dozen other District agencies.

Action Possible Today

Subcommittee Chairman Joe E. Bates (D., Ky.) said he hoped his group can meet this afternoon to decide on the exact amounts it will allow the local agencies in extra appropriations for current year's operations.

The Bates subcommittee also considered requests of about $70,000 to expand the out-patient department at Gallinger Hospital, $1,000,000 needed to place Washington police on a five-day week and $100,000 already authorized for this year's operation of the child day-care centers.

"Old Georgetown" Approved

In rapid-fire fashion, the Senate District Committee passed and sent to the Senate floor bills to:

1. Increase fees for auto dealer identification tags and provide for revocation of dealers' licenses.

2. Permit banks to delay posting notes and payments, except counter checks, 24 hours after receiving them.

3. Establish a district known as "Old Georgetown" with a view to preserving the early architecture of that area.

4. Provide for the appointment of trustees to conserve the assets of aged or mentally sick residents.

5. Extend the local trespassing law to cover public grounds and buildings. The law now applies only to private property.

6. Restore 260 public school teachers to the higher pay grades they held prior to the teacher salary act of 1947.

Liquor—Credit Bill Killed

The committee killed by a tie roll-call vote legislation that would allow hotels and restaurants, holding Class C licenses, to sell liquor as well as food on credit.

The surprise rejection of the House-approved liquor bill came after Senator Edward L. Leahy (D. R. I.) insisted the measure would not lead to increased liquor consumption here.

A measure authorizing $50,000 to complete the Eastern High School Stadium was postponed until the Commissioners and Board of Education filed a report on it.

Senator Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.) appeared to urge the committee to reconsider an earlier action tabling a bill to limit the number of taxicabs operating in the District.

Something must be wrong, O'Conor declared, when the present number of cabs on Washington streets equals "the aggregate total of those in Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Baltimore and Los Angeles."

The committee agreed to O'Conor's request to file a statement of the positions of Veterans and other cab organizations on the limitation proposal.

Court Forbids UMW Union Shop Demands

By the United Press

John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers were forbidden yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to demand union shop clauses in coal contracts until they sign Taft-Hartley non-Communist affidavits.

The court's decision was an enforcement order backing up a National Labor Relations Board directive in the two-year-old "captive mine" case involving soft coal mines owned by steel companies.

Present law permits labor-management contracts, requiring workers to join the union within 30 days after they are hired, if a majority of the union membership votes for a union shop in an NLRB-sponsored election.

Lewis cannot use NLRB machinery because he refuses to sign the non-Communist oath required under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The present soft coal contract provides for a union shop only "to the extent and the manner permitted by law."

The President's Calling List

10:00 a. m.—Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senate Democratic Leader Lucas, House Democratic Leader McCormack.

10:45—Representative McCormack and Ernest Swartswedter, Youngstown, Ohio.

12—noon. George E. Leighty, Chairman, Railroad Labor Executive Association.

12:15 p. m.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of State Acheson.

1:00 p. m.—Lunch.

4 p. m.—Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.).

hired under present plans, but the figure is admittedly a guess. The actual number to be hired will depend on world developments. It could be considerably more than 100,000.

Between 5000 and 10,000 of the jobs are earmarked for this city. Defense officials hope to keep new hiring here down to a minimum, and to use available funds to staff Navy yards, Army arsenals, air bases, and supply depots.

Thousands of war agency workers, including hundreds here, have been working overtime on a voluntary basis since the beginning of the Korean conflict. With the war's end doubtful, officials say an overtime work policy must be established very soon.

Any overtime policy would be complicated since the Government has different laws governing work beyond 40 hours in a single week. Per-diem workers, laborers, mechanics, etc., would be paid straight time and a half. That's the law.

But another law provides only time and a half for white collar employes whose salaries are up to $2900 a year. Employes paid salaries in excess of $2900 would be paid overtime on $2900 only. This means that employes paid $5000 or more would be paid less for overtime than they are for straight time. In addition, white-collar employes have the option of taking compensatory time off in payment for overtime worked.

In the early stages of World War II, white-collar employes worked overtime at no additional pay. They worked a minimum of 48 hours a week.

The first overtime law for white-collar employes was approved by Congress in December, 1942, a year after Pearl Harbor. It was confined mainly to employes in the lower pay brackets. Other overtime laws were passed in 1943, 1945, and the present law in 1946. The 1946 law placed employes on a 5-day, 40-hour week at no loss in salary.

The House passed a bill to have the Government buy and pay for surety bonds its employes are required to carry. Representative Frank Karsten (D., Mo.), the author of the bill, said that one million Federal workers last year paid a total of $1,600,000 for their bonds. The Government, in return, recovered only $207,000 from the insurance company.

The Karsten bill would have the Government buy blanket bonds through competitive bids. Karsten estimated the net cost to the Government would be below $500,000 annually. The bill now goes to the Senate.

of our men overseas." It is unjustified, he declared, by any developments in the Korean war.

Morse particularly criticized the upward spiral enjoyed by meats. He asked several Washington butchers over the weekend, he asserted, and none was able to tell him what prices would be next week. In calling for controls, Morse insisted he wasn't calling for the type that prevailed through most of World War II. He indicated, instead, that he would seek control at the wholesale level.

"Congress has to decide the minimum steps it has to take to prevent profiteering," Morse shouted.

When Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kans.) interrupted to ask if Morse wasn't overlooking advances in the prices of cotton and finished goods, sheets, pillow cases, as well as children's clothing, Morse replied he was not. He declared that in addition to food and clothing, there was a gray market—"or even a black market"—in steel and house fixtures.

"To me," interruped Senator Herbert Lehman (D., N. Y.), "it is a clear case of taking advantage of a situation."

Morse was particularly bitter towards increases in meat prices, and ridiculed suggestions from the meat industry for voluntary controls.

"Voluntary controls," he said, "are a nice idea. But where are they?" He suggested that when controls are imposed "we'll have a rollback of prices instead of stabilization."

Senator William Langer (R., N. D.), declared the present situation "is a perfect example when you don't have the Brannan Plan. If we had the Brannan Plan," he continued "prices would be down and the farmers would get the cost of production." Langer added that "all we heard was scorn and ridicule when the Agriculture Department tried to get the Brannan Plan."

During the debate Maybank disclosed that he had discussed the situation and the possibilities of controls yesterday morning with the Banking and Currency Committee that he heads. He has called his group for Thursday morning to decide further action.

Until some official action is taken, Maybank said he hoped the public would "keep its head and avoid hoarding."

Simultaneously Gillette announced that after the Agriculture subcommittee on prices that he heads is through with its milk hearing Thursday it will turn to the price jumps in bread and coffee. The committee already had determined that earlier rises in both commodities were unwarranted.

A plan to reopen the hearings in bread and coffee prices, he said, had been discussed yesterday with the committee counsel, Paul Hadlick. Both Gillette and Morse termed the recent price increases "unconscionable."

Gromyko, Kelly Have Third Talk On Korea Conflict

Moscow, July 17 (AP).—Sir David Kelly, British Ambassador to Moscow, called on Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko tonight for the third time in less than two weeks regarding the Korean conflict.

The British Embassy announced that the meeting was at the request of Gromyko. An embassy spokesman said:

"At this time, we cannot say very much about the meeting. About all we can say is that tonight's meeting was in connection with a continuation of talks on Korea.

Yost's Great Catch in 9th With 3 on Saves Nats, 3-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special:

CASEY STENGEL now suggests that the Cleveland Indians are the team to beat for the American League pennant, which ought to be somewhat disturbing to Cleveland fans. Stengel's considered opinions have been undistinguished for accuracy all season.

At the outset of the season, the Yankee manager was free with the opinion that the Red Sox were the club to beat, and then pulled a switch to point to the Tigers as the team to beat. No laurels accrued to his judgment, either, in the recent All-Star game when he routed most of the A. L. power out of the lineup and wound up getting shut out in the last nine innings.

POVICH

If the Indians are, indeed, the team to beat, the chances are they'd prefer to hear same from other than Stengel whose ideas this season are definitely not to be trusted.

FOR THE Naval Academy, there is a disconcerting fact in all its hullabaloo which finally resulted in a special act of Congress enabling Navy, like Army, to parcel out special appointments for athletes.

The Navy was moaning that Army had an unfair advantage the past eight years with its freedom to appoint football players to West Point. Its spokesmen enlisted the aid of Senator Saltonstall and told a subcommittee hearing that Navy could pull to even terms with Army on the football field if it could make a special batch of appointments available to athletes of its own choosing.

It will take more than that, though, an Army spokesman now declares. He stoutly insists that in the eight years West Point has had the privilege of filling these vacancies, 441 cadets have been named. Of that total, only 16 made football letters. And most were on the second and third teams, and none was a standout star.

THE GREATEST "day" for a big league baseball player since Bobby Doerr was showered with $22,000 worth of gifts by worshipful Fenway Park fans a couple of years ago, must have been the ceremonies honoring Al Carrasquel, the White Sox's Venezuelan shortstop, in Yankee Stadium on Sunday.

Between games of the doubleheader, they called Carrasquel to the plate. Flown from Caracas for the occasion were his mother, Maria, and his sister, Anna. The State Departments of both the United States and Venezuela were represented by ambassadorial rank. Chico got a Ford convertible, a gold watch, TV and radio sets, gold buckle, coat of arms in silver, luggage, a gold medal, and 15,000 bolivars which, it says here, means $5000 in cash.

The Dodgers originally "discovered" Carrasquel playing in Venezuela, signed him for $1000, sold him to the White Sox for $35,000. He was cheap at that price. They've turned down $150,000 for him, offered by the Detroit Tigers.

THE KOREAN WAR, yet, won't stop the Willie Pep-Bobby Bell fight he is putting on at Griffith Stadium Monday night, Promoter Goldie Ahearn promises. He has restored Pep in good standing after his run-out last week when the featherweight champion upped and got married on the day of the fight.

"This time it can't miss," says Ahearn. "Pep promised me he'll be in four days before the fight and I believe him. He's just come back from his honeymoon, and you know how it is—he needs the money."

WHEN THE Brooklyn Dodgers were 5½ games out of it, the nation's bookmakers were still quoting them as the favorites to win the pennant, and that judgment is now looking pretty bright.

They weren't quitting on the Dodgers in mid-season, as one of 'em put it "because there's no limit to what Branch Rickey can do. When he needs help, he can go down to his minor leagues and come up with ball players who are all ready for the majors. Watch what happens."

A sample of what happened took place Sunday in Brooklyn. The Dodgers were playing the league-leading Cardinals. Chris Van Cuyk, a pitcher called up from Fort Worth, was making his first start for the Dodgers. He gave the Cardinals seven hits, beat 'em 10-2, and pumped new life into Burt Shotton's pitching staff.

Ed Piles Into Canvas But Holds Foul; Kuzava Wins

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats went spectacular on defense in the ninth inning last night, gave aid and comfort to relief man Mickey Harris, and preserved a 3-1 victory the Browns were threatening to convert into a Washington debacle.

Harris inherited his 3-1 lead from Bob Kuzava, who checked the Browns with six hits in eight innings, but was deemed to be tired and didn't show for the ninth. Against Harris the Browns were making motions as if to get all the runs they needed.

They put the tying runs on base with one out when Ken Wood walked and George Sternweiss singled to left. At that point Irv Noren frustrated 'em temporarily with a skittish catch of Friend's sinking liner at his kneecaps for the second out. But when Harris walked Tom Upton, filling the bases, the Browns were only one hit away from a tie.

Yost Takes Pressure Off

The Browns wheeled in Jim Delsing as a pinch hitter, and he took Harris down to a 3-and-2 count. Then it was that Eddie Yost took the pressure off everybody.

Delsing floated a high foul that appeared headed for the seats in short left field, and it seemed a hopeless chase when Yost took off in pursuit, with seemingly more courage than good sense. Yost made a headlong grab for the ball, nose-dived full tilt atop the rolled-up tarpaulin, somersalted against the retaining wall and somehow held the ball.

Just to impress the umpires he had made the catch, he held the ball aloft while tumbling. He watched 'em wave Delsing out to end the game and then took time out to investigate his bruises. Yost raced from the field apparently unhurt, with the grateful Mickey Harris pounding him on the back.

Kuzava, unruffled by the sore pitching thumb he took into the game, did a clever 4-hit shutout job on the Browns until the 8th inning when pinch hitter Les Moss rocked him for a home run far into the left field seats to cut his lead to 3-1.

Moss, the Brownies' hefty catcher, was batting for Duane Pillette, the ex-Yankee right hander who had been dueling Kuzava smartly all evening. Kuzava was in more trouble later in the inning when Lenhardt singled and Kokos walked with one out, but Yost helped him over that hump by starting a double play on Lollar's grounder.

Mickey Vernon gave the Nats their big hit—a two-bagger into the right field corner—after Noren singled to right with one out in the fourth. Noren took a gamble and scored from third after Shortstop Upton raced into foul territory for a grab of Stewart's foul fly.

Michaels Bats in Vernon

The Brownies squawked about the close play at the plate.

Vernon moved to third during that sequence, and raced home with the Nats' second run on Michaels' long fly to Kokos. The Browns were threatening to get those two, and more, back in the fifth when they filled the bases against Kuzava with none out, on a single by Stirnweiss, Yost's fumble of Friend's bunt, and Upton's single to right center. Stirnweiss played the latter blow over-cautiously, and it merely filled the bases.

More trouble piled up for Kuzava when Pillette worked him to a 3-0 count, but he bore down to get three strikes over on the Brownie pitcher. And then Yost atoned for his earlier error by starting an inning-ending double play on Lenhardt's ground ball.

Vernon Starts Rally

In the sixth Vernon launched the Nats' third run with a single to center. He raced to second on Stewart's infield out and romped home on Michaels' single to center.

The Nats' smallest home crowd of the season, a scane gathering of 2805 was present for one of the year's better ball games.

IN SHORT . . . The Nats will have the doubtful pleasure tonight of hitting against Ray Scarborough of the White Sox. There were hot words between the Nats and their former mate the last time Scarborough worked and brushed a few of the boys back . . . Sandy Conseugara will pitch for the Nats. Mickey Grasso is to see more action for the Nats during Al Evans' hitting slump .

Tigers Drop A's Twice, Bosox, Indians Split

Detroit Squeaks By In Nightcap, 3-1, After Winning, 8-6

Philadelphia, July 17 (AP).—Detroit Tigers picked up ground in the American League pennant race by taking both ends of a twi-night bill off the Philadelphia Athletics tonight.

Saul Rogovin hurled Red Rolfe's Tigers to a 3-1 second game triumph after a three run eighth inning rally had gained an 8-6 first game victory.

Rogovin scattered seven A's hits and was in serious trouble only in the sixth inning as the Athletics' lone run crossed the plate on two walks, an infield out and catcher Joe Astroth's single.

Detroit scored one run in the initial inning, and again in the second inning on a walk to Johnny Groth, followed by singles off the bats of Rogovin and Lipon. The final Tiger rally came in the eighth on Evers' single, a two-base wild throw by Hank Wyse and Groth's outfield fly.

The deciding three-run rally in the first game started off with Evers singling.

Rosen Belts 26th In 11-6 Triumph; Boston Wins 2d, 7-5

Boston, July 17 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox coasted to a 7 to 5 victory in a floodlight contest after being out-slugged 11-6 by the Cleveland Indians in a day-night doubleheader.

The after-piece was a rather drab affair after the day game that saw Al Rosen's 26th homer, moving the Cleveland third baseman into a tie for major league lead in that department with Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner. The Bosox's junior Stephens belted his 22nd homer, with one on during the day game.

The Red Sox combed Mike Garcia, appearing here for the second time in two days, in the first inning for five runs on four hits and a walk. In the seventh, against Chick Pieretti, Walt Dropo clinched the game for the Red Sox by hitting his 23rd homer of the season.

Matt Batts banged another Boston homer, his third, in the eighth and that was double insurance.

The night triumph was credited to Joe Dobson, who was knocked out of action early in the sunlight game but came back under the floodlights to rescue Lefty Maury McDermott and finally gain his 10th win against eight losses.

In the afternoon, Rosen ruined Joe Dobson's hopes in the first inning when he lofted his 26th fourbagger into the left field screen with Dale Mitchell and Luke Easter aboard.

Browns Really Robbed, Umps Not Responsible

The Browns were robbed at Griffith Stadium over the weekend, but the umpires were not guilty. Sneak thieves were.

The robbers entered the Browns' dressing room some time after Sunday's double header, via an open gate in their dugout, and filched eleven gloves, four pairs of shoes, two field jackets and four caps.

St. Louis players took the field last night with equipment borrowed from their luckier teammates. The heaviest loser was George Stirnweiss, who lost two gloves, two pairs of shoes. Outfielder Jim Delsing and Pitcher Clarence Marshall also lost two gloves.

Roe Stops St. Louis With 5-Hitter, 7-1, After 6-3 Victory

St. Louis, July 17 (AP).—Behind the 5-hit pitching of Preacher Roe, the Brooklyn Dodgers crushed St. Louis 7-1 in the night game of a day-night doubleheader today, dropping the Cardinals into a second-place tie with Boston—one half game behind Philadelphia.

It was the Dodgers' seventh straight triumph over the Redbirds. Brooklyn won the first contest today, 6-3.

In gaining his eleventh victory, Roe struck out five men, walked but one.

On the first pitch of the night game, leadoff man Bobby Morgan hit a homer to the right field roof. Carl Furillo slammed one into center field, Chuck Diering lost it in the lights and it fell for a triple, scoring Duke Snider who had walked.

In the first game, the Dodgers ran the bases like blind men but managed to locate home plate often enough for their third victory.

Napoleon's Take Sixth in Row, 3-0

Napoleon's Restaurant won its sixth straight Washington Boys Club senior league victory yesterday defeating Merrick Boys Club, 3-0, on the North Ellipse behind the three-hit pitching of Ray Reardon.

Bosox Peddle Schanz to Coast

Boston, July 17 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox today recalled right-handed Pitcher Gordon Mueller from their Louisville American Association farm team and sold Pitcher Charlie Schanz to the Seattle Pacific Coast League Club.

Mueller had a record of four wins and three losses after appearing in 17 games for the Colonels.

Nippy Jones Back on Active List

Cards Ship Johnny Lindell to Minors

St. Louis, July 17 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals put Nippy Jones back on the active list today and sold Outfielder Johnny Lindell to the Columbus, Ohio, club.

Jones went on the disabled list the first day of the season with a back injury. He is expected to return to first base shortly.

Lindell came to the Cardinals from the New York Yankees during the season so Stan Musial could move from the outfield to first base. Chuck Diering also was injured at the time and the Cardinals needed outfield help.

Hogan Named Again

New York, July 17 (AP).—Ben Hogan's stirring comeback victory in the United States Open golf championship earned the little Texan the June award in the Hickok professional athlete of the year competition.

It was Hogan's second triumph in the monthly balloting. He was picked first for the January prize. Far behind in second place came Larry Jansen, the able New York Giant right-hander who had a fine month on the mound. The Johnny Longden-Noor jockey-horse combination was named first eight times and collected 76 points for third.

Joe Wants Dough

New York, July 17 (AP).—Heavyweight Jersey Joe Walcott flew to Germany today to clear up "certain technicalities" holding up his $27,000 purse.

That was the sum the Camden, N. J., veteran was supposed to get for beating Germany's Hein Ten Hoff in Mannheim last May 28. Walcott said he didn't expect to encounter any difficulty in collecting. Walcott said he would discuss terms for a bout there with Conny Rux, the young German heavyweight.

Soccer Gets Rich

Rio De Janeiro, July 17 (AP).—The total gate receipts for the world cup soccer tournament which here yesterday was approximately $1,825,000. A crowd of about 170,000 people paid $313,100 to see Uruguay upset Brazil, 2 to 1, in the final Sunday. The same day the third-place game between Spain and Sweden at Sao Paulo drew $16,500.

Noor Comes East

New York, July 17(AP).—Eastern horse fanciers will get a glimpse of famed Noor in action this August. The Saratoga Racing Association said today it had received requests for stable space from Burley Paarke, who trains the crack five-year old Irish-bred stepper. Noor beat the great Citation several times in record-breaking times on the West Coast.

Kramer Keeps Job

New York, July 17—(AP).—Jack Kramer again will be the No. 1 performer of Bobby Riggs' 1950-51 professional tennis tour although he failed to win either of the major pro tournaments this year.

Riggs announced today that Kramer had been signed for another tour for the same percentage of the receipts that he received last season. Riggs also said that the offer he made to Gertrude (Gussie) Moran still stands and that he expects to talk to her on his arrival in New York for the Nationals.

Eight Die in Victory 'Celebration'

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, July 17 (U.P.).—Eight persons died last night while celebrating Uruguay's world championship soccer victory over Brazil. Three fans died of heart attacks while listening to the radio broadcast of the game played in Rio de Janeiro. The others succumbed when the Uruguayans ran wild last night celebrating the victory.

AAU Swim Meet Tonight

Four new District of Columbia AAU senior outdoor swimming champions will emerge from tonight's third annual Congressional Country Club Invitational meet.

Titles will be decided in the men's and women's 50-yard freestyles and 150-yard individual medley swim. Only two defending champions, freestyler Stan Tinkham and individual medley titlist and record-holder Bettie Roland are listed among the more than 100 entries.

The men's medley and the women's freestyle are open affairs as Lew Hedges and Wilhelmina Orme, 1949 winners, will not defend. Predominant among the favorites in the latter race are D. C. AAU junior champions Audrey Cunningham and Mary Freeman of Congressional and Walter Reed Hospital, respectively, and Joel Leeman and Barbara Hobelmann, both of Ambassador, as well as Takoma's Gloria Dirr.

The eight-event program opens at 7:30 p. m., with all contestants reporting to the clerk of the course half an hour earlier.

Tip to Boat Owners

New Rubber Base Paint Kills Organisms, Prevents Fouling

By Happy Walker

BOATING FOLKS are always on the lookout for new advances in the field of marine industry, especially a product for skippers concerned with better performance, reduced cost and an easier job. There are a number of new products which resulted from extensive experimentation and development during the war years that are now available. Some of these products fall into the marine category.

Walker

We have heard a number of stories about rubber base paints for bottom and siding use. So, when we heard of a new rubber base paint product called paracoat, we spent some time with the manufacturers getting all the facts together. Here is the story.

Paracoat is a rubber-based paint, having as its origin a formula similar to that used for foundry core surfacing for many years. For several years, the manufacturers — Foundry Rubber Corporation—have been conducting exhaustive tests of paracoat for marine paint use. For bottom use, special poisons are homogenized into the regular paint to kill organic growth and to prevent fouling.

Tests have proven that paracoat, when properly applied, will not chip or crack, and is entirely waterproof. Paracoat also comes in stainless steel, especially for use on exposed metal parts, motors, rudders, centerboards, etc. The principal advantage of paracoat is that being waterproof, bottom surfaces are dry, therefore, water will not adhere to the surface causing a drag going through the water.

Several noted marine architects have indorsed paracoat as highly satisfactory. The fast drying action of paracoat is a distinctive and proven fact. Former P. R. S. A. secretary, Newton Canter, said recently, "After using paracoat and finding it highly satisfactory, I believe that your product should be brought to the attention of every sail and power boat owner."

NEW COMMITTEE appointments just released by the President's Cup Regatta Association for Washington's month-long aquatic celebration in September include: Trophy Committee—Jack Blank, Chairman; Reviewing Committee — Leonard P. Walsh, Chairman, Gordon F. Cooper and William M. Fathian, Vice Chairmen; James A. Councilor will head up yacht club coordination.

Added to the stellar power boat weekend September 16 and 17 will be an illuminated marine parade to be staged on Thursday evening preceding the races. Also added, will be a fireworks display, through the cooperation of the Sesquicentennial Commission. Assisting Jack Miller, Pageant Chairman will be Roswell E. Boothby, Frank Courtney, James H. Hannan, jr., Col. C. C. Jadwin and Gene Duffer. Ben Treadwell was named membership chairman while Leon Chatelaine, jr., heads up the program committee with Harry L. Merrick assisting.

THE CAPITAL Power Boat Association will hold its second novice racing clinic at Frank Miller's Boat Yard, foot of M st. sw., on Sunday starting at 11 a. m. Racing hopefuls, especially beginners, are particularly invited to take part in the get-together which will include demonstrations of the required racing techniques that go with small speedboat racing.

Champ 'Hurt' But Doctor Says He's OK

Scranton, Pa., July 17 (AP).—Sugar Ray Robinson faces suspension, fine and a probably damage suit if he goes through with his announced intention of not defending the Pennsylvania version of the middleweight boxing title against Jose Basora here Wednesday.

Robinson, also the world's welterweight champion, said today he would not appear for the 15-round fight in Scranton after he had been pronounced physically fit by Dr. Leonard M. Freda, Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission physician.

Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association and New Jersey State Athletic Commissioner, said tonight Robinson told him Saturday he would box Basora any time after he defends his welterweight title against Charlie Fusari in Jersey City August 9 for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Greene said Sugar Ray claimed he had caught a cold in his back one night recently while out with Walter Winchell, one of the sponsors of the charity bout, and was in "no shape for a decent performance" in Scranton.

Greene, at his home in Paterson, N. J., said the Jersey City fight had been contracted for before the Basora fight and Robinson's purse for it would be $1. He said the Fusari-Robinson meeting was to be ratified tomorrow. He said he didn't think the Pennsylvania commission would want to interfere with a charity bout.

The head of the NBA said Robinson would not be allowed to fight "anywhere in NBA territory under any circumstances" until he fulfills his contract to fight Basora following his meeting with Fusari.

Dr. Freda sent Sugar Ray through an hour workout and then X-rayed his back.

"There's nothing to interfere with Robinson fighting Basora here Wednesday night," Dr. Freda told Chairman George L. Jones, jr., of the commission by phone.

Jones, who lives in Williamsport, was not available for comment. But before the examination Jones said if Robinson fails to go through with the fight he would suspend him, fine him a greater sum than any boxer ever had been fined in Pennsylvania and see that damage suits are instigated in behalf of the promoter and Basora.

Justice Joins College All-Stars

Chicago, July 17 (AP).—Charley (Choo-Choo) Justice, all-America halfback from the University of North Carolina, today belatedly joined the College Football All-Stars for the August 11 game against the Philadelphia Eagles at Soldier Field.

Justice notified the Chicago Tribune, All-Star game sponsor, that he had cancelled a proposed trip to Europe and will make his final football appearance against the Eagles. Justice was drafted by the Washington Redskins of the National Football League but has decided against a professional career.

7 From D. C. Play Today At Denver

Denver, July 17.—All seven Washington, D. C., entries in the USGA National Junior Amateur Championships will see action here tomorrow as first round competition begins.

Last year's champion, Gay Brewer, jr., of Lexington, Ky., has passed the age limit and cannot defend his title, 128 competitors from 32 States will scrap for the vacated throne.

Kay Fletcher, 15-year-old Roosevelt High lad of Washington, drew a tough first round opponent in Melvin Woelfling, medalist from the Cleveland area, who shot a 73 in his qualifying round.

On other matches, Perky Cullinane, St. John, will play Don Slutes, Tucson, Ariz.; Denny Bolster of Gonzaga High meets John Gloecker, Lexington, Ky., Billy Wolfe, Devitt Prep, meets Bob Millar, Minneapolis; and Bill Wilbourne, Washington Golf and Country Club, meets Michael Levin, also of Minneapolis.

Western High's Bill Ball meets John Geertsen of San Francisco, and Washington area medalist Ellsworth Franklin, jr., of Dahlgren, Va., is paired with Bob Donovan, Shreveport, La.

2 Virginians Win Pro-Am At Columbia

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Jack Isaacs, Langley Field, Va., professional, who plays his Maryland State Open title today at Columbia Country Club, will be a hard man to beat.

Isaacs got in a good tune-up round yesterday, shooting a one-under-par 69 to tie Charley Bassler, Rolling Road pro, for top money in the Pro Sweepstakes at Middle Atlantic PGA's Pro-Amateur tournament at Columbia Country Club.

Preston Licklider, Front Royal, Va., turned in a one-over-par 71 and aided by half of an eight handicap, had a best ball 64 with Professional Fenner Satchwell, of Front Royal, to win the Pro-Amateur.

Dr. Joseph Kenrick of Kenwood Country Club was the sole local linksman to land a top spot in any of the events, tying with Jack Emich of Baltimore Country Club for both low gross and low net in the Amateur Sweepstakes. Dr. Kenrick and Emich had identical 73-4—69s.

Isaacs went out in a one-under-par 34. He birdied the short 225-yard 4th hole with a deuce, and the 340-yard 7th with a three, sinking a ten-footer. He bogied the second hole, missing a six-foot putt for the par.

Coming in, Isaacs birdied the 154-yard sixteenth, laying the ball 3 feet from the cup on his tee shot. A bogey on the tenth and pars on the other holes made him even with the card returning.

Roger Peacock, Sligo pro, and Frank Donaldson of Bethesda were the only area entrants to get a look-in at the Pro-Am, finishing in a four-way tie for fouth with 66.

PRO SWEEPS

Jack Isaacs (Langley Field, Va.) and Charley Bassler (Rolling Road) tied for first with 69 each. Andy Gibson (Country Club of Maryland) third with 71. Buck Worsham (Congressional), Harold Oatman (Norfolk) and Ralph Beach (Suburban) tied for fourth with 72 each. Walt Romans (Baltimore Country Club), John O'Donnell (Norfolk), John Bass (Clifton Park) and Roger Peacock (Sligo) tied for seventh, 73 each.

AMATEUR SWEEPS

Jack Emich (Baltimore Country Club) and Dr. Joseph Kenrick (Kenwood) tied for first with 73—4—69s. Dr. S. G. Bupert (Baltimore), 78—7—71, and C. ... Slater (Columbia), 76—5—71, tied for third.

PRO-AMATEUR

Fenner Satchwell and Preston Licklider, both of Front Royal, first, 94; John Bass and Dick Mullin, both of Clifton Park, Baltimore, and Walter Romans and Jack Emich, both of Baltimore Country Club, tied for second, 65 each; Charley Bassler and Ken Craig, of Rolling Road; Charley Bassler and William Hess, both of Rolling Road; Ralph Reuch and David Ralle, both of Suburban, and Roger Peacock (Sligo) and Francis Donaldson (Bethesda) tied for fourth, 66 each.

Maryland Open Today at Columbia

The Maryland Open, a 36 hole medal play tournament, will be played today at Columbia Country Club. George Fazio, Woodmont prof essional, is the favorite to take the Free State golf title.

51 Players Turn out as Redskins Open Drills in California

Los Angeles, July 17 (AP).—The Washington Redskins opened their training camp at Occidental College today with their largest first day roster—51 players. Two light workouts, including signal drills, were held today.

Looking lively and alert in the practices were Quarterback Sammy Baugh, starting his fourteenth year in pro football; Quarterback Harry Gilmer and Halfback Joe Bartos, former Navy and Marine Corps ace.

Five rookies are leaving tomorrow for the Chicago All-Star college of the Pacific; Tackle Lou Karras, formerly of Purdue, Center Steve Ulinski, formerly of Kentucky, and Halfbacks George Thomas of Oklahoma, Hall Haynes, farmerly with Santa Clara and Eddie LeBaron, of College of Pacific.

Colts Will Be Better, Coach Crowe Promises

Westminster, Md., July 17 (AP).—"We're going to be an improved club," Coach Clem Crowe promised today as the Baltimore Colts of the National Profesional Football League opened preseason drills.

Twenty-four aspirants, most of them rookies, turned out for limbering up exercises, medical and dental checks and equipment issue.

Most of the 20 holdovers and some of the newcomers, including former Baylor backfield star Adrian Burk, will be swinging into camp at Western Maryland college here later this week.

Crowe is beginning his first year with the Colts after coaching the Buffalo Bills of the now defunct All-American Conference last year.

The Colts managed to win but one of 12 in the All-America last year.

Drills will swing into a two-a-day routine tomorrow, and will continue until the season opener September 17 with the Washington Redskins in Baltimore.

Jockey Bone Rides Five More Winners

Scarborough, Me., July 17 (AP).—Frank (Buster) Bone today booted five winners home at Scarborough Downs.

The feat included three wins in a row with Wild Bull in the second race, Bona Girl in the third and Aristopur in the fourth. It was the second successive day Bone scored a consecutive triple.

The Oklahoma jockey raised his total of winners to 25 in 14 days.

Postmaster Indicted on Sixty Counts

A former Dumfries, Va. postmaster faces 60 counts of forging and uttering checks and a money order worth $1316 when he appears before the December term of the Federal District Court in Alexandria.

The indictments have been returned against French S. Brawner, 61, by a Federal grand jury at Newport News, Va., and the case transferred to the Alexandria court for trial.

Court officials there said Brawner has been freed in $2500 bond.

The indictments charge him with forging and passing 29 Government checks, stealing a letter in which one of the checks was mailed, and forging a $25 Postoffice money order.

All of the Government checks were tax refunds save one; a $60 pension check. Only two of the checks were for more than $100. The indictments accuse Brawner of forging the name of the check payees and then cashing them.

The Government claims the offenses took place between June, 1946, and June, 1949. All checks were intended for persons served by the Dumfries postoffice.

Last December, Brawner was acquitted in the Alexandria District Court of a forgery charge after a number of Dumfries residents testified for him.

12 Suits Filed Charging Poor Home Building

Twelve suits asking $20,000 damages each charging breach of contract were filed yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court, against Miller Properties, Inc., 8007 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, Md.

The suits filed at Rockville by Attorney John M. McInerney of Bethesda, allege that the houses purchased by the plaintiffs did not meet the specifications in sample houses, plaster is falling and that beams and walls were built smaller thn the contrct clls for.

The suits further allege that the Miller company promised to correct the deficiencies if the plaintiffs would complete their settlements and that this was not performed.

The Miller company has until August 22 to answer the allegations. Officials of the company were not available for comment last night.

The plaintiffs, all of whom purchased homes in the Montgomery Knolls subdivision, are:

John M. and Kitty S. Baines, 911 Newhall st.; Charles L. and Minnie M. Bartholomew, 900 Newhall s.; John S. and Marian E. Batchelder, 906 Newhall st.; Adolpf B. and Helen P. D. C. Man Pays $250 for Chair Like One That Sold for $15,000

A chair that was "there" when the Declaration of Independence was signed and the American flag adopted is now in the home of a Washington resident.

Wohl

It is the lucky purchase of Stanley Wohl of 3107 Cleveland ave. nw., retired political writer for North Carolina newspapers.

Wohl purchased the chair for a paltry—as such things go—$250 at a Philadelphia auction recently.

Wohl, who is furnishing his house with antiques, was in Philadelphia when he heard that the property of a Long's Museum was being auctioned off, and he recalled as a child having heard his father speak of the muesum. The museum had been closed since 1885, and the old exhibits were beng auctioned to pay the storage bill.

The chair once belonged to George Wythe, a Virgnia signer of the Declaraton of Independence. Originally 32 chairs were made for members of the Pennsylvania Assembly, which turned its chamber and chairs over to the Continental Congress. According to the affidavit that came with it, confirmed by Wohl's research, this chair had been Wythe's.

Of the original 32 chairs, 21 are now on display in Independence Hall, and one is on display at Wanamaker's Philadelphia store. John Wanamaker paid $15,000 for it years ago, Wohl said.

House Unit Backs Land Transfer to N. Y. Ave. Church

The House Public Works Committee yesterday approved but delayed action on a measure to transfer from the Government to the New York Presbyterian Church a small strip of land at the east front of the new church.

The new building is going up on New York ave. near 13th st. nw.

Chairman William M. Whittington (D., Miss.) explained the bill was not reported to the House because a committee quorum was not present at yesterday's meeting. He said his group probably will recommend the transfer at a nominal fee of $1.

Experts Report Definite Link Between Smoking and Cancer

Paris, July 17 (U.P.).—A group of American scientists today reported that there is definitely a relationship between smoking and cancer, particularly cancer of the lung, lip and larynx.

It was a strong statement in that the doctors used plain language that any tobacco-user could understand.

One expert, Dr. Morton L. Levin of Albany, N. Y., told the fifth international conference on cancer, that a study of more than 7000 patients had been made in New York State—the largest study ever made—and that the figures show that "throughout life, about 14 out of 1000 cigarette smokers would probably develop lung cancer as compared with a little over 6 per 1000 nonsmokers."

Levin said that about 4 out of a 1000 cigarette smokers "might be expected to develop larynx cancer as compared with 1.4 per 1000 nonsmokers, and 17 lip cancers would occur among each 1000 pipe smokers as compared with 3 per 1000 nonsmokers."

He emphaiszed that non-smokers do not have an immunity, but that they do have a lower rate of incidence. His study, made in connection with the New York State Health Department, was on patients at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, since 1938.

Another expert, Dr. Alton Ochsner, New Orleans, La., said that lung cancer is the most increasing type of cancer and that the increase runs right along with tne rate of increase in smoking among men and women, He said, however, that men are more susceptible than women to lung cancer.

Ochsner said lung cancer has an insidious start and it is usually some months before symptoms become so pronounced that a patient goes to a doctor. The survival rate is low, but in recent years. Some progress in surgery has been made, he said.

Ochsner said lung cancer was found more in men who had smoked for 20 years or more. He added that to give up smoking after such a period would not prevent cancer if it was on the way.

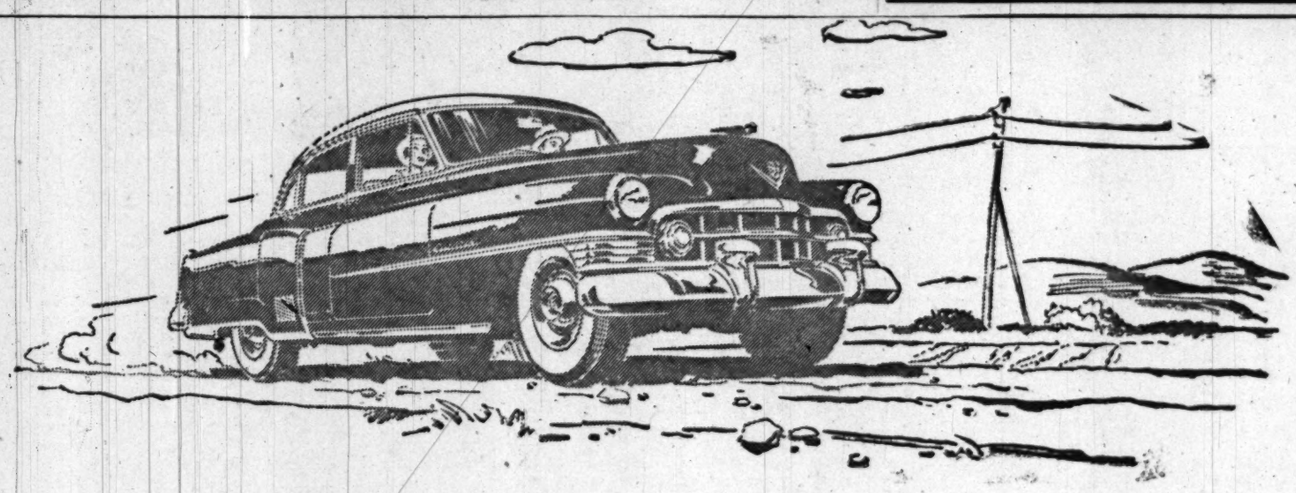
A third expert, Dr. Ernest L. Wynder, formerly of St. Louis and now of Georgetown University, Washington, said tobacco must contain some agents that may cause cancer. He recommended the elimination of those substances and "moderation of smoking habits" as a means of reducing the "great incidence and mortality of lung cancer.

Drs. Oschsner and Wynder have never smoked. Dr. Levin said he stopped smoking after having completed his survey in New York State.

Farmer Fires at Target, Kills 5-Year-Old Son

Gravenhurst, Ont., July 17 (U.P.). Farmer Maurice Lemay pinned a target to the wall of a shack, backed off and fired his .22 caliber rifle.

He heard a scream from within the shack and rushed inside. His 5-year-old son Wayne, who had been changing his clothes after a swim, lay dead on the floor. Wayne had been shot through the heart.



Next Best Thing to a New Road!

YOU must understand, of course, that nothing in the world can take the place of a beautiful ribbon of improved highway——stretching so enticingly out into the open country, and all but beseeching you to come for a ride!

But under the happiest auspices, you will have to do much of your driving, for years to come, down roads and highways that leave something to be desired—

—and how lucky you'll be if you ride them out in a 1950 Cadillac!

In recent years, Cadillac has carried out a tremendous program of research and improvement to achieve a finer "rough-road" ride. The development work has covered steering, springs, shock absorbers, frame, wheels, tires, shackles—and all the attendant engineering problems involved.

In the 1950 Cadillacs, this program has come to full fruition—and the results are simply a revelation.

First, you get wonderful balance. The car "stays put"—and the rear wheels follow in line—and you have a reassuring feeling of stability, even when the going's uncommonly rough.

And your ride is amazingly level. You "float" over the bumps and the depressions, ever so gently. Only a road so bad that it deserves condemning can make itself obvious to either the driver or passengers. Ordinary shocks are simply absorbed.

And, of course, the remarkable quietness, of both body and chassis, shows up most dramatically on the roughest roads. For quality tells its finest story when the pressure is greatest.

Yes, there can be no question that a 1950 Cadillac is the next best thing to a new road!

But, of course, comfort is only one of Cadillac's superlative virtues.

It's Cadillac for beauty, too—and for safety, and performance, and long life, and economy. And, above all, for prestige. In fact, it's Cadillac for everything that makes a motor car a joy to possess and a pleasure to drive.

Why not come in and get acquainted with this wonderful car? We'd be happy to see you any time.

Bus Fares To Pentagon Said to Favor U.S. Workers

3 Transit Lines Ask ICC to End 'Joint Ticket or Increase Rates

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Present bus fares to the Pentagon and other nearby Government installations are "discriminatory" in that they favor Government employes over other riders, Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner H. C. Lawton was told yesterday.

The statement was made by officials of the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co., who are asking the ICC for an increase of

THE FEDERAL DIARY

5 cents over the 10-cent fare now charged between Washington and the Pentagon, Navy Annex and National Airport.

While the line is asking for a 15-cent fare, Beverly C. May, secretary treasurer and general manager of the bus line, said he thought rides to the Government buildings should cost 20 cents in cash, or 17½ cents in tokens—the same fares asked by the company for trips to "comparable areas" in nearby Virginia.

Riders "Favored"

Both May and Robert T. Mitchell, vice president of A. B. & W., said that Government employes, who constitute a majority of the riders to the Pentagon and Navy Annex, are "favored" over other patrons of the line by having the special 10-cent fare. Trips between Washington and most other Virginia areas cost 15 cents cash. In one zone, a token fare of 12½ cents is provided.

The Washington, Virginia and Maryland bus line (Arnold) also is asking for a 15-cent Pentagon fare.

Both Virginia transit companies and the Capital Transit Co. are further asking the ICC to abolish the "joint ticket" now sold by the bus lines. The tickets, costing 16 cents each, are for rides to and from the Virginia Government installations over Capital Transit and either one of the Virginia lines.

Each of the three transit companies is also asking, in the event the inter-line ticket is not abolished, for an increase in their respective shares of the joint fare, to 15 cents.

How Fare is Split

At present, Capital Transit receives 7 cents of the joint fare, while 9 cents goes to A. B. & W. or Arnold Lines.

Mitchell declared the 10-cent zone to the Government installations was established at the request of the Government.

The "discrimination" which now favors Government employes will be even greater, he said, if other fares are increased and the "Pentagon fare" is not.

He referred to a separate request now pending before the ICC for 5-cent increases in interstate fares between Washington and all points in Virginia served by the bus line, other than the special zone including the Government installations.

All Ask For Increase

All three transit companies are united in asking for abolition of the joint fare ticket and for higher fares. However, Mitchell was subjected to considerable cross-examination by attorneys for the other two carriers, and by F. W. Denniston, counsel for the Secretary of the Army and representative of the armed services.

Denniston said he wanted a "just and reasonable" fare to the Government installations, and did not care how the fare was divided by the three lines.

A. B. & W. officials estimated that the higher Pentagon fare would result in a 15 percent drop in passengers because of Government-provided parking spaces at the installations, which encourage driving to work and car pools, as Mitchell explained it.

GI Sued by Wife for Return Of Son; Court Issues Writ

MRS. MARY B. LENT MAX U. L. LENT, JR.
. . . Mother and son she says husband took from her

A writ of habeas corpus, ordering him to produce his 5-year-old son for an Arlington Circuit Court hearing Wednesday, was served yesterday on Sergt. Max U. L. Lent, sr., 32, of South Post, Fort Myer.

His 28-year-old wife, Mrs. Mary B. Lent, charged in a Circuit Court petition that her husband took the child from her, after she was clamped illegally in a Walter Reed neuro-psychiatric ward for five days.

The habeas corpus decree was issued Saturday by Judge William D. Medley, in response to a petition prepared by attorneys William C. Nemeth and J. Wooten Pearce.

Mrs. Lent of Athens, Ohio, says she came to Washington July 6 with her son, Max U. L. Lent, jr., for the purpose of seeing her husband.

On July 8, her petition charges, her husband induced her to go with him to Walter Reed General Hospital "under the pretense of visiting a marriage counselor."

Once there, with the "connivance" of her husband and "other persons," she alleges she was detained against her will, and denied the right to communicate with family, friends or an attorney.

At the same time, the petition says, her son was "forcibly taken from her" by her husband.

All this was done "without any legal process or court order of any kind," according to the petition.

Mrs. Lent, reached last night at a downtown Washington hotel, said she and her husband were married in Athens in April, 1944. He was stationed in Oklahoma for some time, and later served several months with the Army of Occupation in Germany. She has lived in Athens during most of their marriage.

In 1947, according to Mrs. Lent, he was assigned to the Pentagon, where he has been doing office work since.

Mrs. Lent says her husband sued her for divorce last January, in Ohio, on the grounds that "I was hindering him from further educating himself," but later dropped the suit.

Col. Eugene R. Inwood, chief of the Walter Reed neuro-psychiatric service, said that Mrs. Lent "came in as a voluntary admission, and never requested personally to be discharged."

However, Colonel Inwood said she did request through an attorney that she be discharged on July 13, and was promptly released.

Dr. Baker said that Mrs. Lent "was not detained by force, or against her will, and that if at any time during the five-day evaluation period she had wanted to leave, she could have."

He added that Mrs. Lent was free to make, and did make, numerous phone calls during her hospital stay.

Montgomery Enforcing Roomer Rule

Zoning Ordinance Prohibits Use of 1-Family Homes For Lodging Rentals

Roomers in single-family Montgomery County homes, once tolerated and even encouraged for patriotic reasons, are being told they must move.

They will have to find other quarters because the county has ordered enforcement of a provision of the zoning ordinance which generally has been disregarded during the 22 years it has been on the books.

Officials estimate "hundreds" of homes will be affected.

The ordinance says only one family may live in a home located in a residential A zone, the classification for such dwellings.

Since 1928, when the ordinance went into effect, there has never been any real enforcement of the provision, it was explained yesterday by Morton Thomas. He is head of the county department of inspection and licensing, which began operating this year under a new law.

Thomas saw no sense in having an ordinance on the books without enforcing it, he said yesterday. Home owners who are violating the rooming ordinance will receive notice that they must get their tenants to move in 60 or 90 days, depending on the amount of hardship involved.

The notices are sent on basis of neighbors' complaints or in cases turned up by the department's inspections. Thomas said the ordinance does not ban close relatives of the home-owning family from living in one-family homes.

Families living in Residential B zones, where two-family homes are allowed, may obtain a special exemption, allowing them to have roomers, from the board of zoning appeals, Thomas said. There is no exemption provided for Residential A homes.

A fine of $50 may be imposed for each violation of the ordinance, Thomas said, but he promised his enforcement procedure will not be "too harsh."

30 Wave Reservists Shove Off for Patuxent; One Is an 'Old Salt' From World War I Duty

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

TIE? AS EASY AS PIE—Wave Helen Zeiger (right) straightens the tie of Wave Reservist Madelyn Gratrix of Alexandria after she was issued new uniform yesterday. A "Yeomanette" of World War I, she'll start two-week recruit training today

Thirty brand new Wave reservists will plunge into a two-week dose of recruit indoctrination training at 8 a. m. today, when they shove off for the Patuxent River Naval Air Station.

Most of the girls, seaman apprentices from the Fourth Naval District, have had no previous service in the Navy.

One, however, is Madelyn Pence Gratrix, 49, of 3816 Old Dominion dr., Alexandria, who got her first taste of the Navy back in 1918 as a "yeomanette." Although over the age limit, she received special permission to reenlist.

"In those days, people didn't go along with women in uniforms," she recalled while waiting at Quarters K in Arlington for her uniform to be issued. "We were almost ostracized."

At the naval air station, they will sit through eight hours a day of class instruction on military etiquette, naval terms, history and organization of the Navy, seamanship, and Navy regulations and discipline. They'll also master military drill, first aid, and swimming before they're finished. But they will have most evenings free for dancing, swimming and sports.

At the close of the training course, for which they receive regulation Navy pay, the girls will be returned to civilian life, and listed on the Navy's inactive reserve rolls.

The enlisted women reserves must be between the ages of 18 and 44, must have a high school diploma and be physically fit.

Twelve of the 30 reservists in the present group—drawn from Washington, Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey—come from the Washington area.

House Unit Votes Added $20,000 for Crime Probe

Counsel Fischbach Target of Several Congressmen in Secret Session

After a three-hour secret session, the House Accounts Subcommittee voted yesterday to grant $20,000 more to the House District Crime investigation.

Two subcommittee members, asking to remain anonymous, said discussion of Hyman I. Fischbach, counsel for the crime probe, was the "focal" point of the morning meeting.

They said some Congressmen raised objections to Fischbach.

The two congressmen also said their Accounts Subcommittee directed its chairman, Thomas B. Stanley (D., Va.), to write a letter to members of the crime investigating group calling attention to testimony of yesterday's hearing.

Hays to Continue Own Probe

Representative Wayne L. Hays (D., Ohio), member of the Accounts Subcommittee who once blocked approval of additional crime funds, told reporters:

"I voted to extend the investigation, but I am reserving my right to continue my own private investigation into some phases of the probe and reserve the right to go onto the floor and make public what I find if anything."

Stanley later denied that his committee voted to direct him or any other member of his group to write a letter to crime committee members regarding the local crime investigation or any of its staffers.

Stanley added, however, that the Accounts Subcommittee "will be glad to confer" with the crime group "if it so desires."

Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.) of the crime subcommittee said the $20,000, if approved by the House Administration Committee, would go toward paying past expenses and for further investigation of District crime and law enforcement.

Davis Silent on Plans

Davis parried reporters' questions on whether there would be further open hearings and to what agencies the probers might turn next.

If the money is granted, he said, "the subcommittee will continue drafting remedial legislation and do a lot more work we can't talk about without nullifying it."

Yesterday's acounts subcommittee session was scheduled to be a public hearing. A few minutes before it started, it was ordered closed with no reason stated.

The meeting began with all five crime committee members, Fischbach and Assistant Counsel John Woog in attendance. Forty-five minutes later Fischback and Woog left the committee room. The crime committee members remained locked up with the accounts group another 45 minutes. Then the accounts group had an hour-long conference by themselves before opening the doors to the press. Stanley said the subcommittee did consider three other resolutions during the final stretch.

Halted by Richitt Affair

The request for additional crime probe funds has run a stormy course. When Davis first asked for more money to continue his investigation he was heard in executive session. Hays protested, declaring he wanted to question Davis in open hearings on his opposition to Washington home rule.

Later Hays blocked the fund request on the House floor thus forcing it back to the accounts subcommittee.

The crime committee has spent $10,000 on preliminary investigations and hearings which came to a climax and halt last March on the row between Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett and Police Capt. Anthony Richitt.

At Key Bridge

Youth Kept From Plunge By Cabbie

A 19-year-old youth who tried to jump off Key Bridge at 3:40 a. m. yesterday has been identified as Wade R. Ropp, of 6223 26th rd., N. Arlington, Va.

The youth was saved by the quick thinking of a Washington cab driver, Carl Eidhamaer, 1209 D st. ne., who picked him up at 17th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and was asked to take him to 34th and M sts. nw.

Eidhamaer said he thought Ropp wanted to jump from the bridge and called his dispatcher at the Yellow Cab Co., who notified police.

Homicide Squad Det. Sergt. A. D. Clarke, who announced the identification, said the boy refused to talk to police about the incident. Clarke said he was identified by a tattooed Army serial number on his shoulder.

The youth was pulled from the bridge by Pvt. H. P. Hutchinson, Seventh Precinct, who, with Pvt. H. L. Negle, was first on the bridge after the warning call from the cab company.

Hutchinson said he saw Hopp standing on the parapet, and when he attempted to approach him, the youth jumped toward the rail. Ropp's attention was distracted by the arrival of additional police, and Hutchinson was able to pull him down.

Ropp's father, Wade C. Ropp, of the Arlington address, said the youth had served in the Army after World War II. He is now under mental observation at Gallinger Hospital.

Mayhem Charge Continued to July 27

A charge of mayhem against Godfrey Edwards, 51, of 1213 O st. nw., accused of kicking his wife, Gertrude, in the right eye early Sunday, was continued yesterday in Municipal Court to July 27.

The continuance was granted because Mrs. Edwards, whose eye had to be removed, is still in the hospital. Judge Thomas D. Quinn set Edwards' bond at $2500.

Falls Church Council Creates Manager Post

The Falls Church City Council last night passed an ordinance creating the office of city manager by a slim 4-3 vote.

Councilmen favoring the post as provided for in the recent city charter vote were: Carl H. Hink, Samuel E. McCrary, Sherman M. Wells and James E. Durant. Those opposing were: Mrs. Dillon S. Meyer, Lee M. Rhoads and Karl L. Anderson. Absent were J. H. McCarthy and J. C. McRae.

The vote came after heated discussion on a four-page ordinance some members believed was a paraphrase, to a great extent, of provisions already in effect in the charter.

A compromise bill finally was enacted which knocked out chiefly the charter provision that the new city manager be chosen after an advertisement for applicants.

Council announced that Roy F. Dunn, present city manager, would continue at that post until a city manager is appointed to an indefinite term by a majority vote of the council.

Among the provisions of the new ordinance is one that no council member may be city manager during his term of office or for a year after he leaves it. The city manager may be removed from office by majority vote of the council, and will be executive head of the administrative branch of the city, but responsible to the council. His salary has yet to be fixed.

Other activity at the semi-monthly meeting in City Hall included the offer by Falls Church businessman Gardner Francis of a $1050 gift toward the celebration of the city's second birthday in August. His gift was accepted last year, but last night the council took the matter under consideration.

Civitan Head to Talk

The weekly luncheon of the Washington Civitan Club will be held in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 p. m. today. R. Kelvin Shivers, 1010 Vermont ave. nw., international president of the organization, is guest speaker.

Fairfax Jury Indicts Man In Breakings

The Fairfax County grand jury yesterday indicted Hallett Small Latham, 41, no fixed address, on four counts of housebreaking in the Clermont subdivision near Franconia.

Latham was captured July 9 by Fairfax police, aided by a posse of Clermont residents. The latest housebreaking of which he is accused occurred July 8.

He pleaded guilty on all four counts, which charge he stole $382 in cash and property in the four houses entered.

He was captured after a resident of the subdivision phoned police he had seen a suspicious man hanging about his house. Police and neighbors joined to capture Latham in nearby woods.

Three men indicted yesterday for felonious assault with a knife were Joel Burke, 20, Ollie Bertram, 21, and Lester Payne, 19, all of Fairfax.

The grand jury also indicted Charles M. Casey, 55, of 501 11th st. nw., Washington, charging grand larceny of a $1000 promissory note.

Mental School Inmate Facing Murder Charge

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—A 16-year-old inmate of a mental institution today faced a charge of slaying his partner in escape.

The U. S. Attorney's office here said tonight it will decide Tuesday when Arthur Swann of Washington will be arraigned on a murder charge.

Swann is confined to the District of Columbia Training School near Laurel. He and 17-year-old Raymond Thorne, also of Washington, escaped from the school last January. Thorne never returned.

Swann came back that same evening.

Later Swann reportedly began telling tales of a rifle the two had stolen, of a fight between them which caused the rifle to fire. At first, nobody believed the boy's stories, because he was always telling "fantastic" tales, officials said.

Saturday, military police and FBI agents found a body tentatively identified as Thorne's on the Fort Meade Army Reservation, just about where Swann said it would be.

14th St. Gambling Case Continued to July 26

Charges of setting up a gaming table and permitting gaming against William Thomas Cooper, 46, of 2424 14th st. nw., were continued yesterday by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence to July 26.

Cooper was arrested early Sunday at the 14th street address by members of the vice squad, who said a poker game was in progress there. Eight other men, arrested at the same time, forfeited $5 collateral each on disorderly conduct charges. Lawrence continued Cooper's bond at $2000.

City Planners' Washington Is Exhibited

"Washington—Past, Present and Future," an exhibition depicting the Capital as seen by city planners, opened last night at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

The exhibition, financed by the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission and prepared by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Commission on Fine Art, traces the District from its start in the time of Washington and Jefferson to the present.

The span is from the year 1800 when the District's population was 14,003 and there were 137 Federal employes, to 1950, when the population is 792,000 and Federal employes total 214,077, according to an exhibit caption.

View of Past, Present

Looking at the Planning Commission's exhibition in the north section of the first floor gallery, the visitor can not only visualize the banks of the Potomac River hereabouts as they appeared when Pierre L'Enfant worked out his plan, but the District today, sprawling far beyond its artificial limits.

Charts superimposed on maps indicate not only planned developments, but areas that planners feel should be redeveloped because of their present deterioration.

Runs Until December

The beautifully mounted exhibition, to remain until December, was designed by Oscar Stonorov, of Philadelphia, who also designed the successful Philadelphia City Plan exhibition of several years ago.

The Fine Arts Commission's exhibit in the south section of the gallery features relief maps of the District, early views of the city, including its public buildings, and maps.

The District Public Library and Columbian Historical Society cooperated in the Fine Arts' exhibition.

The Corcoran Gallery, which also is featuring another Sesqui exhibition, "American Processional," on the second floor—is open from 10 to 4:30 p. m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 2 to 5 p. m. Sundays, and 12 to 4:30 p. m. Mondays.

15-Day Jail Term Imposed On Drunk Driver

Alfred H. Blackall, 58, of 211 E. Bellefonte st., Alexandria, yesterday was sentenced to 15 days in jail on a charge of driving while drunk.

The sentence was imposed by Municipal Court Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., before whom Blackall pleaded nolo contendere to the charge.

Park police said Blackall was arrested about 2:30 a. m. July 2, after a Park policeman saw his car weave in and out of traffic along Constitution ave. near 14th st. nw. at a speed of approximately 50 miles per hour.

When arrested, Blackall had a half empty bottle of liquor with him, his clothes were disarranged and he could not speak coherently, police said.

In Prince Georges

Church Gets New Offer Of Property

Prince Georges County Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh has again offered a portion of his adjoining property to assist the Hyatsvile Presbyterian Church complete construction of its annex in conformity with building laws.

Welsh made this offer at a Hyattsville City Council meeting last night despite "obvious misrepresentation of facts made by some members of the church in the public press."

Work on the $14,000 addition was stopped by order of the Maryland National-Capital Park and Planning Commission after it discovered its building permit was issued "in error." It was pointed out that the church annex at 42d and Faragut sts. extends to within thirteen feet of the Welsh property line, whereas the statute provides that building setbacks in this section must be at least 25 feet from a property line.

Both Welsh and Herbert W. W. Wells, a planning commission member, stated that the first work stoppage notice was given the church before any appreciable construction had taken place.

Welsh also produced a letter from the church's attorney, T. Howard Duckett, in which he stated that the church would go ahead with its plans "taking whatever chances it has to."

William E. Roll, chairman of the church's building council, admitted that many of Welsh's statements were true, including one that the concrete footings had not been poured when Welsh first contacted him concerning the extension of the structure beyond the legal building line.

He said, however, that at that time "we had a permit and we had a contract."

The contractor, he said, informed him at that time that $4200 had been expended for material.

Welsh said his offer was first made before construction began.

Last night's airing of the controversy came in response to a request by Welsh "to place the facts before the people." He said "I cannot afford to have a reputation it took 40 years to build torn down in this manner. I would like to do anything in my power to help the church in the unfortunate position it finds itself."

He pointed out that when the original church was built in 1912 he gave permission for it to extend approximately 100 square feet onto adjoining property which he still owns.

Following the hearing, Mayor Caesar L. Aiello said "even if nothing concrete has been accomplished here, I feel the atmosphere has been cleared considerably."

Two D. C. Men Sentenced in P. O. Robbery

Baltimore, July 17 (AP).—Two Washington men—one an honorably discharged GI watchmaking school graduate—today were sentenced to 2½ years each in a Federal prison after they admitted burglarizing a Silver Spring post-office and stealing nearly $16,000 worth of money orders.

The prison terms were imposed by Judge W. Calvin Chestnut in Federal Court on Herbert Lipschultz of 1502 Park rd. nw., and Irving Bruner of 1347 Irving st. nw. Both are 26.

They admitted breaking into a postoffice and pharmacy at Flower ave. and Piney Branch rd., Silver Spring, last May 4.

Frederick J. Green, jr., Government prosecutor, said the defendants stole 159 blank money orders and took time during the burglary to validate each one by stamping it with the official postoffice stamp. Each money order had a maximum value of $100, Green said.

The pair also stole a safe containing cash and about $500 worth of postal notes, but threw the safe and the notes into the Potomac River, the court was told.

The defendants then succeeded in obtaining an automobile learner's card and a tourist's card from the El Salvador consul in Baltimore as identification, both under the same fictitious name, and they subsequently used that name in cashing or depositing about 18 $100 money orders.

The men were arrested after a teller in an Alexandria, Va., bank where they attempted to open an account, noticed that six money orders they were attempting to deposit were among those reported stolen, Green said.

Lipschultz is a veteran who was awarded a Bronze Star and the Purple Heart, it was disclosed.

Four Forfeit Collateral in Race Bet Cases

Four men charged with accepting horse race bets at the Red Fox Inn, 7800 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, Md. yesterday forfeited collateral totaling $512.50 in Bethesda Police Court.

They are Millard E. Peake, 65, operator of the tavern, who forfeited $152.50; James E. Spiller, 49, plasterer, 4927 Cordell ave., Bethesda, who forfeited $205; Jerrome Douglas McClure, 28, bartender, who forfeited $52.50, and Raymond C. German, 34, 5034 41st st. nw., who forfeited $102.50.

All but German were arrested May 31 in a raid on the inn

Wearley's Restaurant Loses Suit Against 50% Eviction

The owner of Wearley's Restaurant, 418 12th st. nw., yesterday lost a District Court action in which he sought to keep the man to whom rents the restaurant's site from taking possession of half of it.

Owner Morris Rubinstein charged that H. A. Swagart, who leases the entire site of the restaurant from the estate of Christian Heurich, gave him 30 days' notice for possession only of half of the site, which is the property facing 418 12th st. nw.

In a writ of restitution calling for possession, no mention was made of the other half of the site, facing 1206 E st. nw., he declared.

Defense lawyers argued, however, that the restaurant has only one entrance for customers, although the building faces two streets. Moreover, the entire premises are known as Wearley's and Rubinstein made application for only one restaurant and one ABC license for the entire place, they said.

Judge Edward A. Tamm denied Rubinstein's motion for an injunction, prohibiting United States Marshall Bruce Matthews from taking possession of the E st. site, and set $30,000 as bond to appeal.

Earlier this month, Rubinstein said he hopes to move Wearley's to the site of the States Restaurant, 516 N. Capitol st.

Attacker Robs Hotel Employe Of $12 and Wrist Watch

Miss Elsie Garvey, 23, of 5812 6th st. nw., a telephone operator at Hotel 2400, was robbed of $12 and a gold wrist watch when she was seized from behind while walking in the 700 block of Nicholson st. nw., late Sunday night.

Miss Garvey said her assailant was a Negro, about 5 feet 2 inches tall, wearing a cotton shirt. She said that when she struggled, he struck her over the head with a brown paper bag filed with part of a brick.

Mis Garvey said she fell screaming to the ground and her attacker ran. When no one came to her assistance, she said, he returned and wrested away her handbag. Miss Garvey was treated at Garfield Hospital for severe lacerations to the scalp.

In another case, William Dortch, 42, of 115 L st. sw., told police he was robbed at about 12:30 a. m. yesterday when he was walking in the unit block of L near his home. He said two medium brown-skinned Negroes grabbed him from behind and robbed him of $13. He said that when he wrestled with one of the men, he was bitten on the lower lip. Dortch was treated at Mount Alto Hospital and released.

Evangeline Booth Taken by Death at 84

Hartsdale, N. Y., July 17 (U.P.)—Gen. Evangeline Booth, retired international commander of the Salvation Army, of a heart ailment today.

She had been ill for two years at her home here. She was 86.

Gen. Evangeline Booth was the fourth daughter of Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army. Born in London on Christmas Day, 1865, she devoted her life from early childhood to the work of the religious-charitable organization.

In 1934 she was elected by the High Council in London to lead the Salvation Army throughout the world, the only woman ever to hold the job. From this post she retired in 1939 to devote herself to composing hymns and band music at her home in Hartsdale.

Gen. William Booth founded the Salvation Army the year Evangeline was born.

She preached her first sermon at the age of 10, mounted on a chair in London's East End, and while still in her teens was made a captain of the Salvation Army Corps in the worst part of the city's West End.

She next fought a legal battle through Parliament to obtain the repeal of a law restricting their right to preach. For this, her father made her a commissioner.

When 31, Miss Booth was sent to Canada to head the Salvation Army there and during the gold rush of 1898 she went into the Klondike with a mission and nursing corps to aid the miners.

In 1904 Miss Booth was appointed head of the Salvation Army in the United States, a post she held for 30 years, until her elevation to international command. During this period she became a United States citizen.

General Booth, who often worked 12 to 18 hours a day, revolutionized the financial system of the army, discarding "panhandling" in favor of an appeal through volunteer campaigns and local Community Chests.

For the work of the Salvation Army in France during World War I President Wilson decorated General Booth with the Distinguished Service Medal. She received many other awards, including an honorary LL.D. from Columbia and an honorary M.A. from Tufts.

Miss Booth never married.

Funeral services at the Salvation Army Centennial Memorial Temple in New York City will be conducted by Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, national commander of the army in this country. The time has not yet been set.

GEN. EVANGELINE BOOTH
. . . Salvation Army leader

Commissioner Pugmire paid tribute to Miss Booth in these words: "Against tremendous odds she established faith and hope where it had not existed before. She was a great lady. She will always remain a symbol of all that is good in our age."

Miss Booth is survived by an older sister, Mrs. Catherine Booth-Clibborn, of England; a younger sister, Mrs. Commissioner Lucy Booth-Helberg, of Sweden; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Gen. Bramwell Booth, of England, and a niece, Mrs. Hugh Sladen, a Salvation Army commissioner who flew here from England 10 days ago to be at Gen. Booth's bedside.

E. I. Kaufmann, Philanthropist Dies; Headed Jewelry Firm

Edmund I. Kaufmann, 64, founder of the Kay Jewelry Stores organization and president of the Fairfax Distributing Co. of Washington, died yesterday in his apartment at the Dorchester House, 2480 16th st. nw.

Mr. Kaufmann, who lived in Washington from 1923 until 1948, had moved to Hollywood, Fla., but returned here from time to time to take care of business interests.

Born in Detroit, he moved to Reading, Pa., in 1916, and at the time of his death was president of the Kaufmann Furniture Co. there.

His philanthropic interests were widespread. He was past president of the Zionist Organization of America and the Leo N. Levi Memorial Hospital in Hot Springs, Ark.

He was president of the Jewish Fund for Medical Research, Kay Associated Stores Foundation and the American Committee for the Weizmann Institute of Science.

He was chairman of the board of Ampal-American Palestine corporation; Director of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. He was chairman of the United Jewish Appeal of Washington since its beginning.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrupde G. Kaufmann; three sons, Joel, Robert and Aaron; two brothers, Ben of Hollywood, Fla. and Adolph of Chattanooga, Tenn. and a sister, Mrs. Cora Meisner of Hollywood, Fla.

Dr. E. E. Richardson Is Dead; Professor Emeritus at GWU

Dr. Edward Elliott Richardson, 77, active for almost a half century in District religious, educational and civic affairs, died yesterday at his home, 3214 10th pl. se.

Dr. Richardson

Dr. Richardson was both pastor emeritus of Congress Heights Baptist Church, where he had been pastor for 30 years, and professor emeritus of George Washington University, where he taught for 45 years.

For 18 years he headed the Congress Heights Citizens Association, and for five more was president of the Congress Heights Progressive Citizens Association.

A native of Vermont, Dr. Richardson came to the District at the age of 17 as a student. From GW, where he served as professor of philosophy, he received the degree of doctor of medicine, bachelor of science, master of science and doctor of philosophy.

Dr. Richardson practiced medicine 17 years here before turning to his work as pastor and professor. He studied for the ministry at Crozier Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., and became pastor of the Congress Heights Church in 1913. He also received a doctor of divinity degree from the Columbia Bible School. He retired in 1943.

Dr. Richardson was perhaps proudest of his 45-year record of unbroken Sunday school attendance, his family said. He began going to Sunday School at Calvary Baptist Church in 1904, and transferred to the Congress Heights Church when he became its pastor. To keep his record intact he onee organized a Sunday School class aboard ship on a world cruise and taught himself.

He is author of several books on religious and philosophy. Dr. Richardson was a member of the District Ministers Conference in 1922, and from 1915 to 1925 was president of the Central Union Mission. He was also selected 40 times president of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry.

His survivors include his wife, the former Grace D. Potter of Rutland, Ver.; a son, Edward M. Richardson, 1001 Alabama ave. se., and two grandchildren, Edward Elliott and Joan Elizabeth Richardson.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Congress Heights Baptist Church. The body will lie in state at the church between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

E. L. Turner's Funeral Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Edwin L. Turner, 34, son of the chairman of the Virginia Milk Commision, will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at the Cunningham funeral home, 809 Cameron st., Alexandria. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

He was found early Sunday, in the basement of his Alexandria home, 3013 Manning st., hanged by a length of plastic clothesline.

His wife, Mrs. Jane Turner, who discovered the body, cut the clothesline and tried vainly to revive her husband by artificial respiration. He was pronounced dead by Alexandria Coroner Dr. John A. Sims.

Alexandria Detective Chief Russell A. Hawes ruled it a suicide.

Mrs. Turner told police the tragedy followed departure of guests from the Turner home early Sunday. Her husband told her he was going to do some work in the basement. She said she soon heard him call to her from the basement. When she went down minutes later she found him hanged.

Mrs. Turner's sister, Mrs. Gerheart Meyers, 3201 Ferndale st., Kensington, Md., said Mr. Turner had been wounded in the last war and was concerned about the present Korean conflict.

She said the Turners were married in 1948 and had no children.

Mr. Turner, an electrical engineer with an Alexandria firm, was the son of Mark Turner, recently reappointed to the State Milk Commission by Gov. William Battle.

Born in Herndon, Va., he attended county schools, was graduated from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and was a reserve captain in the National Guard.

During the last war he served as an Army officer in the Pacific theater and was wounded overseas.

KAUFMANN, EDMUND I. The Seaboard Zionist Region mourns the loss of its distinguished member and friend, EDMUND I. KAUFMANN, the ex-president of the Zionist Organization of America. The causes of Zionism and Jewish culture, of both of which he was a bulwark for over three decades, will sadly miss his wise counsel, his warm association, and his great influence. He was guided by a broad vision and liberal humanitarian impulses in the fight for the establishment of the Jewish state, in the furtherance of which he gave most generously of himself and his substance. The history of the Jewish people will amply record his great contributions to Israel and Jewry. May his sorrowing family and the entire Jewish community of Washington be comforted among the mourners of Zion and Jerusalem.
I. S. TUROVEN,
President, Seaboard Zionist Region.

KAUFMANN, EDMUND I. The Jewish community of Greater Washington deeply mourns the passing of one of its most distinguished and noble personalities, MR. EDMUND I. KAUFMANN. Philanthropist, love of culture, valiant fighter for the rights of the persecuted and oppressed, fearless champion of a free and democratic state of Israel, Edmund I. Kaufmann earned the profound respect and abiding love of countless numbers of people. His memory will remain with us as a symbol of true Americanism and true Judaism. Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, RABBI ISADORE BRESLAU, President; ISAAC FRANCK, Executive Director.

KAUFMANN, EDMUND I. The Louis D. Brandeis District of the Zionist Organization of America is deeply saddened by the sudden death of Mr. EDMUND I. KAUFMANN, past national president of the Zionist organization. Mr. Kaufmann was a zealous and universally respected leader in the movement which lead to the birth of the state of Israel. An active and generous supporter of many charitable causes, both Jewish and general, he had the love and gratitude of untold numbers of people. We who were privileged to have him as one of us feel the loss most keenly, and we extend our most heartfelt sympathy to the members of his family.
A. S. KAY, President.

KAUFMANN, EDMUND I. On Monday, July 17, 1950, EDMUND I. KAUFMANN, beloved husband of Gertrude G. Kaufmann and devoted father of Joel S. and Robert D. Kaufmann. Air-Condition Your Meals by Shifting to Light Summer Fare

By Ida Jean Kain

SUMMER is the time to air-condition the diet by shifting to lighter fare. How much defueling is needed depends on the weather and physical activity. The blanket statement that less food is needed in summer doesn't always hold true. Outdoors activities often step up calorie requirements.

But summer in the city is a shade different than in some cool resort spot . . . and so of course is dieting. Even those who do not need to melt off fat should cut down on concentrated fuel by leaving heavy, greasy foods out of the menus, for the sake of comfort. And the overweights can cut more calories, for comfort and slimming.

Tailored to Quick Reduction

THIS HOT weather diet takes the seasonal lull into account and is lower in calories than cold weather menus. It is tailored to city slimming and fast weight loss. However, if you lose more than four pounds in a single week on these menus, you can add 200 calories a day.

Anyone can diet more easily in summer. The career girl who carries her lunch can cut fuel from the sandwich merely by leaving off the fats. A sardine sandwich is not slimming . . . it's more fat than protein. Buttering the bread and mixing mayonnaise in the filling adds considerable fuel, and calories. Calories and fuel are the same thing.

Calories Are Your Yardstick

IT'S the fuel that makes heat and fat; calories are just the yardstick for measuring the amount of fuel a food furnishes. Thinly-sliced bread and a filling of lean meats, flavored with mustard, is satisfying and low in calories. For added protein, have a hard-cooked egg or a wedge of cheese. Tomatoes, celery, cucumber sticks, carrot slivers and a little salt add to the tastiness of lunch without adding many calories. And for dessert . . . a luscious piece of fruit.

By the way, dieters, don't let an air-conditioned spot tempt you to overeat at the evening meal . . . "This is the first time I've felt like eating today." Have a good meal but still keep the high fuel foods down if the temperature outside is hot and humid . . . and more to the point, if you want to slim down.

Happily, it's more fun to diet in hot weather for seasonal foods are lower in calories. A summer treat is a shore dinner, and it's slimming. All seafood is low in calories. Start with steamed clams or shrimp cocktail . . . have lobster and French fries, a green salad with vinegar, and iced tea. Calories . . . about 400. Don't dip too heavily in the melted butter . . . lobster tastes fine without it.

Philippine Senator Still 'Old-Fashioned' at Home

By Sonia Stein

THE PRESENT crisis in Korea must not be allowed to interfere with long-range plans for peace, according to Senator Geronima Tomelden Pecson, first woman Senator in the Philippines and first woman elected to UNESCO's executive board.

The tiny emissary from the Philippines voiced her faith in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization as the best instrument for a lasting peace in a press conference held at the chancery of the Philippine Embassy yesterday morning.

En route from Florence, Italy, where she attended a UNESCO conference, to Manila, where the Philippine Congress goes into emergency session next Tuesday to make plans in case of war conditions, the lady Senator spoke optimistically about the Korean situation and said that she thought the United Nations would find a way out of the problem. "But we mustn't let the present crisis interfere with our long range program for peace," she said. "It's like planting a tree. One year's delay in planting a tree is one year's delay in reaping the fruit from it."

In her home country, Mrs. Pecson says that women are politically active. Although there is only one woman in the lower house, and only Mrs. Pecson in the Senate, there are over 300 women in lesser elected government positions including several mayors. More than half of the voters in elections are women.

Still Old Fashioned In Family Matters

THE MOTHER of two daughters, 12 and 15, and the wife of a judge, Mrs. Pecson says she believes in perfect equality for women outside the home but that at home she is "old fashioned." Her husband has never said he disapproved of her political activities, and she felt she could not shirk the responsibility when the Liberal Party asked her to run for office, she said.

The women have also been mobilized as soldiers of peace, she explained. All women's groups — nurses' organizations, university women, labor groups, clubs—are federated into the Philippine National Council and all have been asked to work in their own circle and their own family to bring peace.

Through women, the government hopes to fight Communist infiltration and prevent men from joining guerilla groups like the Huks.

Government Backs U. S. Intervention

THIS peace move is an internal matter, however, she added, explaining that her government is back of the United Nations intervention in Korea. Without committing herself about whether the Philippine government would or should send troops to Korea, or permit large scale basing of American troops in the Philippines, Mrs. Pecson said that the Philippine Republic would do its part.

In the event of difficulties in the Philippines, women will take an active part, Senator Pecson predicted.

"Our women are made of steel when it comes to an emergency," she said and told of incidents of women walking barefoot over the stony mountains to deliver messages and food to U. S. troops, and about women who were imprisoned and killed for throwing food and cigarettes to American troops who were Japanese prisoners. Mrs. Pecson was active in the underground herself.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

SENATOR Geronima Tomelden Pecson of the Philippine Republic takes time to look at a new UNESCO publication during her brief stay in Washington en route from a UNESCO conference in Florence, Italy, to Manila where the Congress will go into emergency session next Tuesday to study the Korean problem and the tax situation. Mrs. Pecson, first woman elected to UNESCO's executive board, considers that branch of U. N. a vital factor in lasting peace which must not be hindered by the Korean emergency

Farewells of British Diplomat Brightened by Festive Evening

By Elizabeth Maguire

AFTER A STAY here of four years, British Counselor Edgar Jones and Mrs. Jones are saying goodby to their many friends in and around Washington. With their two little girls, Menna Powell-Jones and Gweno Powell-Jones, they will sail back to England on August 8 on the Queen Mary.

A cocktail party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jones was given Friday by Sir Sydney Caine, Minister at the British Embassy, and Lady Caine at the Windsor Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones have resided in Fairfax County. The counselor also served as alternate director for the UK at the International Bank.

Dinner Honors Woman Senator

SENATOR GERONIMA PECSON, only woman member of the Philippine Senate, was the guest in whose honor a dinner was given last evening by the Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin Elizalde. In the company were Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely, the Minister of the Philippines Emilio Abello and Mrs. Abello, the Minister of the Philippines to the Argentine, Narciso Ramos, and Mrs. Ramos, the Counselor at the Philippine Embassy, Melquiades J. Gamboa, and Mrs. Gamboa, and Mrs. Rizalina Buenaseda, sister of the visiting Senator.

Minister Ramos arrived in Washington yesterday from Buenos Aires to pick up Mrs. Ramos and return to the Philippines for a visit.

U. S. Treasurer Honored on Campus

MRS. GEORGIA NEESE CLARK, Treasurer of the United States, was honored last evening at a reception held at 8:30 o'clock in Mary Graydon Hall on the campus of American University. Guests included members of the faculty and the 74 members attending the Institute on the Position of the U. S. in World Affairs. A speech on current topics was delivered by Mrs. Clark after the receiving hours.

June Bride Now a July 'Widow'

By Marie McNair

LITTLE did Margaret Burnside Lowrey think when she left Washington in early June to marry Capt. Stanley G. Nichols, USN, that she'd be a "Navy widow" in a month.

The new Mrs. Nichols watched her husband sail with a Task Force from California, a few days ago and has now settled down in an apartment at Long Beach to wait it out.

"We really had a beautiful little wedding," she writes of the ceremony which took place June 3 in the Navy Family Chapel at Long Beach. "Nic had gone all out to see that everything was just right, including the reception at the Town Officers Club."

Living is easy in Long Beach, Mrs. Nichols finds. There's a farmers' market not far from her Ocean Boulevard apartment and she fills her house with flowers for not more than 50 cents.

As the skipper's wife, Margaret Nichols entertained the officers' wives of the Cimarron at luncheon last Saturday in the Skyroom atop the Wilton Hotel.

Since Captain Nichols was a bachelor there was no one to bring the wives together until Margaret came along. From now on it's going to be different. The Captain's wife will see that they meet twice a month and if Margaret Nichols is the same gal I knew in Washington she'll have them all in Red Cross in no time. (She's the former Mrs. Vernon Lowrey, you know.)

THINGS I NEVER KNEW 'TIL NOW DEPT.: That a refrigerator has 68 bolts and if one gets out of order it affects the other 67. The Second Secretary of the Finnish Legation and Mme. Hallama learned that fact at the cost of an hour's mental suffering.

Guests had arrived for cocktails to be followed by supper. The maid put her head in the drawing room door to announce to the hostess that the refrigerator door wouldn't open. Everything was inside the ice box for cocktails and supper.

The usual light chatter at a party kept up for just so long without benefit of stimulant. The host phoned the shop which had sold him the refrigerator. "Yes, our emergency man will be over immediately," he was told.

Buoyed by this thought, everybody made another stab at being gay. But the man didn't arrive. Mr. Hallama, frantic at this point, called the first refrigerator man he found in the book. "Be right over, but I live in Virginia," was the reply.

The suburbanite finally DID arrive and in a flash calm had descended on the Hallama household.

The former Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, now living in New York, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bruguiere at their Newport villa, where they helped celebrate Mrs. Bruguiere's birthday Saturday night at the dinner-dance which the Bruguieres gave at Wakehurst.

Dr. and Mrs. M. M. Copeland, on a Canadian vacation, are at Jasper Park Lodge in the Canadian Rockies.

Frank Rediker was among purchasers at the recent auction which disposed of the remaining furnishings of the late Eleanor Patterson's house at 15 Dupont Circle, now the property of the American Red Cross. He bid top price on the drawing room draperies.

Mrs. John Horton, the former Miss Drucie Snyder, is sticking to her television job in Washington while her husband is in California on a flying business trip. Appearing on television five nights weekly, Drucie confines her recreation to daytime hours.

Last week she celebrated Bastille Day by entertaining at the matinee of "Gigi," French film a tthe Plaza Theater. Her guests included Mrs. George A. Horkan, jr., and Miss Gery Clifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Clifford.

The new Ambassador of Greece, Athanase G. Politis, presented his credentials to President Truman last week. He left immediately for Detroit, to attend the Pan-Laconian convention on Monday and he spoke at the banquet Monday. The Ambassador will return to Washington today.

Yugoslav Cooking Fit for a King—or a Tito

CHEF SVETKO BABIN
Sarma is wrapped in cabbage leaves

Belgrade, July 17 (AP).—On the world's crossroads between East and West, Yugoslavia's cooking may never rate as an international best. But it has produced dishes fit for a king. It still does for the Communists.

In a country rich in its agricultural economy, there is little that cannot be found to make a meal—from caviar to cucumbers, from garlic-rubbed green peas to pork on a spit.

There's a distinction and a difference in Yugoslavia's dishes. Its hosts, sometimes with kingly condescension, more often lately as a comradely chore, make a gourmet gleeful, make a gourmand cry enough.

Let's take it for granted that a stalwart Yugoslav, with a proper regard for his well being, starts off the day with a slug of rakija (plum brandy), a cup or two or three of Turkish coffee, a bit of bread with a dash of honey.

Maybe that doesn't sound filling by American standards of juice and ham and eggs and biscuits or toast with coffee. True. But it's just a buildup for what may come later—after, of course, more rakija—for lunch.

For the Joes and Janes of other lands who like to try their hand at strange and special dishes, here is a mouth-watering menu which would tickle even Marshal Tito's fancy.

LUNCH

Chorba (chicken soup with celery, rice and tomatoes.)
Sarma (beef, pork and veal ground together and wrapped in unbroken sour cabbage leaves.)
Baklava (tiny cakes made of thin layers of pastry, melted butter, crushed nuts and sweet almonds.)
Bela vino (white wine.)
Turkish coffee.

DINNER

Guska na podvarku (golden goose with sour cabbage.)
Srpski salata (a hot and tasty Serbian salad.)
Ajvar (fried eggplant with green peppers.)
Gibanica (pastry packed with soft cheese.)
Red wine, Turkish coffee.

Here's how you make them:

CHORBA, the national soup of Serbia—Plump one fat young chick into an iron pot and cook slowly until tender. Bone and dice the bird. Add a small glass of rice, diced celery, sliced tomatoes, the juice of half a lemon and simmer mixture slowly. Before serving, add a small glass of sour cream into which has been stirred the yoke of one egg.

SARMA—Grind and mix thoroughly equal quantities of beef, veal and pork. Mould mixture into small, individual portions with sour cabbage (saurkraut) enveloping each. Cook slowly in a large pot. When done, cover portions with thick gravy of fat and flour cooked separately and serve immediately.

BAKLAVA—Roll a pastry made of 20 eggs and 3 pounds of flour into very thin layers. Crush and mix a pound of assorted nuts and a pound of sweet almonds. Pile the pastry layers one upon the other, alternately spreading between each, hot melted butter and the mixed nuts. Cut into small squares and bake. Over this can be added a sugar frosting.

GUSKA NA PODVARKU—Brown two finely diced onions in a casserole. Add 4 pounds of chopped sour cabbage (saurkraut) until it turns a golden brown. Add one paprika whole for flavor, season with salt and pepper to taste. Meanwhile, oven bake a fat young goose until also brown. Enthrone the goose upon the cooked cabbage, add a bit of water and return to the oven for a brief period to allow their flavors to mingle.

Yugoslav housewives, using a razor sharp knife, carve the goose before serving, then piece it together again so it appears intact in all its goosely glory upon arrival at the dinner table. It saves papa a table tussle with the carving knife.

SRPSKI SALATA—To quartered tomatoes, add olive oil, vinegar and small slices of paprika (green peppers will do). Mix, add black pepper, and sprinkle over top finely chopped onions. It's hot.

AJVAR—Fry four eggplants and 10 small peppers in hot fat. Cool for 10 minutes. Remove contents of both and mash together with a wooden knife. Meanwhile, cook one diced onion and two thin slices of garlic in olive oil. Combine the two, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice, stir well and serve.

GIBANICA—This is a pastry which is filled with a mixture of soft, sweet cheese, mixed with the yolks of eggs and a handful of raisins, and baked. It can be served hot or cold.

Raisin Coconut Cookies

RAISIN COCONUT COOKIES

Ingredients: 1 cup seedless raisins, ½ cup shortening, ¾ cup brown sugar (packed), 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, 1 egg, 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup shredded coconut, ½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats.

Method: Rinse raisins and drain. Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Blend in vanilla and beat in egg. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, and cinnamon. Stir into creamed mixture, blending thoroughly. Mix in raisins, coconut and oats. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased cooky sheet. Bake in moderately hot (375 F.) oven 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Temper Tantrums Have A Message for Mother

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHEN A CHILD has a temper tantrum he is literally exploding with rage and helplessness. He doesn't enjoy a tantrum, rather it is an expression of emotions which have no other outlet.

All day long small children—older ones, too—are exposed to the demands and commands of their environment and their parents. The toys won't do their bidding and fall down when they should stand up. The engine, though cranked, won't run. Parents are at them hourly to do this, do that, don't do this, don't do that. Other children ignore them. What is there left for frustrated, baffled children but to ignite and blow up in a way that will bring attention?

It is quite true that when a child becomes addicted to using temper tantrums as a way of getting attention and subservience to his demands, it is time the mother tried a little dose of indifference. If she looks away and goes about her business she she may find the child calming down because kicking and screaming have proved to be a barren business.

Tantrums Can Become Harmful

BUT, this is far from being the only answer to the treatment of temper tantrums, and it might, if carried too far, be a very damaging one. There is something to be set right when a child has to adopt such tactics to get notice. What is amiss? That is the pertinent question to be asked.

Maybe the parent saves herself time, worry and inconvenience by saying no when she could as well say yes. She might do better to step into a situation which is too complex for the child to solve it easily for him. There is little gained by allowing a child to be so thwarted by natural events and by the people who use their power over him, that there is no outlet for his fury except a tantrum.

Don't Exploit Child's Weakness

CHILDREN do have to accommodate themselves to some frustration. But, it is all too easy for adults to exploit a child's weakness and make him the victim of their own laziness or refusal to act. What such a child needs may be just freedom and opportunity to act when he wants to act and to be the independent thinking and acting person he imagines himself to be.

The whole answer certainly does not lie in merely ignoring a tantrum that is telling a dramatic story of childish helplessness to the parent, if she will but interpret it rightly.

Ask Anne

For That Oriental Flavor, Anne Tells How to Bake Hang-Yen-Bang (Or Plain Almond Cookies to You)

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me where I can locate a recipe for Chinese Almond cookies?

Patricia Meek, Silver Spring, Md.

The following is from Fred Wing's "New Chinese Recipes," (Edelmuth Company):—

ALMOND CAKES
(Hang-Yen-Bang)

¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ cup lard
1 egg
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon almond extract
1/3 cup blanched almonds

Sift flour, sugar, salt, and baking powder into large mixing bowl. Blend lard in with pastry blender or hands. Beat together the egg, water, and almond extract and sprinkle over the flour mixture. Stir with a fork until mixture comes away from side of bowl. Knead until smooth and chill for one hour. Form into balls about 1 inch in diameter. Flatten by pressing with palm of hand to about ¼ inch thick. Press one almond in center of each cake and brush top with following mixture:

Beaten yolk of 1 egg
1 tablespoon water

Place on baking sheet and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 20 to 25 minutes, or until golden brown. This recipe makes about 3 dozen cookies.

DEAR ANNE:

For the last month, I've tried to find out how to get a "Salt Plant" started. It's been many years since I last saw one and I remember very little about it, except that coal, water, and salt are the necessary ingredients. Beyond that, I'm lost.

I've asked so many in our development that I now have practically everyone interested in making one. I found that some people call them "Depression Plants," others "Salt Fungi." If it's at all possible, I'd like to know if a certain type of salt or coal is needed. If so, what kind?

Frances Lee,
Rockville, Md.

Besides the salt and coal, you'll want bluing, ammonia, water and mercurochrome to grow one of these colorful flowers. Doesn't make any difference what kind of coal you use. In fact, a clinker or a piece of coke or brick will do just as well.

Use 6 tablespoons ordinary salt, 6 tablespoons bluing, 6 tablespoons water, and 1 tablespoon ammonia water. Mix this together thoroughly and pour over the piece of coal. After coal has been wet well with the liquid, drop on it a few drops of mercurochrome (or red ink or green ink.)

After materials have been brought together, a coral-like colored growth will soon begin to appear on the clinker. This increases rapidly. It also tends to form on the edges of the dish and will climb up and over them unless they have been rubbed with vaseline. Addition of a little more ammonia water to dish will produce more growth after first has stopped. Or the whole may be allowed to dry, then kept without further changes.

PETUNIA!

Prints by the hundreds—
They couldn't be counted
(And I'm practically certain They'll never get mounted)

Then file them, Petunia, in a recipe card box, according to people's names, or what-have-you. They'll be lots easier to find.

Godfrey Plunks; Home Entertainment Booms

By Jack O'Brian

(Tenth of a Series)

The premises at 3040 Webster ave. in the Bronx are buzzing along merrily, although the order department of this suddenly expanded small business is going slowly but surely out of its mind.

It is the headquarters of Mario Maccaferri, a manufacturer of ukuleles. Entirely due to Arthur Godfrey's unsolicited enthusiasm for the Hawaiian instrument, of which he is one of the top-ranking virtuosi, the manufacturer of this Bronx version of the island instrument is more than 150,000 orders behind.

Nationally, and possibly internationally, no more than 100,000 ukuleles were sold during the last 20 years.

Taboo in Union

Godfrey went on the radio and TV air starting last January with an impulsive decision to turn his favorite instrument into an object of more musical respect than it ever previously had attained.

The American Federation of Musicians did not, and still doesn't, consider the ukelele a musical instrument. A person who plays it in public does not have to hold a union card—so far, that is.

There is more than a suspicion that within a short time the ukulele will follow its larger cousins, the guitar, banjo, mandolin and other stringed instruments into the unionized fold. Very shortly, in fact.

The upsurge of interest in the ukulele since last January has been astounding. The approximately 5000-a-year sales of the uke since 1929, up to which point no canoe was considered complete without one, was abandoned promptly as a yardstick for 1950.

That many were sold in a few days alone after Godfrey first started plunking for and upon the uke on his radio and TV shows, urging listeners to adopt it as their home entertainment, and describing the simplicity of its operation.

A Good Influence

It got to be an object of wholeheartedly approved family enjoyment once Godfrey got this simple message over to mothers and fathers of prospective uke strummers:

"If a kid has a uke in his hand he's not going to get in much trouble."

The penetration of the Godfrey salesmanship came brilliantly to light last week when it was established that his constant ukulele partisanship on his nine network radio and TV shows weekly resulted in the sale during the last six months alone of almost 1,700,000 of the instruments!

Once considered a dormant industry, the ukulele trade each day virtually pulls its prayer rug out onto the salesroom floor to face Godfrey and give its fiscal thanks. No argument has been raised over who is responsible for the new business. Everyone knows it's Godfrey.

Nothing In It

And how much is Godfrey paid for such tenacious publicizing?

Nothing! Not a cent!

Not, of course, that he hasn't had an opportunity to latch onto this tidal wave of ukuleles flooding the Nation, returning again to their proper place in the canoe.

Since March 28, for instance, Maccaferri has been reaping all the benefits of a free network ride as Godfrey extols the attractions of his $5.95 Islander Ukulele.

The Islander uke gets almost as much praise as Godfrey devotes on each telecast to Hi-V orange juice, of which Arthur is part owner and whose liquid goodness he is tangibly interested in spreading across the Nation's breakfast tables.

But Godfrey doesn't feel it would be proper ethically to take a percentage of the money from such a ukulele promotional enterprise.

"I couldn't keep a secret, and once the word got around that I was in on a 'deal,' the public might lose a little faith in my sales talks for other things," he says.

"My fans know which of the products I advertise are paying sponsors and which I get a little enthused about on my own. They also realize I won't take up the cudgels for my product if I don't think it's worth buying.

"I feel sure the cigarettes and floor wax and teabags and flour and other things I peddle every day are fine items. But I've been yelling about ukuleles so long and so loudly that if I were to hop on now for a financial ride, it wouldn't look nice.

"Yes—I've had offers. But I've turned them all down. This way, if I find good ukuleles I can say so on my shows and not feel I have to. I also can say one is a stinker if I choose.

"And since I want folks to play and enjoy the uke, I also want them to play the right ones and not get stuck with some stiff. I have a double obligation, you know. Every ukulele isn't a good one. Some are good for practicing, some good for serious playing, and some good for nothing.

"I try to tell folks just what I find out about each one."

Tell them indeed!

Godfrey told the folks just what he thought about a $3.79 ukulele from the Abraham and Straus department store. He criticized its workmanship and joined the ranks of the hungry critics by promising to eat it if it could be established as a good instrument.

"You know what happened, probably some buyer over there who didn't know a ukulele from a Stradivarius bull fiddle thought this was a good deal," he said to an obviously amused studio audience, and a good percentage of his 40 million weekly listeners.

'Twas Only a Toy

William Tobey, vice president of Abraham and Straus, himself a Godfrey fan, did not scream with rage or sue for libel.

Instead, he took it in equally as good humor as Godfrey constantly exudes and sent the redhead a long wire which the obviously delighted entertainer read on the air next morning.

The telegram pointed out that the ukulele came from A. and S.' toy department and one he thought might better meet the Godfrey standard, a $5.95 item, was being sent along for perusal and criticism, good or bad.

The store executive, taking Godfrey's own tone, ended his wire:

"We love you and we're looking forward to hearing and seeing you. For all of us at A. and S., William Tobey, one of those vice presidents, you should excuse the expression."

Such a cheerfully understanding rebuttal to his previous statements about the toy ukulele, brought from Godfrey the comment that, "They're a darn good store."

Then he waxed enthusiastic about the $5.95 ukulele sent along from the store's music department. It obviously delighted Godfrey, and his loyal fans beat a path to A. & S. where more ukes were sold the next two days than had been sold in two months.

The situation has grown almost out of hand. Orders are away ahead of production all over the country.

Lessons More Popular

The fad has caused music publishers to add ukulele chord notations on sheet music. Customers, unlike the pre-1929 ukulele boom, were not confined to young people. Godfrey's Tuesday and Friday TV programs, dedicated to teaching how to play the ukulele, are growing to popularity.

Godfrey took to the uke 30 years ago when he was taught by a Hawaiian shipmate while in the Navy at Great Lakes Training Station.

Tomorrow: Godfrey's brand of humor.

The Moving Hand

Poor Old Fate Gets Most of the Blame

By John Crosby

FATE, as the moving hand behind our destinies, is getting the biggest play since the day of Euripides. The villain used to be our dirty little ids, very deep in our subconscious. The new thing is to point the accusing finger at poor old Fate, a pathological development in an era when the average man feels peculiarly helpless in face of the vast social forces around him.

The C.B.S. television network (WOIC) has launched a couple of programs, "The Web" (9:30 p. m. Tuesday) and "Sure as Fate" (8 p. m. Tuesday), in both of which mankind is more or less exonerated of the blame for his own troubles. It's all Fate's doing. Of the two, "Sure as Fate," an hour-long program, is easily the best, but, as Fate would have it, it's gone off the air until fall. Among its recent essays on "lives touched by fate," was one called "The Franchise Affair," a grim but plausible exhibit of Fate at work.

In this one, an aristocratic old lady and her daughter, who have just moved into a manor house in an English town where they are not known, come perilously close to being thrown into jail through the machinations of a little fiend of a girl, roughly 12 years old. The little girl succeeds in convincing the townsfolk she has been badly beaten by the old lady. So ingenious and imaginative is this little elf of a child that she even contrives to describe the inside of a house in which she has never set foot and an old lady she has never met.

THE old lady and her daughter are rescued by a young local solicitor behind whose spectacles and prim, humorless countenance reside a British determination and intelligence Kipling would have applauded. The little girl, it developed, had been beaten by her own mother, a music hall singer who had farmed her out for adoption, and she was, as it were, wreaking vengeance on society at large.

In that ending, I realized, Mr. Freud creeps back into the motivation rather conspicuously. It's difficult to dislodge Freud entirely from modern drama. Also, if I understood the Greeks correctly, Fate could not be thwarted by even the most determined British solicitor or anything else. However, these people's lives are just touched by Fate, not overrun by it. Fate, in other words, just has its foot in the door. It isn't all the way in.

The story, of course, is fairly reminiscent of Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour," as well as several other Broadway plays. But I won't hold that against it. It was very well produced, directed and cast, and contained some fine performances by Richard Malek as the solicitor and by Mimi Strongin as the little girl. My only objection to the play was the fact that love got rather in the way at the end of it. Not that I have anything against love, exactly, but it was not handled with anything like the finesse that characterized the rest of the drama.

AS TO "The Web," a half-hour drama, I'm considerably less enthusiastic. One of these dramas, "The Orderly Mr. Appleby," was about a fussy little antique dealer who had murdered his first wife for her money and was well on the way to doing in his second one for hers. He had bashed in the first wife's skull with an antique and then explained to the police that she had tripped over a scatter rug and bashed it in by accident. When he bought a scatter rug for Wife No. 2, she became understandably nervous. Seems to me the police would be a little suspicious of a man whose wives had both conked out under similar circumstances, but let it pass, let it pass.

At any rate, the antique dealer at the last moment decides he loves Wife No. 2 again and doesn't want to kill her after all. Then Fate steps in. Wife No. 2 trips over the rug and bashes in her noggin. The cops nab the antique dealer for the accidental death where they had completely missed the homicide, Irony, you know. Or possibly just malarkey.

What struck me about this half-hour play is that it contained as much plot as the hour-long "Sure as Fate" and yet it seemed twice as long. Another thing that struck me is that "The Web" is sponsored and the infinitely superior "Sure as Fate" isn't. Irony, you know.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Willard 'Rides' Post's Racing Rider

H. A. Willard of 1614 F st. nw. has been vacationing at Nantucket, but had to come home for a couple of days on Willard Estate business and dropped in with an item. He reports:

"There's a boat up there named 'Fat Boy,' and every time I see it, I get homesick for The Washington Post and Walter Haight."

REBUTTAL

Our "Pet Peeve" about motorists who stop in pedestrian crosswalks brings a rejoinder from Margaret F. Williams of 727 Chestnut ave., Falls Church, Va.:

"It's an uncomfortable spot for the driver, too, but usually it's not his fault he's there. With traffic crawling as it does on our streets, the motorist often has the unhappy choice of going through a red light or blocking a crosswalk. It's cheaper to stop in the crosswalk."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

About a month ago, when I came here to go to school for the summer, I subscribed to the mail edition of The Washington Post.

Since then, I have been getting an armful of Posts on some days, and no paper at all for several days afterward. To whom shall I squawk, your circulation department or Uncle Sam?

Sam Whitaker,
42 Glen rd.
Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Dear Sam:

Tell your troubles to Uncle. We race like mad to make planes and trains with every edition. But the Post Office Department is currently operating on a reduced budget and that may be the reason for your spotty service.

Bill

GIVE-AWAYS

"Tiger mother cat and two darling kittens; we're moving." (Temple 5910.)

"Handsome 1-year-old male cat and five kittens." (Decatur 0353.)

"Perfectly trained, beautiful 2-month-old kitten." (Columbia 7970.)

"Six adorable kittens." (Georgia 6814.)

"Two gentle, housebroken male kittens, four months old." (Overlook 1858.)

"Six-month-old male dog; nice pup." (Glebe 2843.)

CAVEAT EMPTOR

The sudden changes in Washington weather have been the subject of many a joke. But they're no joke to golfers who play on Interior's public courses, operated by S. G. Leoffler.

The other day we debated the dark clouds in the sky at great length before we ventured out to play East Potomac. The rains held off, we finished our match, and returned to the clubhouse for a drink.

A newcomer was buying a ticket for nine holes. "What happens if it rains?" he asked.

The clerk shrugged. "Aw, it ain't gonna rain. It's been like this all day."

"Yeah, I know," persisted the golfer. "But what if it does start to rain. Do I get a rain check?"

(It is the custom at other courses to issue "rain checks" to players who have not been able to complete a reasonable fraction of the round they paid for.)

"I'm sorry," said the clerk. "No rain check. You'll just have to take your chances."

Well, what's a guy going to do after he's come all the way out to the golf course to play? He took his chances, got drenched in a downpour while waiting to hit off the second tee, and came back to the clubhouse understandably furious.

If and when the D. C. Recreation Board takes over the Interior courses, I hope this is one of the Leoffler policies that will be carefully reviewed. The public has a right to expect a better break on publicly owned courses.

THE OLD SUNDIALER

"Money isn't everything," sighs WTOP's Eddie Gallaher. "Confederate money, that is."

PERSONAL NOTES

R. A. Staley, 809 N. Wayne st., Arlington, Va.: I don't know where to start looking for the Coakley cartoon inspired by your item until you give me the publication date. Incidentally, a great many requests for Coak's originals have been received in the past few days, and it may take me a while to fill all the orders.

THESE MODERN TIMES

Edward P. Curran, safety director of the Keystone Automobile Club of 1643 Connecticut ave. nw., will probably shock etiquette authorities with this new approach to an old problem.

He says that when a man has driven a lady to her destination, she should alight from the car first and the man behind the wheel should then alight from the curb side of the auto, because:

"The traditionally courteous move of the driver alighting from his (the traffic) side and walking around the car to help the lady has its obvious dangers."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Corinne Lewis of 3856 Florence dr., Alexandria, Va., observes: "Many a true word is spoken through false teeth."

Core of Red Soldiers Jap Trained

By Drew Pearson

Here are some of the blunt, cold facts about the Korean fighting:

1. The nucleus of the Korean army is Korean veterans trained by the Japanese. After fighting as part of the Japanese army for four years, they were taken over by the Russians following V-J day. Since then they have been baptized by fire in Chinese fighting, and are now armed to the teeth with Russian equipment.

Pearson

2. American troops not only are outnumbered but relatively green. While many of the officers and noncoms have seen combat service, most of the men in the ranks are young and, because of quick personnel turnovers, not always well trained. Japan has been considered one of the easy army berths, where living was cheap, servants numerous, and duties not arduous.

For instance, the commander of the First Cavalry Division, Maj. Gen. Hobart Gay, a fine officer, suffered a heart attack some time ago and, not wanting to retire at the age of 56, Japan was picked for him as a soft berth. The First Cavalary Division, now armored, is supposed to be one of the crack combat outfits of the Regular Army. Yet its commander cannot pass a physical.

3. For reasons that the army cannot adequately explain, our tanks are no match for the 60-ton Russian monsters with 12-inch armor. Our tanks were inferior to German tanks in the recent war, and they are still inferior to enemy tanks. Not only were Russian tanks better than ours during the war, but the Russians began improving their tanks after the war, while our biggest tank, the Patton, is only just arriving in Korea now.

Russian Sub Reported

4. There is no question but that Russia is directing the Korean war. However, no Russians have actually been killed or captured. There have been a dozen reports, chiefly from South Koreans, of Russian officers seen at the front, and the Navy officially reported sighting one Russian submarine, which carefully stayed out of the range of American guns.

5. Nothing is being said about it publicly, but the grim Korean setbacks have raised doubts in the Pentagon building as to whether General MacArthur has the force and vigor necessary for the Korean campaign. Now 71 years old, MacArthur has been absorbed with political problems. While no one blames MacArthur for the difficulty of getting supplies to Korea, there is some resentment at his glowing promise to President Truman the night before the Korean decision was made, that he would "guarantee" success whether Russia came in or not.

Most worrisome development in the whole Korean defeat is the effect it is bound to have on other prospective Red moves—in Germany, Yugoslavia, Iran, Indo-China and Formosa.

There are Communist troop concentrations in all these areas. If the Korean war had ended in a reasonably quick American victory, the effect on other Russian moves would have been extremely dampening. Now the opposite is bound to happen.

With American troops bogged down in Korea, Moscow is sure to be tempted to move in other areas. That is why backstage criticism of the military—including Secretary Johnson, General MacArthur, our lack of tank-planning, etc.—is getting so vigorous.
